Venezuela to Raise Oil Price on Jan. 1

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Venezuela made the bad news official Wednesday—it will increase the cost of its oil after Jan. 1.

The United States, meanwhile, is expected to receive some good news today. An announcement on gasoline rationing is due and indications are the Nixon administration does not plan to introduce rationing at this time.

The Venezuelan government announced that its oil tax reference values—used to calculate taxes paid by foreign oil companies—will increase substantially Jan. 1.

The mines and hydrocarbons minister, Hugo Perez la Salvia, declined to say how high the price will go, saying only the increase will be substantial. He said the new price will be disclosed this week.

A Venezuelan newspaper said, however, that the tax reference price may go to $10 a barrel from the current average of $7.34 a barrel. It was $3.11 a barrel in January, 1970.

It was bad news for eastern Canadians. Canada relies on Venezuela for 85 per cent of its daily crude-oil imports of 800,000 barrels. Eastern Canada uses imported oil.

Earlier this week, the Persian Gulf oil-producing countries increased their listed price for oil by $11 a barrel.

Indonesia announced today it will increase its oil price next week. A spokesman for the state-owned Pertamina Oil Co. would not say how much the increase will be but Japanese sources said it will go to $10 a barrel from $8.50. Indonesia exports most of its oil to Japan.

United States Energy Chief William Simon announced today establishment of a stand-by system for gasoline rationing but said he still believes its actual use can be avoided.

Simon said he has ordered the bureau of engraving and printing to begin printing a three-month supply of gasoline ration coupons, just in case they are needed, and has directed his staff to make contact with state governments concerning rationing preparations.

He said the system would not be ready for operation until March 1 as the earliest that past trends in gasoline supply and demand over the next six weeks would determine whether rationing is really needed.

Simon also issued new estimates indicating that the overall oil shortage expected because of the Arab oil embargo may be much less than previously thought.

Instead of the earlier estimated of a shortfall of 3.27 million barrels a day, or 16 per cent of demand, Simon said it now is appraised that the shortfall may reach 2.7 million barrels a day, 13 per cent.

But he said the pressure remains on gasoline because of the need to switch refinery production to other fuels.

Simon said the rationing system being developed now looks toward a basic ration averaging about 22 to 32 gallons of gasoline a month, with coupons to be distributed to every licensed driver over 18 years old.

But the ration would be increased or decreased in certain areas of the country to take account of differences in population density, availability of public transportation, and types of private driving which may be considered essential.

Simon said continued public co-operation in reducing gasoline use may yet avoid rationing.

"We can still lick this problem," he said.

But he said that in view of the uncertainties of both supply and demand, "prudence dictates that we place into position a flexible rationing program."

Simon said drivers even more certainly will face higher gasoline prices because of the sharp increase in the price of Arab oil and the likelihood that other world oil prices may also rise.

Simon also announced the issuance of a required law, of regulations to control the distribution of crude oil, aviation fuel, residual oil (a heavy fuel oil), petrochemical oil raw materials and "other" petroleum products.

They're delayed until Jan. 11, under another legal provision, issuing the allocation regulations on motor gasoline, propane gas, and middle distillate fuels, including heating oil and diesel fuel.

But Simon did announce that airlines would not see their fuel supplies cut as drastically as previously proposed.

He said the new regulations would allow major airlines to receive 95 per cent of the fuel quantities they used in 1972, instead of 85 per cent as previously proposed.

Oil Cutback Relaxed

Saudi Arabian Oil Minister Sheik Ahmed Zaki Yamani, centre, smiles Tuesday in Kuwait after announcing to newsmen that the Arab oil producing countries have decided to raise oil shipments to Japan and some European countries by 10 per cent in January. He said the reinzation of cutbacks will not apply to the United States and the Netherlands, who continue to support Israel. (AP Photo)

Egypt Plans War Again If Lands Not Restored

CAIRO (Reuter) — Egypt has warned it is prepared for another round of fighting if Israel does not withdraw from all occupied Arab territories.

The warning was made by War Minister Ahmed Ismail in a speech at a meeting here of Egyptian emigrants in Canada, the United States and Australia.

Gen. David Elazar, the Israeli chief-of-staff, said, meanwhile, that Israeli troops will remain on full alert.

Ismail said Wednesday night: "We are fully prepared to deal a second and third blow to Israel if it does not withdraw from all occupied Arab lands."

The war minister's warning comes as Egyptian and Israeli military representatives are meeting in Geneva to discuss troop disengagement at the canal front.

The Geneva Middle East conference decided during its first session to assign a military committee to discuss the separation of Arab and Israeli forces.

Elazar said in Tel Aviv that Israeli forces will remain on the alert because a breakdown in the talks might lead to renewed fighting.

Ismail said the Egyptian armed forces must be ready for fighting at any moment, regardless of any political talks.

Egypt, he said, has five strong bridgeheads in Sinai along the canal from Port Said to Suez, and three in the south.

The October battles, he said, shattered the legend of Israel's invincible army, produced new military strategy, enhanced national and Arab unity and broke the stalemate of the Middle East crisis.

Observers here believe that Ismail's remarks have laid further emphasis on the Egyptian stand that the Geneva military committee talks should produce quick and positive results so that the Middle East conference can resume its political work towards a settlement of the crisis.

In Geneva, a short meeting of military representatives marked the first attempt for almost a month to decide how to separate Egyptian and Israeli forces.

Wednesday night's meeting, held under the chairmanship of Gen. Ensio Siilasvuo, chairman of the UN Emergency Force in the Middle East, started just four hours after the Israeli delegates flew in from Tel Aviv.

It ended after 1½ hours with a brief announcement that the talks will restart Friday morning and that the two sides debated "principles of disengagement that will facilitate productive discussions in future meetings."

The talks were switched to Geneva after being abandoned Nov. 28 at Kilometre 101 of the Cairo-to-Suez highway.

Both sides are agreed that the first aim of the talks is to make the ceasefire effective and to prevent the gun battles which recently have erupted almost daily.

None of Hijackers Has Been Punished

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — At least 28 hijackers and other Palestinian terrorists have surrendered to Arab governments this year, but none of them has been punished so far.

The governments and the big Palestinian guerrilla groups now condemn terrorism, believing that it alienates foreign opinion and does no harm to Israel. But no Arab government has brought any of the terrorists to trial, and none of them has been turned over to the Palestine Liberation Organization for disciplinary action.

The Sudanese government has postponed at least five times the trial of eight Black September terrorists who killed the U.S. ambassador and two other diplomats last March at the Saudi Arabian Embassy in Khartoum.

The five Palestinian guerrillas who hijacked a Japan Air Lines jumbo jet July and blew it up in Libya have not been brought to trial despite Libyan strongman Moammar Khadafy's comment that he would chop off their hands.

A gunman who seized a number of hostages in an Athens hotel last August and obtained safe conduct to Kuwait dropped out of sight there, and it is assumed that he was freed.

Last September in Paris, five Palestinian gunmen stormed the Saudi Arabian Embassy, seized diplomats as hostages and finally surrendered in Kuwait. Kuwait announced that they were sent to a "fighting front" when the Arab-Israeli war broke out Oct. 6, and there has been no further word of them.

Four guerrillas who hijacked a KLM jumbo jet during a flight across the Middle East Nov. 25 surrendered two days later in Dubai, another Persian Gulf sheikdom. There has been no announcement of their fate.

Campbell Grant Heads Riding Map Revision

TORONTO (CP) — Premier William Davis has picked Mr. Justice Campbell Grant of the Ontario Supreme Court to head a three-man commission which will redraw Ontario's electoral map.

Members of the commission, to choose the new boundaries for 117 provincial constituencies, are Roderick Lewis, clerk of the legislature, and Dr. Robert Saunders, associate professor of political science at the University of Western Ontario.

"The commission is impowered to add up to eight seats to the 117-seat legislature but the number of seats in Northern Ontario must not be reduced.

Every effort will be made to provide for electoral districts with equal populations "as nearly equal population as is practical," Premier Davis said in a statement.

Nineteen Canadians Win Prizes

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Nineteen Canadians got belated Christmas presents that will last them an easy year in 1974, holding winning tickets on the first three horses in today's Irish Sweeps hurdle at Leopardstown, near Dublin.

Six Canadians—three from Ontario—held tickets on the Comedy of Errors, overwhelming favorite and eventual 7-4 on stand to collect £50,000 or about $115,825 according to the current value of the British pound.

Another four held tickets on Brendan's Road, the 15-to-1 longshot that finished second to England's champion hurdler, which went off at 5-to-4. They will collect £20,000 each or about $46,250.

Nine more held tickets on Captain Christy, winner of last year's race and a 5-to-2 choice almost before this year. A ticket on the third-place horse is worth £10,000 or about $23,125.

New Warden Named

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — Ross H. Duff, 51, a native of Regina, has been appointed warden of Collins Bay penitentiary, the Canadian Penitentiaries Service announced today.

Roads Block Canal

TEL AVIV (Reuter) — Three dirt roads, two of them Egyptian and one Israeli, have been built across the Suez canal, blocking the waterway, military sources said today.

More Bombs Explode

LONDON (Reuter) — Two more explosions echoed the central area of London Wednesday night and police warned that a bombing campaign blamed on Irish extremists may continue. One bomb exploded near the door of the Victoria Palace theatre just before midnight, another blast rocked the hall of a subway station in Chelsea about one mile away, but little damage was done and again no one was hurt.

House Prices to Rise

TORONTO (CP) — The resale price of the average house in Metropolitan Toronto will rise by about $6,000 next year because fewer new houses are being constructed, real estate officials say. The average resale price was $25,313 last year and $44,027 this year. Real estate officials predict it will climb to more than $50,000 in 1974.

Many Counterfeit Bills

TORONTO (CP) — A rash of counterfeit $50 bills has turned up in Ontario in the last six months, and some retail outlets are refusing to take $50 bills because the counterfeit ones are of such excellent quality they are hard to spot.

Europe's Markets Climb

LONDON (AP) — Europe's main stock markets recorded widespread gains today in the wake of the Wall Street improvement and the Arab decision to ease oil production cuts.

Shipyard on Strike

COLLINGWOOD, Ont. (CP) — Twenty-eight office and technical workers at Collingwood Shipyards Ltd. went on strike early today, setting up pickets lines about the plant.

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — Financier John C. Doyle, charged here with fraud and breach of trust, today failed to obtain an alteration in bail terms which confine him to Newfoundland.

Mekong Delta Rice Is Prize

SAIGON (AP) — Thousands of South Vietnamese troops swept across the lower Mekong Delta today in a drive to protect the rice harvest after government troops suffered nearly 150 casualties in an ambush.

Delayed field reports said a battalion of about 500 troops was put out of action in the Viet Cong attack Christmas Day. Military sources in Saigon said 18 men were killed, including both the battalion commander and his deputy; 62 were missing and 81 were wounded.

The reports said the Viet Cong had been stalking the government unit through the delta, and the attack 110 miles southwest of Saigon lasted only 15 minutes. The survivors fled to Vi Thanh, a provincial capital five miles away.

It was the worst government setback in the delta, South Vietnam's most productive rice region, in several months.

Military sources said 1,500 government reinforcements were moved into the region and fighting continued Wednesday. They said 25 Viet Cong and two more government soldiers were killed.

"The Viet Cong is trying to prevent the government from harvesting the crops," one source said. "It is a struggle for control of the rice crop."

All Teachers Accept Jan. 31 Resignation Date

TORONTO (CP) — School trustees and teachers in three areas where salary disputes have threatened to close schools have indicated acceptance of a proposal that would extend teacher resignation dates to Jan. 31, Education Minister Thomas Wells said Wednesday.

In a statement, Mr. Wells said the proposal was worked out by the government and the Ontario Teachers Federation (OTF).

"I am confident that during the next four weeks all parties will, through the normal bargaining process, be able to reach satisfactory settlement," Mr. Wells said.

"As a result, it appears that schools in those areas will be open Jan. 3 and that it will not be necessary to recall the legislature before the new year to deal with the situation."

A spokesman for the education ministry said the proposal to extend the resignation date to Jan. 31, to allow more bargaining time was worked out between the government and the OTF before being presented in the legislature Dec. 14.

At present, negotiations are continuing in 13 of the original 16 school jurisdictions which involves about 7,600 teachers and about 180,000 children, he said.

The spokesman said a contract has been reached and ratified between teachers and members of the Ontario County Roman Catholic separate school board.

The Carleton County board of education has also reached agreement with elementary school teachers which has been ratified, he said. And although the Essex County secondary school board has reached an agreement, it is not scheduled for ratification until Jan. 4.

The ministry spokesman said that in many cases the boards and teachers have asked for a provincial mediator.

No Grinch He're

It was Christmas as usual at the home of Don Foster on Emily Street in Belleville this year. The lights were on, Santa's workshop was open and the old men himself made a visit to the neighborhood on Christmas Eve. For years now the Fosters have decorated their home at 80 Emily with a gay Christmas display that has influenced and pleased people throughout Belleville.

Fire Guts Offices Of Picton Plant

Picton fire chief Leonard Tripp said the suspected cause of the blaze was a fault in electrical wiring.

The fire alarm was turned in by a Spring St. resident who saw smoke from the building at about 3 a.m.

Chief Tripp said firefighters confined the blaze to the area of the firm's offices and boiler room.

Damage was estimated at about $8,000.

Batawa Ski Club

Members as Workers Make the Difference

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

BATAWA — Skiing is more than a family affair in this small community north of Trenton.

It is a community and company interest that has kept it a driving concern for 14 years.

Last weekend provided idyllic weather for skiers bent on breaking in new equipment and sharpening form for another club season.

This is the first year that T-Bar will be used on a regular basis, although it was installed in time for last winter. Due to poor snow last year, says a club spokesman, "members who paid the membership to ski here took a beating."

The club features two runs, a beginners' slope and a trail. Bata Shoe also provides 1.500 acres for cross country skiing.

Volunteer effort in the club has been its savior over 14 years.

"With poor snow conditions last year, our club, like many private operations, could have been in serious trouble going into this season", said Serge Folschweiler, vice-president of the club.

But the 500 members who annually support the club with fees often volunteer weekends and summer holidays for improving facilities. The last major project — installation of the T-Bar — saved the club $19,000 in labor costs, cutting the over-all cost of the project in half.

Instructors are continually coming from club courses, providing help to novices. Despite the large number of staff required to man the club, only the four tow operators are paid.

Membership fees range from $25 — $15 for a season. Daily tow tickets are $4.50 without a membership.

For the membership fee comes unlimited use of the tow and all club facilities, including a chalet and skating rink, and reduced prices for instruction.

While the club has strong ties with its benefactor Bata Shoe, there is no restriction on membership. The club actively seeks members from nearby communities and supports recreation department programming.

Bob Preston and Belleville have arranged ski instruction programs to be held at Batawa. Busloads of students from both communities and Loyalist College will be travelling to Batawa throughout the winter.

If all goes well this year the club is looking into the purchase of a $30,000 snowmaker to stretch the ski season.

No More Santa From CFB

TRENTON— For the first time since the Canadian Armed Forces has had planes, armed forces personnel did not play Santa Claus in Canada's isolated northlands this year.

A spokesman for the base said there was no activity of this sort this year. With charter flights and commercial airlines opening up the north, the armed forces were relieved of the Yuletide responsibility.

In past years the armed forces either parachuted or landed — the plane's complement — supplies including Santa Claus bringing goodwill.

No Flights On Holiday

TRENTON — The armed forces base here virtually closed down over Christmas with only a skeleton staff providing services.

According to base protocol officer Capt. Bob Burke, no flights were to come in Christmas Day.

Standby crews for all departments were ready for duty but all spent the holiday at home. Only base operations, the nerve centre of CFB Trenton, had its regular complement of staff.

Rectory Will Reflect Early Life

PICTON — The rectory of the old Church of St. Mary Magdalene, recently purchased by Prince Edward County council, was the scene of a formal presentation on New Year's Day, 1861.

The Gazette records: "A deputation of 22 gentlemen, composing part of the membership of the congregation of St. Mary Magdalene's Church, Picton, waited upon the Rev. William Macaulay at the rectory, to present him with an address and a piece of silver plate as a grateful acknowledgement for his services as their minister for upwards of 30 years."

It was noted that the gift included a water jug, a goblet and a salver.

Today, the rambling brick rectory once occupied by Mr. Macaulay, is part of a land parcel adjacent to the Prince Edward County museum opened last summer. Until bought by council, it had been occupied as a private residence.

Although no definite plans for development of the rectory have been outlined by council it is known that the old house will be companion to the county museum and will reflect the theme of early-day life in the county.

The newspaper account of the presentation at the rectory, more than a century ago, termed the congregation's gift to Mr. Macaulay "a perfect bijoux."

It has been noted in The County, the book by Richard and Janet Lunn, that Mr. Macaulay commanded respect among his parishoners but did not readily win the affection of these pioneer settlers.

Fees were charged for pews and ranged from one pound, five shillings to 15 shillings a year. This prevented many early residents of Picton from attending the church as they could not afford the expense.

The church itself is now used as the county museum and has been completely renovated.

Sander Collapses in Freak Accident

STIRLING — A man and his son escaped injury early Boxing Day when a sanding truck collapsed in a freak accident on Highway 62 east of here.

Richard Crosby, 37, a Frankford trucker whose vehicle had been contracted for road sanding late Christmas night, was heading north near the Ridge Road, when the mishap occurred.

Provincial police said the frame on the 1953 vehicle split — apparently under the weight of sand — and the truck folded. The sand cascaded onto the cab, backing it and pinning Mr. Crosby behind the wheel.

He was extricated by his son and taken to Belleville General Hospital for examination but not admitted. Police said it took two tow trucks four hours to get the damaged truck off the highway.

Car Damaged In Blaze

Fire burned out the front of an automobile on Highway 62 near the Ridge Road east of Stirling Wednesday night.

Damage to the car, owned by Mark Street, 17, RR 1 Foxboro, was estimated at $400 by provincial police from Madoc.

Nuclear Resources

It is unfortunate that the Ontario government should anticipate nearly doubling its accelerated requirements in the nuclear power field.

Britain has its sights on United States equipment but will decide in January between it and the Canadian heavy water reactor of the type that has been proving so successful at Pickering

An Ontario delegation under Darcy McKeough has been in Britain promoting the latter but it appears it will be a close and go whether the British will decide in its favor.

Belleville Rotarians heard just how efficient is the Candu reactor from Hydro's public relations man at Pickering, Bill Kelly, a few weeks ago. They heard too of other developments using this equipment. Pickering produces enough electricity to supply 1,700,000 homes, and, as Mr. Kelly pointed out, the station is a major advance in Canada's efforts to produce electricity from nuclear energy at competitive costs.

He said that without nuclear power, by the year 1980 Hydro's annual consumption of imported fossil fuels would climb to the equivalent of 35 million tons of coal, costing $315,000,000 a year.

Canada has an excellent piece of equipment in the Candu reactor. In fact it is believed here to be the world's best. If that is the case, we should be letting the world know about it. There must be other market opportunities, besides Britain, among them the United States.

In passing it may be noted that Ontario companies have been doing some useful business in other spheres in Britain. Substantial payments to businesses in the province reportedly will result from a recent visit to London by representatives of ten manufacturers. Goods involved include packaging machinery, automatic vibrator feeders, pneumatic conveyors, synthetic marble, adhesives, and school furniture.

Speaking of Money

There was a time, long since gone, when money matters were as much a matter of personal privacy as anything else. Today things are different, with even the most important of our public figures being asked to declare their worth at every turn.

President Nixon for one has been letting the country know about his earnings and tax returns, a result of the clamor over Watergate, and in recent days Prime Minister Trudeau has been the subject of close — and what in an earlier time would have been regarded perhaps as impertinent — questions about his personal wealth.

In this case however, and contrary to what some have regarded of late as ill-humor, Mr. Trudeau was at his defensive and humorous best in telling his questioners in effect to get lost

Such answers as "Why don't you just assume I am rich . . . Let's say it's $100 million . . . Let's say I'm a hell of a rich man and the laws I make should be watched closely."

In the end nobody was any the wiser, which was precisely what the Prime Minister intended, and was his right.

It is really anyone's business (aside, alas, from the Government's, and provided a man has come by it honestly) what a man is worth?

A Throwback

No one questions the fact that Mayor Harvey McFarland of Picton is a man on the side of progress, but there was a nostalgic charm and a throwback to the past in his recent reference to the expansion program at Lake Ontario Cement.

He said it would mean increased employment for Prince Edward County . . . "at one of the most modern cement plants in the British Empire."

Well, what matter that the term is an anachronism. It still recalls a great period of history and ghosts of it remain today around the world, in outposts where full independence has not yet come.

Here in Belleville we even have a British Empire Day Show, every year, and where better to perpetuate the term but in this area of Loyalist traditions.

Economists Are Long on Theory and Short on Pessimism

By JOHN D. HARBRON
Foreign Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

Economists has been called "the dismal science" almost from the point in history (mid-eighteenth century) when Adam Smith the father of economics outlined its basic principles.

"Dismal" presumably because economists record or, commentatively on downturns, economic crises, depressions and recessions. So far few if any have been good prophets about the future direction of our economies or have even basic cures which work for the increasingly complex ills besetting capitalistic and Communist economies.

In short economists as a professional breed often have been failures as well as dismal,even though they engage in solitaire wheel-spinning, book writing, researching and where Canadian cows of friends are concerned, a $50,000 talkathon at our expense just concluded near Montreal.

The latter junket not unlike the former annual gathering of the armed forces padres at the Canadian National Exhibition so they would be nkarp to Toronto golf courses, was under the auspices of the Economic Council of Canada.

There is not a single one of the economists in attendance who this reviewer has known personally for many years who could not have said what he did in the comfy one-way by being asked over the telephone, or better still over lunch.

And yet with all the international economic crises we have had since 1967 beginning with the devaluation of the British pound, down to the energy crisis, I don't know of a single international economist of repute who saw them coming the way they did. Imagine doctors with a diagnostic batting average like that!

In Western governments the economist came into his own with such events as the late President Roosevelt's New Deal, our own wartime control agencies like the Wartime Prices and Trade Board, and in Britain in the proliferating wartime ministries which took new but rarely smaller shape in the postwar Labor governments.

The British Labor party relied heavily on economist Thomas Balogh a Hungarian refugee to British who gave prime ministers Attlee and Wilson continued bad advice on how far British socialists should go in nationalizing major portions of the British economy.

Successive Tory governments spent a good deal of valuable time trying to de-nationalize industry and recouping the international business they had lost while the faithful economist moved upwards to the House of Lords as Lord Balogh.

I don't know about all those economists within and without the multinational corporations? Where have they been the last few months before the lights started to go out again all over the world?

Closer to home it seems our Economic Council of Canada has a good deal to answer for in omitted or forgotten economic expertise to government and the nation.

Its coterie of high-level and highly-paid economists have yet time to discover the energy crisis. Why have they done nothing to define that famous and still-elusive "industrial strategy" for Canada? When will they produce a study in its own right on the foreign investment question which has produced a spate of concerned and angry academic studies on the question of foreign ownership and multinational corporate power in Canada?

Where the Economic Council of Canada is concerned, add the word arcane to their recent publishing interests, even if dismal and inaccurate cannot be entirely laid at their door in their somewhat self-perpetuating advisory role.

"Now suppose you tell us more about how your secretary accidentally erased your tax records"

Are 'Conflict' Guidelines Too Free and Easy?

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — In the volatile stock market, financier Michael Stevens, a Toronto area Conservative MP, has said, fortunes have been made and lost overnight in oil company shares.

Which raises, he has gone on, the question of conflict of interest in those inner government corridors where may be economic decisions are made.

There is a possibility of any leaks of "insider" information, he has asked.

Sinclair Stevens, characteristically discreet, has made no suggestions or even wondered if there have been any leaks related market killings made.

He has gone no further than to ask whether under the rules, the way the parliamentarily game currently is played, it might be theoretically possible.

In a statement in the Commons some months ago, Prime Minister Trudeau acknowledged the possible peril of a member of cabinet using his insider position for his own personal financial advantage.

And taking potentially preventive action, he set down conflict of interest guidelines for his cabinet.

But he stopped well short of demanding full disclosure by himself and his ministers of their holdings and net worth as required by Premiers William Davis of Ontario and Peter Lougheed of Alberta of members of their cabinets.

Instead, he offered his ministers a choice of two types of trust arrangements for their assets. They could put their holdings in a static or "frozen" trust, involving trustees to neither buy nor sell.

Or they might choose a more flexible, or "blind" trust, with the trustee given the authority to trade, buying or selling the holdings with consultation forbidden.

A further guideline directed the wives and dependent children of the ministers to follow the pattern, if not the precise letter of the rules.

Under a "frozen" trust a minister would be prevented from trading stock on the basis of insider cabinet information, but it would still be possible for him to act in a number of ways to enhance the value of his holdings without buying or selling a single share.

Under the "blind" trust, while the minister might not know exactly what market assets he held, he would be reasonably safe in taking it for granted that any sane trustee would not sell a good stock, moving upward as a result of some government's economic decision, but might be counted on to dump it in anticipation of a decline.

All of which leaves Prime Minister Trudeau's conflict of interest guidelines far too free and easy in the eyes of both the Conservatives and New Democrats.

Conservative Leader Stanfield has gone so far as to say that the "frozen" trust would be useless without full disclosure of assets.

The "blind" trust, he has conceded, while not eliminating it, does reduce the conflict of interest peril to a minimum.

Both Mr. Stanfield and David Lewis have demanded full disclosure by the Prime Minister and cabinet of their assets, the NDP leader going a step further to require it to cover all parliamentarians, MPs and Senators.

The Prime Minister is on the record that he sees no reason why he should publicly reveal his holdings and their value.

Son of a wealthy Quebec businessman with involvement in the oil industry, the Prime Minister is generally believed to be one of the several millionaires in the Liberal cabinet.

The one millionaire who stands out above the rest is cabinet's wealthiest member. Defence Minister James Richardson son has said that nearly six years ago when joining the Liberal cabinet he put all his holdings in what amounted to a "blind" trust and divested himself of all his corporate directorships.

Few other members of cabinet have made any significant disclosures, though both transport Minister Jean Marchand and Postmaster General Andre Ouellet have said their only assets are their homes.

As good as the word, both Opposition leaders are on the record with disclosures of personal worth.

Mr. Stanfield has revealed holdings of stocks and other securities worth $750,000, all long since in a "blind" trust.

Mr. Lewis has disclosed he holds about $80,000 in stocks and bonds now in the hands of an investment counsellor but available for "blind" trusteeship.

The Techniques of Energy Economy

By VINCENT EGAN
Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

In heating your home, just as in driving your car, there are several techniques which will help you to cut down on the energy you use.

Apply themand you'll be conserving energy, for the good of the country—and saving money for the good of your own budget.

The first major objective should be to ensure that your home-heating equipment is functioning as efficiently as possible. The federal department of mines, energy and resources offers these suggestions:

—Call in an expert at least once a year to inspect and clean your heating equipment.

—Replace or clean filters regularly (at least once a month)

—Clean away the dust from registers and ducts.

—Close registers in unused rooms.

—Close doors to unused rooms.

—Insulate heating ducts that pass through areas of the house that don't need heat.

Second, prevent the loss of heat wherever you can. You pay for the heat that your equipment generates, so keep as much of it inside the house as possible.

—Use storm doors and windows.

—Open doors only when necessary, and as briefly as possible. Try to use doors that are away from prevailing winds.

—Apply weatherstripping around loosely fitting storm doors and windows.

—Lock windows to achieve a better seal.

—If windows are open, then close interior doors.

—Close curtains or draperies at night to conserve heat, and make sure they are open on sunny days to bring in solar heat.

—Use the kitchen exhaust fan only when necessary.

—When the fireplace is not in use, close the damper tightly.

—Once you have investigated three two main areas, there are still a few ways of getting greater comfort.

Using humidifiers is one example. An increase in humidity will offset a decline in temperature.

Another possibility is furniture moving. A chair in the hall with or a window, you can probably find greater warmth by moving it inwards.

Use the flame of a candle to help you track down cracks that are allowing cold air to come into the house—then cover up the cracks.

A final suggestion: Experiment with the thermostat to discover the setting that best combines comfort and economy. It may be lower than you think.

"Come unto me, all ye that labour and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest."-Matthew 11:28

The pulpit and the pew must always remember that the object of the gospel and the purpose of the church is not to put on a beautiful service, but to make the gift of Salvation simple for the lost and give strength to the saved. Preach Christ and give the invitation for the weary soul to receive Him. Be a real part of the service. Pray for your pastor as he preaches, and for the people in their need.

A Year's Reflection

By DON O'HEARN
Queen's Park Bureau
Thomson News Service

TORONTO — At this time of good cheer, a word for those many critics who have sent along their feelings over the year.

Let it be said that no matter whether they are opposed they are appreciated.

And they are valuable. For none of us has omnipotence, and the writer certainly knows it.

We all can learn from each other, and pro and con discourse is one of the great strengths of our system.

By far the greatest number of critics have been from the world of education.

Teachers have not taken kindly to many of our remarks.

To this profession I would say at this time that the comment I have made has hopefully been from a detached viewpoint, in the sense it is the opportunity of us can be really detached.

Perhaps I have been wrong.

Many indeed have written to say that their two months off really is not a vacation but is spent following university courses or other improvement programs.

Or that their 12 "professional development" days a year are compulsory.

This may be so. But on my personal observation and experience it isn't.

But if it really isn't, some convincing evidence would be welcome.

For the teaching world is made up of many fine people. But I do believe it has built a reputation as a very self-centered and selfish group.

And if I am wrong, and have been incorrectly interpreting for you, then by all means give me the ammunition to correct it.

Then there are other people: some of whom have pointed out errors which have been corrected and others who themselves have been mistaken only in error.

In this latter group there are those who have objected to the favorable comment I have made on the increase in indemnities for members.

These people rage at what they declare to be 10 per cent to 20 per cent boosts in pay voted for themselves by the members.

They ignore that this if the first raise these members have had in six years. And if properly applied the increase would be from one and a half per cent to a bit better than three per cent.

Let me only say that it is humanly impossible to be completely knowledgeable and fair.

When I am not I appreciate hearing about it as much as any incidental compliments that may come along.

And happy holiday.

Board Representation

Brockville Recorder and Times

For more than a month there has been a law in Ontario requiring employees to be represented on boards of directors of companies to have a majority of Canadians on the board of directors. A survey made by a Toronto newspaper of 29 foreign controlled firms in that area revealed that 18 had either made changes to comply with the law or had the required majority before the statute came into effect.

But not all firms are ready to go along with the law. A minority have no intention of complying. One such firm, although its management said the company hasn't any plans to have its board Canadian said the law won't make "any major difference as far as we're concerned."

The Ontario law, which the federal government has announced it intends to adopt as a national law, was passed in order to give some real effect to the concept of good corporate citizenship. Its supposed that any member of a board of directors, composed entirely of non-Canadians, would be unlikely to objections to a corporate action that was contrary to Canadian interests. The possibility of that happening increases greatly when Canadians are in a majority.

Truckers Threaten Boycott

TORONTO (CP) — Metropolitan Toronto council is faced with the prospect of a snow removal boycott by about 250 truckers unless it agrees to pay them an extra $3 an hour—an increase that would add $30,000 to $80,000 to the annual snow removal cost.

The president of the Ontario Haulers' Association says the association will continue to direct operations in future storms if the city continues to use non-licensed trucks to haul away snow as he says it did last week.

When eight to nine inches of snow covered the Toronto area a week ago, the association refused to supply trucks to remove the snow unless it got the rate increase. However, it later agreed to remove the snow and to continue negotiations on a retroactive basis.

In an interview Wednesday, Murray Browning, director of Metro road operations, said the increase to $13 an hour from $10 an hour sought by the truckers, also would mean the removal of last week's snow fall might cost an additional $40,000.

He said the snow removal budget for 1974 is about $550,000.

Kohoutek Swinging Round Sun

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — Comet Kohoutek makes its closest approach to the sun Friday as it begins a swing which will take it back out of the solar system.

Kohoutek is to reach perihelion, or the low point in its orbit, at 5:24 a.m. EST. At that time, it will be only 13.24 million miles from the sun and travelling at 231,400 miles an hour.

The comet will go around the sun, but it will not dip behind the sun as seen from earth. Because of the angle of the comet to the relation to the earth, it will appear just to loop around the top of the sun before heading back out into space.

Dr. William Donnelsman, head of Project Kohoutek at the Smithsonian Astrophysical Observatory, says that after perihelion the comet should re-emerge to earth viewers in the nighttime sky.

"However, comets are notoriously unpredictable," Dr. Deutschman says, noting that some have disappeared completely at perihelion or have broken up into smaller units.

The latest observations indicate that if the weather is cooperative Kohoutek will be best viewed between Jan. 10 and 12, when its tail should be spotted easily. It should be visible in the southwest sky at that time, 20 to 30 degrees above the horizon.

Toward the end of January, Kohoutek will become fainter and its tail shorter as it moves into deep space.

If viewers miss Kohoutek during January, then they've missed their last chance to see it. The comet won't return again for another 70,000 years.

Eaton Gets Russians' Plaudits

CLEVELAND (Reuter) — Industrialist Cyrus Eaton, born 95 years ago today in Pugwash, N.S., has received a telegram of congratulations from Soviet leaders expressing support for his efforts to improve relations between the Soviet Union and the United States.

Eaton, who has long advocated improved relations between the United States and Communist countries, was told in the telegram:

"Everyone in the Soviet Union loves you and appreciates your activities to improve relations between the U.S.S.R. and the U.S.A.

"Your efforts to encourage understanding and friendship among all the people of the world is strongly approved."

The telegram, signed by President Nikolai Podgorny, Prime Minister Alexei Kosygin and Leonid Brezhnev, Communist party leader, was presented to Eaton by the mayor of Cleveland, Ralph C. Perk, at a ceremony here.

Perk also proclaimed this Cyrus Eaton Day and presented him with a special key to the city.

At the height of the cold war, Eaton won a low voice among American businessmen in calling for improved relations between East and West.

At the request of Albert Einstein and the late British philosopher, Bertrand Russell, he agreed to sponsor the Pugwash conferences of nuclear science to awaken statesmen of the world to the grave hazards of the atomic bomb to all.

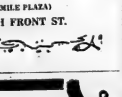
PM Visits Wife, Son

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau spent Boxing Day visiting his wife Margaret and their new-born son at Ottawa Civic hospital.

Mrs. Trudeau gave birth Tuesday to a seven-pound, nine-ounce boy, the second Christmas baby for the Trudeaus. Two-year-old Justin was born on Christmas day, 1971.

A spokesman from the prime minister's office said both Mrs. Trudeau and the baby are doing well, but he could not give any details on the baby's name or when Mrs. Trudeau is expected to return home.



British Prime Minister Edward Heath congratulated Prime Minister Trudeau on the birth of his second son with a telegram Wednesday.

"My congratulations on your second Christmas baby," the telegram read.

Prime Minister Trudeau, now the proud father of two sons, told reporters he is not disappointed about not giving Justin a sister for Christmas.

"I was very happy to have a boy."

Two - year - old Justin Trudeau has a word with Prime Minister Trudeau as the two arrive at Ottawa Civic Hospital Tuesday evening. The prime minister's wife Margaret gave birth to the couple's second child at 7:21 Christmas morning. It is a healthy, seven-pound, nine-ounce boy. (CP Photo)

Father Went to Cairo to Fight, His Son to Help Stop Fighting

CAIRO (CP) — As the young infantry lieutenant was preparing to leave Winnipeg for United Nations duties in the Middle East, a letter arrived from his father in Thunder Bay, Ont.

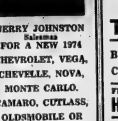
It recalls that it said: "Ha! I've got a letter. I went to Cairo to win the war. Now you are going to win the peace."

Lieut. Anthony Stasiewicz says there was a shootout with the letter dated 30 years earlier, almost to the day—the military travel papers under which the elder Stasiewicz left Cairo with the 2nd Polish Corps for the Allied campaign in Italy.

"My father's whole family was deported to Siberia in 1939 after the Russians invaded Poland," the 25-year-old lieutenant recalled. He escaped and made his way through Russia, Turkey and into the Middle East, where he joined the 2nd Polish Corps and fought under Gen. Montgomery.

"He left Cairo Dec. 2, 1943, for Italy. I left Winnipeg for the Middle East Nov. 30—30 years later."

Stasiewicz, born in England and taken to Canada as an infant, is getting a chance to use the Polish language he learned as a child in Thunder Bay and along to through economics studies at the University of Toronto and marriage to a Polish-Canadian girl, Halina.



He is the official Canadian liaison with a detachment of Polish troops whose tested encampment sits next to the Canadian detachment's at a former race track on the outskirts of Cairo.

For a junior officer fresh from training courses, Stasiewicz finds himself in exalted company. Discussions between the most senior Canadian and Polish officers about day-to-day problems at the camp and smoothing the way at mess receptions for members of the two contingents.

"The Poles have their own English interpreters and at least five of them speak English quite fluently," he said. "But there's always some liaison work for me at all levels, including carrying translation for people at UN headquarters after the word got around that I was here."

One of his most difficult problems has been dealing with the highly centralized Polish army structure. Virtually every decision is referred up the line to a senior officer, while the counterpart Canadian decision may have been taken by a captain or even a sergeant.

Libyan Women Gaining Equality

TRIPOLI (AP) — Despite Col. Moammar Khadafy's declaration that women are biologically inferior to men, Libyan women have made some gains under his rule.

After centuries of exclusion from Libya's male-dominated society, women now have the right to vote, choose their husbands, get educated and find jobs. But the process has been slow.

"It's those traditional male attitudes that want to keep women at home that we still have to struggle with," said one prominent Libyan woman.

Khadafy, who heads Libya's revolutionary regime, was named antiterrorist of the month by an Italian women's magazine after he told a group of women in Cairo last summer that if women considered themselves biological equals of men, "no one should complain if we ask a pregnant woman to parachute."

When asked by this correspondent to elaborate on his views of women's alleged inferiority, Khadafy demurred. He would only say: "It is against women's nature to do hard work in factories or mines. Women are more suited to think, write and talk."

Careful not to criticize their country's leader, Libyan women say Khadafy merely voices the traditional views of most Moslem men.

Khadafy believes in women's progress but worries about neglect of home and children," said Mrs. Khadija el-Jahmi, newly appointed leader of the Women's Association in Tripoli.

"Some men say they worry about woman losing all her traditional values if she goes out into the world.

"But what they really mean is that they want her to stay home and cook and have babies. It is the same the world over. But we are determined to get educated and find jobs."

About 95 per nent of Libyan women are still illiterate, as are about 82 per cent of the men.

Khadafy's Revolutionary Command Council, which came to power in 1969, has passed laws forbidding child brides and arranged marriages against a girl's wish. If a woman wants to marry a man her family does not approve of, she may take the matter to court. However, few young women challenge parental authority.

Khadafy, who has been married twice, stresses the importance of the family as the backbone of society and tries to discourage divorce.

Couples contemplating legal separation must take a 100-day "cooling off" period before they can start official divorce proceedings.

In some ways, Moslem women have been more liberated than their Western sisters. A woman with independent means retains exclusive ownership of her property after marriage and can take everything with her in case of divorce.

"Woman can only be free if she has her own money," said Mrs. Jahmi, adding that education is the key to improving their lives.

Successful Living

Look On the Funny Side

I have a friend who says that when a problem comes up that he simply cannot see any way to solve, he has learned to see the funny side. Then usually things don't turn out as badly as he thought.

Quite a thought! And an especially good one when the problem relates to a disagreement between two people who are married to each other.

How often it is better to laugh than to cry over spilt milk, or small disasters in marriage partners can see the funny side, together, they can turn tension into triumph. And add tremendously to the serenity of life together.

The children will see their good cheer and learn from it that this is a good world to be in.

Dear Doris: Could you tell me if there are any legal requirements, when one puts a fence between properties?

We have three acres. The dog uses the neighbor's lawn, sometimes very irritating through summer. We are good neighbors now, and I wish to keep it so.

Dog Lover.

Dear Dog Lover: This time a fence is not a separator but a means of keeping friendship. I'd suggest you first tell your neighbor of your intentions, and why.

Are you asking your neighbor to share the cost of the fence with you? If so, it goes right on thepropertY line. If you plan to own your fence outright, put it inside your property.

There might just be local bylaws governing the erection of fences where you are, so consult your town clerk before going into it.

Dear Doris: In one of your columns you asked your readers for letters regarding the passing of the bride's slipper for a collection.

In our part of the country, Southern Alberta, we pass the hat for the bride and groom. This is usually done while the bride and groom are changing into their going-away clothes, any time between 10 o'clock and midnight.

The hat is taken around by the groom's best man or by some of his friends.

Wanting To Help.

Dear Wanting: A nice variation of the money-collection routine and we are glad to hear about it. The Bride's Mother, who enquired before, lives in Saskatchewan.

Now can we hear what happens in some other parts of Canada - - Newfoundland, perhaps, or New Brunswick, or Manitobe?

(Please make letters to Doris, in care of this newspaper, as brief as possible - - not more than two pages. And remember that stamped envelope.)

Ann Landers Looks Like Ann, Gives Advice, Too

Dear Ann Landers: I have a problem. I look like you. People are always stopping me on the street, in the supermarket, any place at all, and asking me for advice. I used to say, "I'm not Ann Landers. You are mistaken," but lately I've decided that maybe I can do some good (besides, they look so disappointed when I tell them I'm not you). So, I've been giving little advice if the problem isn't too complicated

Almost everyone thanks me and I see no harm in it. (One lady kissed me.) I should also tell you, Ann, that I've signed a few autographs when there was no way out of it.

Please say if it is O.K. I'm beginning to feel guilty.—Your Carbon Copy In Houston

Dear Copy: It is not O.K. Cut it out. And now if you'll move over, the real Ann Landers would like to stand up and say something to her readers:

If you see me on the street, or any place at all, please say hello. But don't ask for advice. I don't counsel on the hoof. It isn't fair to you or to me.

Dear Ann Landers: I am getting a divorce soon. My husband was physically abusive from the first month of our marriage. This does not excuse what I did, however. I need your advice.

Three years ago I started to see a married man. (No lecture, please.) I had two children with him. Now, the real problem. My husband loves these kids and has no idea they aren't his. I have offered to forego support and alimony if he will give me complete custody. He has refused, saying he wants to support his children.

I have changed my whole life and am behaving like a model mother. I am not seeing anyone but my conscience is bothering me. I tell it is morally wrong to let a man support children that are not his. For this reason I think I should tell him. Do you agree?—Now a Woman in Indiana

Dear Woman: I have a nagging suspicion that the real reason you want to tell your husband the children aren't his is to be still give you full custody.

Sorry, Lady, according to law the kids are his. And they may be his, biologically, as well. Keep quiet and settle for joint custody. Pass up the alimony if you want to, but don't try to cut this man off from the children. Kids need all the love they can get—from any place they can't.

Get It

Dear Ann Landers: You hit it right on the head when you told the man who complained that his wife was a telephone yakker, "Maybe you don't talk to her and she feels the need to talk to somebody."

I married a non-communicator. On the rare occasion that he feels like talking, he has the nerve to be asking such stupid questions. Our conversation is always end up in a terrific ring unrest.

Women have more of a need to talk than men, especially the cooped up housewife with young child ren. The telephone can be her link with the outside world. He is out among people during the day so it's easy to see why he's content to read the paper and watch TV at night. If there's no conversation it's O.K. with him.

So, pardon me, Ann, if I seem to feel a telephone-aholic.—Sh Made I Mo One

Dear One: You and thousands of others. Alexander Graham Bell probably didn't know it but his invention serves as "therapy" for a large segment of society. Thank you for saying it.

Leftover Turkey? Here's What to Do

The freezer is now over flowing with packages of turkey. If creamed turkey on toast points begins to lose its appeal after a while, try these recipes. Recipe with Cook's Choice which lets you use some imagination in choosing ingredients.

Cook's Choice

3 tomatoes (in ¼" slices) or canned tomatoes
1½ cups cooked navy beans
2 cups cooked turkey slices
1 green pepper (optional)
1 (10 oz.) can potatoes or 4 boiled potatoes
1 (10 oz.) can cream of tomato soup
1 (10 oz.) can cream of celery soup
¼ teaspoon poultry seasoning
¼ teaspoon chili powder
¼ teaspoon seasoning salt pinch of sage

Arrange layer of tomatoes in bottom of lightly greased casserole (approximately 2 quart size). Top with layer of beans and green pepper sliced in ¼ inch strips of circles. Blend tomato and celery soups with seasonings. Pour about ½ cup of soup over beans. Arrange turkey pieces in layer on top of beans. Cover with ½ of remaining soup. Slice potatoes ¼ inch thick and arrange in layer on turkey and cover with rest of soup. Bake in moderate oven 350F. for 30 minutes or until bubbling hot. Yields 6 servings.

Sweet and Sour Pineapple Turkey

2½ cups cooked turkey pieces
1 cup pancake mix
1 cup water
dash of garlic powder

Combine pancake mix and water and stir just enough to blend. Add garlic powder and let stand, covered, in refrigerator about 1 hour. Dip pieces of cooked turkey into batter. Drain a few seconds and then fry in shallow fat fat until golden brown, about 5 minutes. Serve with the following Sweet and Sour sauce and fluffy cooked rice. Yields 5 to 6 servings.

Sweet and Sour Pineapple Sauce

1 cup water
1 cup vinegar
1 can (19 ounces) pineapple cubes
one third cup sugar
1 ½ cups tomato juice
dash of garlic powder
1 green pepper, sliced in thin strips
¼ cup finely shredded
4 tablespoons cornstarch

salt and pepper to taste

Combine water, syrup drained from pineapple (adding water if necessary to measure 1 cup) and vinegar. Bring to boil and add pineapple pieces and all but ½ cup of tomato juice. Mix together remaining ½ cup of tomato juice, cornstarch and garlic powder and add gradually to hot liquid, stirring constantly until thickened. Stir in sugar, then add cabbage and green pepper. Cook until cabbage becomes slightly transparent but not long enough for green pepper to become soft. Season to taste with salt and pepper. If sauce becomes too thick, thin with a little water.

Turkey Custard Loaf

2½ cups coarsely ground cooked turkey
1½ cups fine bread crumbs
¾ cups turkey broth
½ cup diced celery
1 tablespoon finely chopped fresh or 1 teaspoon dried parsley
2 teaspoons grated onion
½ teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
2 teaspoons lemon juice
4 large or 6 small eggs, beaten
1 cup evaporated milk

Combine turkey, crumbs, broth, celery, parsley and seasonings. Add beaten eggs and stir in milk. Mix lightly but thoroughly. Place in well greased loaf pan 8" x 3" x 3". Set in pan of hot water and bake in moderate oven 350F about 1 hour or until loaf is firm and top is delicately browned. Serves 6.

Turkey Divan

6 to 8 thin slices cooked turkey
1 lb. broccoli
2 tablespoons butter
5 tablespoons flour
¼ cup sherry
¼ teaspoons oregano
½ cup grated process or shredder cheese
salt and pepper to taste

Cook broccoli until just tender in boiling salted water. Drain and arrange evenly in large shallow baking dish. Arrange thinly sliced turkey in layers over broccoli. Make medium thick sauce of the broth, butter and flour. Adjust seasonings to taste. When sauce is smooth and thick, stir in wine until flavour and consistency is right. Pour sauce evenly over turkey, sprinkle top with grated cheese and dust lightly with paprika. Place in moderately hot oven, 375 F. for 15 to 20 minutes or until bubbly hot.

Hawaiian Turkey

2 egg yolks, beaten
½ cup water
4 teaspoons soy sauce, divided
½ cup chipunpose flour
½ teaspoon salt
3 cups diced cooked turkey
oil for deep fat frying
1 can pineapple chunks
1 tablespoon cornstarch
½ cup turkey broth
2 tablespoons sugar
1 teaspoon onion powder
½ teaspoon ground ginger
¼ teaspoon white pepper
1 package (7 ounces) Chinese pea pods, thawed

In a medium bowl, combine egg yolks, water and 1 teaspoon soy sauce; mix well. Stir in flour and salt. Dip a few bits of turkey at a time into batter. Fry in deep fat, preheated to 350F. until golden. Drain on paper towels; keep warm.

Drain pineapple, reserving liquid (about 1 cup) and in small saucepan, combine pineapple liquid with corn starch; mix well. Blend in broth, sugar, onion powder, ginger, pepper and remaining 3 teaspoons soy sauce. Cook and stir until thickened. Add reserved pineapple chunks and pea pods; cover and simmer 2 minutes. Spoon into a serving dish and top with fried turkey chunks. Serves 6 to 8.

Herbed Casserole

2 packages frozen chopped broccoli, cooked and 4 cups diced cooked turkey
2 cans (10½ounces each) condensed cream of mushroom soup
1½ cups milk
2 tablespoons diced pimento
1 tablespoon instant minced onion
1 teaspoon ground sage one sixteen teaspoon ground red pepper

Arrange layers of half of the broccoli, noodles and turkey in a buttered 2½quart casserole.

In a small bowl, combine soup with remaining ingredients, mixing well. Pour half of the soup mixture over turkey. Layer remaining broccoli, noodles and turkey in casserole. Pour, remaining soup mixture over all. Bake, uncovered in a preheated 350F. oven until bubbly.

Serves 8 with a hearty main dish.

Turkey Souffle

2 cups finely diced cooked turkey
1 cup cooked rice
1 cup soft bread crumbs
1 cup turkey or chicken broth
2 teaspoons poultry seasoning
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon onion powder
¼ teaspoon ground black pepper
¼ teaspoon garlic powder
4 eggs, separated

In a large bowl, combine all ingredients except eggs. Beat egg yolks until thick and lemon colored. Blend into turkey mixture. Beat egg whites until they stand in soft peaks. Fold into the turkey mixture. Turn into an ungreased 6 cup casserole. Place in a pan of hot water. Bake in 325F. oven 1¼ hours or until done. Serves 6.

Baked Hot Turkey Sandwich

4 toast slices
Sliced cold turkey
2 cups cheese sauce
Paprika

4 slices bacon, cooked until crisp and crumbled
Tomato sections or parsley

In a greased 10 by 6 inch baking dish, arrange toast and cover each slice with turkey. Add a pinch of mustard to the cheese sauce and pour over turkey. Sprinkle with paprika.

Bake at 425 to 450 degrees until golden brown on top. Sprinkle with crumbled bacon and serve garnished with tomato or parsley. Makes 4 servings.

Turkey Oriental

margarine
1 medium onion, sliced
1 medium green pepper seeded and sliced
1¼ cups boiling water
2 chicken bouillon cubes
3 cups sliced celery
1 tablespoon soy sauce
2 to 3 cups chunks of leftover turkey
½ small can sliced 2 tablespoons corn starch
½ cup chopped cashews or chow mein noodles
2 ½ cups hot cooked rice

Both Labor and Conservatives Fear Ire of British Voters

LONDON (CP) — The probability of a British general election in 1974 looms after a year in which both major parties were severely jolted by a restive and apparently disillusioned electorate.

Neither Prime Minister Edward Heath's Conservatives nor the opposition Labor party are seen by observers as eager to face an election in the current mood of gathering gloom, although it must under law come before June, 1975. Most observers are convinced, however, that Heath would not risk the charge of clinging to power by delaying beyond 1974, and as the worsening economic situation gripped the country there was widespread speculation on a March election.

Harold Wilson's Labor party, which had long been riding the crest of public support reflected in a succession of keyenable public opinion polls, suffered the worst setbacks in 1973, failing to gain ground in a series of by-elections within its ranks.

On the other hand, the Conservatives took the brunt of powerful unions over public anger generated by [illegible] over pay and [illegible] strikes that, many would say, were under the law of the land. A spreed union unrest and the lightning energy crisis.

In this mood of disenchantment with the traditional parties, the Liberals, the little Liberal party had a year of spectacular gains although the public disfavored Thorpe's personal leadership. Thorpe's personal [illegible] the possibility of a Liberal government sweeping from a general election.

At the heart of the political drama was the government's confrontation with a society [illegible] powerful unions over wages. Heath pledging that he would not break that principle of Phase 3 of the anti-inflation program to meet [illegible] demands. As a whole range of vital workers became increasingly militant, the main attention was focused on the coal miners, whose overtime ban had already cut production by 10 per cent in the midst of the oil shortage.

As that crunch approached, another disadvantage for Heath was the background of [illegible] public resentment against him for having taken Britain into the European Common Market last New Year's Day, a development [illegible] for inflation, and other ills.

Nevertheless, as observers noted, both their predictions of black days of inflation, strikes and economic chaos ahead, they were evidence of a public swing in support of the government, a tradition that invariably occurs in Britain in time of national crisis.

This added to speculation that Heath might be tempted to call an early election on the issue of who runs Britain — the government or the unions.

Wilson has demanded an election, on what he terms the wide range of Tory government policies, but his party's showing in by-elections seems to have significantly waned. There were background complaints that Labor's leadership, like Heath's, is tired and overworked.

MEMO FROM HELEN GAGEN

CONSUMER ADVISOR
MIRACLE FOOD MART
75 REXDALE BLVD.,
REXDALE, ONTARIO M9W 1P2

ENJOY PARTIES BUT WATCH PENNIES

By all means entertain at this festive season, but remember that food needn't be extravagant to make a party.

Whether your plan an open house, buffet or sit-down dinner to mark this special holiday week, depend on just a few well-chosen foods, served with imagination and with warm hospitality.

Open house, for instance, can feature just a bowl of punch, a cheese tray, fruits, and perhaps as one special touch, chilled shrimps with cocktail sauce. To be a little more elaborate, add a home-made pate with crackers, and slay but sausage rolls. Of course, you'll also have on hand a plate of Christmas cake, small cakes and cookies.

To turn your open house plan into a buffet, just add a casserole or piece of glazed ham, salad, hot bread and coffee. The same additions would take care of a "sit-down" party where more guests come for appetizers and stay for a buffet, others come only for appetizers, and still others just for dinner.

Most important of all, be sure to check all holiday foods on hand — including gifts and leftovers — and incorporate them in your menus before you plan your shopping.

My best wishes for a happy, healthy and satisfying New Year.

Helen Gagen

CP News Roundup

Nixon Flies United

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (AP) — President Nixon is on vacation from today after a commercial airliner flight.

The president secretly boarded United Air Lines Flight 55 before other passengers Wednesday at Washington's Dulles International Airport. He took a seat in the first-class section, surrounded by Secret Service agents.

During the flight to Los Angeles en route to the Western White House at San Clemente, Calif., he strolled the aisles of the plane, talking to passengers and signing autographs.

Gerald Warren, assistant White House press secretary, who didn't announce the president's departure to reporters until after the flight was airborne, said Nixon took a commercial flight "to set an example for the American public" during the energy crisis.

Warren said the trip was kept secret for security reasons.

On previous trips from Washington to the Western White House, the presidential entourage has used two government-owned Boeing 707s. The jets and helicopters used to ferry the presidential party to and from airports consumed about 58,000 gallons of jet fuel at a round-trip cost to the government of up to $11,620, by White House estimates.

The presidential party of 25 was among 133 passengers aboard the three-engine DC-10. The plane can carry 222 passengers.

Mao 80

TOKYO (AP) — The 80th birthday of Chinese Communist party chairman Mao Tse-tung passed Wednesday with no mention by the official Chinese news agency.

The absence of public celebration on his birthday is Mao's own wish, Japanese correspondents in Peking reported that the chairman has an apparent good health after eight decades, including more than 50 years of frequent personal privation, political struggle and arduous work.

Jurist Dies

OTTAWA (CP) — A government spokesman has expressed profound regret at the death Sunday of Mr. Justice Erskine Read, 83, in Toronto.

A. E. Ritchie, undersecretary of state for external affairs, said W.Canada's most distinguished international jurist will be missed by this department and the nation he served with dedication, humor and wisdom."

Strike Unlikely

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A spokesman for a trucking publication says a United States-wide truckers strike Jan. 15 is "95 per cent certain."

Jim Drinkhall, investigative editor of Overdrive, told reporters Wednesday that unless the government meets at least three of the truckers four major demands before the established 300,000 truckers will abandon their rigs.

"We have no exact figures, but our feeling is that approximately 100,000 independent owners and operators will shut down, and the balance will shut down in sympathy or fear of being blown off the road," he said.

"The projected mood is that before Jan. 31, there will be more lockades and more violence incidents, unless something is done."

Vote Dec. 31

TEL AVIV (AP) — Thousands of Israelis plan to spend New Year's Eve watching election returns on television.

Dec. 31 is election day in the Jewish state, and Premier Golda Meir's Labor party faces its biggest challenge in 25 years.

The 21 parties and political groups put together a bewildering array of platforms and promises on jobs, housing, the poverty gap, education, religion, free enterprise and defense.

Prisoner Dies

BELFAST (AP) — A young Protestant accused of attempting to murder a Roman Catholic was found dead with head injuries Wednesday in Belfast's Maze prison.

Police sources said there was evidence that George Hyde, 19, had been battered to death by fellow prisoners. The jail holds many suspected gunmen from both sides of Northern Ireland's religious divide.

Hunter Dies

BARRIE, Ont. (CP) — Frank Macri, 35, of Toronto, died as a result of a hunting accident near Stayner, about 20 miles west of here, Wednesday.

Ontario Provincial Police said the victim was in a hunting party when he got separated while walking up a hill. He apparently lost his footing and the shotgun he was carrying discharged into his chest.

RICHARD NIXON

Top Mormon Dies

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah (AP) — Harold B. Lee, 74, president of the 3.3-million member Mormon church for the last 18 months, died Wednesday.

Lee entered a hospital for a physical examination Wednesday afternoon and died about six hours later from lung and cardiac failure.

His wife and family members were at his bedside when the head of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints (Mormon) died.

Lee, regarded by Mormons as a direct communicator with God, had taken office July 7, 1972, following the death of Joseph Fielding Smith, 96, a grand-nephew of church founder Joseph Smith.

Fielding Smith had served 3½ years after succeeding David McKay, who headed the church for nearly two decades.

A successor to Lee will be chosen by the church's Council of the Twelve Apostles, possibly as early as next week.

If tradition is followed, the next president will be Spencer Kimball, 78, who heads the council.

Elder Kimball underwent heart surgery in April, 1972, but resumed official church duties including direction of the church's missionary system. He has had other serious illness. A lung malignancy left him with a deep, raspy voice.

Wind Hydro Plant Is Urged

TORONTO (CP) — Fred Burr, New Democratic Party member of the Ontario legislature for Sandwich-Riverside, suggests harnessing the wind and the sun as solutions to the energy crisis.

Wind power was recommended as a feasible alternative to a nuclear generating power plant in New York State near Lake Ontario, Mr. Burr said in an open letter to Energy Minister Darcy McKeough.

He said a feasibility study showed that as much electricity could be generated by wind as by the nuclear plant and that it could be ready in four years.

BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, THURSDAY, DECEMBER 27, 1973

Firemen Compliment Community

They put a smile on the faces of nearly 1,200 underprivileged children.

The youngsters, members of 370 needy families in the Belleville area, each received a number of Christmas gifts from the firefighters.

For two months the firefighters devoted their spare time to gathering money, repairing, buying and distributing toys for the needy youngsters.

They worked at their Christmas Sharing project right up until Christmas Eve, when they made special trips to places as far away as Napanee, Tweed, Stirling and Shannonville to help Santa Claus meet his commitments.

Ralph Boomhower, one of the firefighters in charge of organizing the fire department's toy drive, said that this year's project was a big success because it managed to get the full support of the community.

"Two thirds of the toys in each of the baskets we delivered this year were brand new," he said. "That's a good indication of the type of support we received. I wouldn't know where to begin to start thanking people for their help. Loyalist College really helped a lot with their toy drive and the Centennial High School girls and Belle Girl Guides helped us by fixing the dolls up. Several transport companies and Budget Rent A Car lent us trucks for our pickups and deliveries. The staff at Shopette donated a lot of gifts and the people in the city supported our bond raffle. There were just so many people involved in the project this year it was fantastic.

The firefighters finished their annual smuggerade as Santa Claus this year when they paid a visit to the children's wing of the Belleville General Hospital with a load of stuffed animals and candy for the children who were shut in away from their families over the holidays.

Fewer Lights Some Stolen

Yuletide light snatchers were hard at it again this year, despite the fact that there weren't all that many houses in Belleville decked out with outdoor decorations.

Police Chief Douglas Crosbie reports that his department was called out to investigate the theft of 6-8 outdoor spotlights from a home at 83 Avondale Road during the Christmas holiday.

The lights, used to add that festive touch to the cold winter nights, were valued at approximately $15.

"We usually get quite a few calls of this sort during the winter," Chief Crosbie said. "But, this year there doesn't seem to be a great many people who are decorating their houses, so the number of light thefts has taken a nosedive."

Store Door Kicked In

Vandals failed to observe Christmas in Belleville this year.

Police chief Douglas Crosbie reports that his department was called on to investigate a case of wilful damage at the Shoppette Store in the Belleville Plaza early Christmas morning.

Someone kicked in a glass door, valued at approximately $150, at the store," the Chief said. There was no evidence of an attempted entry into the building.

Sitting in the Station . . .

The lineups for seats at train stations were long throughout the Christmas holiday and Belleville was no exception to the rule. On Boxing Day, crowds filled the CNR station as they tried to get on board trains headed for Toronto, Ottawa and Montreal. Waiting for trains that already had "standing room only" when they reached Belleville, the holiday travellers spent as much as one or two hours longer in the waiting rooms than they expected. Weather conditions and a rise in train use slowed rail traffic down throughout the holiday.

Bus, Train Terminals Packed with Travellers

Christmas is homecoming for many people.

This year, however, talk of an energy crisis, snow storms and cancelled airline flights made homecoming something of an adventure for travellers in Ontario.

Forced to make their way around the country by train, bus, or private car, holiday travellers spent a considerable amount of their time contemplating the luxurious beauty of waiting rooms and station platforms throughout the province.

Sitting on a suitcase or curling up for a nap on the floor in a quiet corner, they accepted the holiday travel crush as part of the Christmas festivities.

While Belleville could not boast of any bair-raising travel yarns like other major centres such as Toronto, where people camped in Union Station for up to two days while waiting for a train, we did, nevertheless, contribute our share to the crowding of trains and buses.

Officials at the Voyageur bus terminal on Dundas Street East sounded tired and harried when they told The Intelligencer that they had seen as many as 2,500 passengers pass through their terminal each day of the long holiday weekend.

"Our ticket sales are up by somewhere between 35 and 40 per cent of what we estimated," one employee said. "It just wasn't something you could predict. I guess the weather helped things along quite a bit. For two days we had all our buses running two or three hours behind time and then to top things off I ran out of my four-part return tickets. I just had to start selling one-way fares."

But line employees say they expected the holiday travel crush to ease up a bit late Boxing Day and then to pick up again Friday night as people start to travel for the New Year's weekend.

At the Canadian National station on Station Street, the scene was pretty much the same as that on Dundas Street.

Trains were running anywhere between one and two hours behind schedual and passengers who bought their tickets in Belleville were greeted with heart warming wrases like "standing room only."

Like Voyageur Coach Lines, the railway doubled up on its passenger service over the holidays, adding extra cars to trains and splitting runs into Toronto between trains that had come from Ottawa and Montreal.

It has been pretty hectic around here the past few days," one man at the ticket wicket said. "We couldn't put a figure up the number of people who have passed through here because we don't keep that kind of statistic and a lot of people here have bought their tickets somewhere else. One thing is certain though, we are crowded -- maybe even more crowded than last Christmas.

Police, Firefighters Have a Quiet Holiday

Christmas was quiet and for the most part uneventful this year in the Belleville area with only three major traffic mishaps and seven fire calls being recorded between Christmas Eve and Boxing day.

The cold weather that lingered on over the Christmas morning from the storm that lashed southern and eastern Ontario over the weekend gradually dissipated and was replaced by warm wet weather during the afternoon and throughout Boxing Day. As result, road and highway conditions became somewhat iffy and drivers exercised caution as they made their holiday rounds.

In fact, concern over safe driving was so great that the Ontario Provincial Police here recorded a total of 108 calls for information on traffic conditions between the hours of 4:30 p.m. and 11:30 p.m. Christmas day.

The most serious accident of the weekend was recorded by the Ontario Provincial Police on Christmas, when they were called out to investigate a two-car collision that sent seven people to hospital.

The accident on Highway 401, just east of the Wyman Road interchange, occurred at 4:20 p.m. when a car driven by George Beadle, 50, of Scarborough, went out of control on the icy roadway and struck a parked car owned by Stephen Walters, 22, also of Scarborough.

Police report that the Walters car was parked on the south shoulder of the highway when the eastbound Beadle vehicle collided with it.

George Beadle was reported to have been admitted to Belleville General Hospital with fractured ribs, while passengers in his car, his wife Ruth Beadle, 43, and Dianne Watkinson, 16, and Susan Watkinson, 13, both of Scarborough, were treated for minor injuries and released from hospital.

Stephen Walters was outside his car at the time the accident occurred and escaped from the mishap without injury. The three passengers who were in the Walters car, however, were all treated for multiple bruises and released from Belleville General Hospital.

Injured were: Mrs. Marylyne Walters and her three year-old son Jacob and Peter Jean Holmes, 24, of Yeoman St. Belleville.

Police report that the Walters car was span across the southside ditch when it was struck.

Damage resulting from the accident is estimated to total $2,700, with the Beadle car sustaining $300 damage to the left front fender and the Walters' vehicle receiving approximately $2,500 damage.

In Belleville, city police had a quiet Christmas day, but they were kept busy investigating three accidents on Christmas Eve.

At two-car collision at the corner of Bleecker and Emily Street at 11.15 p.m. Christmas Eve sent one woman to hospital with bruises and caused an estimated $1,100 damage.

Police chief Douglas Crosbie reports that a northbound car on Bleecker Street driven by Peter J. Twigg, 22, of Islington, Ont. collided with a car driven by Jeanne E. Walsh, 64, of Marysville.

Mable Richers, 46, of Marysville, a passenger in the Walsh vehicle was treated and released with minor bruises from Belleville General Hospital.

Three other persons were treated for minor cuts and bruises following a two-car collision at the intersection of West Bridge Street and Belmore Street around 7.15 p.m. Christmas Eve.

Police say that a westbound car driven by Leonard Alexander, 20, of Oshawa, collided with a vehicle that was southbound on Lemoine Street and driven by Melvin A. Fulford, 38, of Union Street, Belleville. Latendre and two passengers in his car, Karen Barnard, 16, of 202 Sidney Street and Sheila Bolyea, 17, of 46 Sidney Street, were treated and released from Belleville General Hospital.

Mr. Young and a passenger in his car, Mrs. C. Churchill, 60, of Foxboro, were injured in the accident as was Mrs. Ella Mumby, 75, a passenger in the elder car. All three were treated at Belleville General Hospital.

Damage resulting from the collision was estimated at $1,650.

On the fire scene, everything was relatively quiet in Belleville during the holiday with firefighters responding to only seven calls for assistance. None of the calls resulted in any major damage.

Bowell's Birthday Celebration Tonight

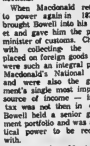
If Sir Mackenzie Bowell were alive today, he would be 150 years old.

Mackenzie Bowell was Canada's fifth prime minister and, better yet, he came from Belleville. He was Belleville's first and only Canadian prime minister.

Don't be ashamed if you forgot. He was prime minister for less than 18 months and in that short period of time he barely managed to leave a mark of his own on Canada's history books. His capacity for not being remembered is perhaps exceeded only by his posterity.

Born in England, the son of a carpenter, on Dec. 27, 1823, Bowell came to Canada at the age of nine. In his lifetime, he filled the posts of editor and publisher of the Belleville Grand Master of the Loyal Orange Order for British North America, Member of Parliament for the riding of Hastings North, federal minister of customs in Sir John A Macdonald's cabinet and was Canada's first minister of trade and commerce. He also served as Conservative Party leader in the Senate as well as being the country's fifth prime minister.

When Bowell first came to Belleville he was hired out at a printer's devil with the Belleville Intelligencer, then owned by George Benjamin, a leading citizen of the still-fledgling United Empire Loyalist settlements. By the age of 19 he had saved up enough money to go to school in Sidney, where he studied law and received a teacher's certificate in less than a year.



Upon graduation he worked for a time as a junior school teacher and then returned to the Belleville Intelligencer -- The Intelligencer -- where he worked as a foreman for $10 a month. He later became a partner in the newspaper and in 1847 married a local girl, Harriet Louise Moore.

In time he fathered nine children, bought The Intelligencer and took an active part in community affairs.

At the age of 19 he was inducted into the Orange Order and by 1862 he had risen in the ranks of that organization to become the Grand Master of Ontario East. By 1870 he was enrobed as Grand Master for all British America.

In 1867 he ran as the Tory candidate in the federal riding of Hastings North and was elected to the House of Commons, where he served as a member of Macdonald's first Conservative government.

While serving as a member of the Opposition, following the defeat of the Conservatives in 1873 as a result of the Pacific Scandal, Bowell first won the praise and respect of his colleagues as a volatile critic and a strong party man, who carried a lot of weight in politics because of his Orange connections.

When Macdonald returned to power again in 1878, he brought Bowell into his cabinet and gave him the post of minister of customs. Charged with collecting the tariffs placed on foreign goods which were such an integral part of Macdonald's National Policy and were also the government's single most important source of income -- income tax was not then in effect. Bowell held a senior government portfolio and was a political power to be reckoned with.

Following Macdonalds' death in 1891, the Conservative party drifted in a storm of sectional strife and inter-party strife. Under Macdonald's successors Bowell served as minister of the militia and in 1892 he assumed the post of Canada's first minister of trade and commerce in Sir John Thompson's cabinet.

Following the death of Sir John Thompson in 1894, Bowell was called upon to serve as prime minister by the then Governor General, Lord Aberdeen.

His brief career as the nation's caretaker was a stormy one, marred by the political infighting that surrounded the Manitoba Schools Question and the Conservative government's attempts to introduce remedial legislation that would quash Manitoba's attempt to abolish the Catholic separate school system in that province.

Unable to control his cabinet or his temper, Bowell's reign as prime minister was sullied by cabinet shakeups, revolt and a weak administration. In the midst of the Manitoba Schools controversy seven of his cabinet ministers resigned and Bowell was forced to resign his position as prime minister to be succeeded in that post By Sir Charles Tupper and ultimately Sir Wilfred Laurier.

Following his resignation, Bowell quietly slipped into the mists of anonymity that surround the failures of Canadian politics.

Today, however, a small group of local historians is going to try to remove some of the dust that has surrounded Bowell's career. The Hastings County Historical Society's Bowell Lecture 1980 birthday party for Belleville's prime minister at Sir Mackenzie Bowell Public School on Leland Ave.

The party, to start at 8 p.m. will feature an address by local historian Jack Thompson, on Bowell's career, his relationship with the Conservative party and the Loyal Orange Order. A special display of materials relating to Bowell's career as editor of The Intelligencer, member of the House of Commons senator and Prime Minister will also be on view at the school.

Ring My Chimes

Bells rang all over the country on Christmas day. In Belleville bells rang continously at the main switchboard at the Bell Canada offices on Bridge Street East. As people tried to contact their friends and families across the country, 25 telephone operators handled 3,331 long distance calls on Christmas day. Another 25,000 or more long distance calls went through the automatic switchboards and an unknown number of the telephone company's here handled approximately 2,600 operator-assisted calls and 19,000 direct-dialed long distance calls.

Christmas Bundles

The stork is an incongruous figure at any Christmas celebration but he was a welcomed guest at the Belleville General Hospital over the holiday as three area families celebrated the birth of their own Christmas baby. Two of the Christmas youngsters were born within eleven minutes of each other. Mrs. Deborah Turriff, right, and her husband Alvin, of Springbrook, are the proud parents of a baby boy, who was the first Christmas baby at the hospital this year. The boy was born at 12:26 p.m. and weighed seven pounds, eight ounces. Mrs. Ruth Wadden, left, and her husband Roy, of Shannonville, received a special Christmas gift in the form of a baby girl who was born at 12:45 p.m. Christmas Day.

Russia and China Halt Border Talks

MOSCOW (AP) — Russia's sensitive border talks with China have come to a halt and specialists in Sino-Soviet affairs see relations as the worst since open frontier fighting broke out in 1969.

In an unusual revelation, an authoritative Soviet journal said in its year-end edition that the Chinese refuse to come to agreement in the border talks, "pretending that 'an atomic bomb is hanging above the negotiation table.'"

The talks were designed to solve disputes over where the Soviet-China border legitimately should be. The dispute dates to a 19th century treaty, and flared up in 1969 when troops of each country periodically exchanged shots.

The quarterly journal, Problems of the Far East, said the border negotiations which began Oct. 20, 1969, have proved futile.

At the same time, a ranking Soviet Politburo member raised the level of antagonism to a new height when he described China as an "aggressive power."

Possibly connected with this apprehensive view, a top-level conference of civil defence staff began in Moscow on Christmas Day.

Some Western diplomats said they were struck by the senior rank of the participants and took it as a sign that the conference was not routine.

Though President of the Far East didn't say so, the border talks in Peking appear to Western specialists to have been suspended as long ago as last July.

Speaking to a visitor, a Soviet China specialist said recently that "you cannot talk about negotiations, since we cannot even agree on an agenda."

The Soviet view of the deadlock was outlined by Problems of the Far East and clearly blamed China for the failure.

"The negotiations have proved futile," the journal said, "because Peking advances a demand which no sovereign state could accept—that even before the border questions are discussed, the border should be moved deep inside the Soviet Union and Soviet troops should be withdrawn from a number of regions of the U.S.S.R. under the pretext of the existence of 'contested regions.'"

The aim of the talks for the Chinese is to have the Soviet Union recognize that the treaties by which Russia acquired large areas of Chinese territory in the 19th century were unequal because China was weak and Russia was strong.

China does not demand that this territory be returned, but it insists that land acquired by Russian encroachments beyond the treaty limits be returned.

The territory seized by Russia after the treaties, relatively small parcels, were signed is considered "contested."

Municipal Association's Ex-president to Join OMB

TORONTO (CP) — A. Bedford Ball, 43, of Queen Sound, former president of the Ontario Municipal Association, will move here next week to assume his new duties as a member of the Ontario Municipal Board (OMB).

Mr. Ball, professional engineer and city manager of Owen Sound for 10 years, joins Peter J. Brooks, former member of the Toronto city legal department, as the newest member of the OMB. Mr. Brooks joined the 67-year-old board three weeks ago.

Both appointments represent a move by William H. Palmer, QC, chairman of the OMB, to bring increased professional experience to the board.

Since his appointment in November, 1972, replacing J. A. Kennedy, Mr. Palmer has been making decisions designed to transform the board into a more sedate position than was prevalent under Mr. Kennedy, a lawyer, former Windsor alderman and former newspaperman.

In sharp contrast to recent years when the board and Mr. Kennedy were synonymous, Mr. Palmer reflects the new approach being taken.

"Any decision by the board is a decision of the board and not Palmer," he said, with the board remaining faceless, without a personality or public profile.

The OMB chairman believes board members should only be known to the extent that they sign their names to a board decision.

"We have 16 different people, each with their own built-in bias and different views. I don't think the OMB should reflect the personality of any one of us.

The OMB conducts between 1,500 and 2,000 hearings annually, with 65 per cent of those outside Metropolitan Toronto. Under existing procedures, there is often a waiting period of two to three months before a hearing is conducted.

To ease the burden of the OMB, approval of redevelopment plans is expected to be transferred to the new ministry of housing.

Mr. Palmer and Mr. Kennedy agree on one vital policy matter—the OMB is not an agency of the government.

Mr. Palmer emphasizes the board is attached to the attorney-general only for purposes of pay and raiions."

Cheesecake Passe In Calendar Land

LOS ANGELES (AP) — In this age of X-rated movies and topless dancers, this just in from the calendar industry: Bison are preferred to bosoms and scenery to shapely legs.

Two decades after the Marilyn Monroe nude pin-up calendar sold 50 million copies, cheesecake is passe and calendar makers aren't looking for many pretty girls anymore.

"The pin-up calendar business is down," says Peter Gowland, a well-known Los Angeles glamor photographer. "You go into a store now and you see fat people calendars, nude male calendars. All these gimmicks. Nobody is doing anything straight anymore."

Gowland does the photography for today's biggest-selling commercial pin-up calendar, put out by the Ridge Tool Co. of Elyria, Ohio. The calendar is about the last of its kind.

"Pin-up calendars have kind of gone down the drain," said Bill Bloedel of Brown and Bigelow, St. Paul, Minn., the United States' largest calendar maker. Ed Eberts of Shaw Barton Co., another big calendar firm in Dayton, Ohio, agrees pin-up calendar sales are "way, way down."

No Playboys for Israeli Soldiers

TEL AVIV (AP) — It all started when the president's wife thought front-line Israeli troops, miles from their wives and girl friends, needed a morale booster.

Enlisting the aid of the American ambassador, Mrs. Ephraim Katzir ordered 3,000 copies of Playboy magazine for troops at the front.

But Wednesday, a week after the project was announced, word got around that the troops would not get their magazines.

First the Orthodox National Religious party's deputy education minister protested to the army.

"With all due respect to the wife of the president," he wrote, "any will to alleviation for American aid to our country," the magazine and its centerfold pinup girls "would not improve the morale of our soldiers."

Then the Union of Immigrant Rabbis from Western countries appealed to Mrs. Katzir and the army to cancel the project.

Other Orthodox circles charged the magazines would "impair the moral fibre of our soldiers."

The American embassy said it had been informed the order was cancelled, Mrs. Katzir was unavailable for comment.

6,000 More Quebec Homes Have Electric Power Again

QUEBEC (CP) — Hydro-Quebec crews plugged more than 6,000 area homes back into heat and light Wednesday, leaving only 500 blacked out following six days of freezing rain which cut electric power in wide areas of the province. Snow coupled with freezing rain and high winds had snapped many lines and knocked trees onto others. At one point more than 200,000 persons as far east as the Gaspe were affected.

Power failures hit the Montreal area as well, but for comparatively brief periods.

A suburban Ste. Foy resident, who spent the holiday "by candlelight, said Christmas dinner still had a certain flair even though it consisted of barbequed chicken from a restaurant rather than roast turkey.

Ste. Foy was the section of the provincial capital hardest hit by blackouts, and another homeowner, Robert Lemieux, rushed home to get cosy when word passed that power had returned.

He found six trees which had graced the property when he left had been chopped down by "vandals" seeking firewood.

Freezing rain and snow were forecast for most of the province today.

Similar conditions closed Montreal International airport until 5 p.m. Wednesday. Adults stretched out on lounges and floors, or squatted on luggage while waiting for the airport to reopen.

"I hope I get a cup of coffee at least," said Mrs. Carl McCormack, surveying the lone upside restaurants and around snack trolleys.

She knew she and her family would be late for the 50th anniversary celebration for her parents due in the Magdalen Islands.

About 18,000 air passengers were delayed.

The Quebec temperatures Wednesday contrasted with 15-below-zero figures Christmas Eve, and made for spring like conditions across Quebec.

On highways, with salt covering roads after 16 inches of snow fell last week, windshield wipers were more important to motorists than snow tires. Hundreds of cars with lights on at mid-day edged along in clouds of spray.

In Montreal, underpasses were flooded early in the day, and the melting snow backed up sewers.

Pedestrians struggled to maintain their balance while navigating slippery sidewalks. Shoppers exchanging gifts or seeking out post-Christmas sales clogged St. Catherine Street, the city's main shopping thoroughfare.

"It's been the weirdest week," said one middle-aged man. "First the snow and the cold and bundling up to keep warm, then the rain, then more snow and now this spring weather."

But in general the spring-like temperatures created almost a festal mood as people jostled about relieved of the burdens of sub-zero weather.

It Was Like 1900 Again On Quebec's Ile d'Orleans

STE. FAMILLE, Que. (CP) — "It was like 1900," said Richard Debbis. "We were lit by oil lamp and candle."

A farmer on Ile d'Orleans, about 20 miles east of Quebec City, Mr. Debbis was among thousands of Quebecers along the lower St. Lawrence River who spent a long Christmas weekend without electricity after blackouts caused by freezing rain.

Thanks to a stove which still burn wood even when the electrical apparatus is not working, Mrs. Debbis was able to serve hot meals despite a room temperature in her home of between 50 and 55 degrees.

The Debbis family, including three children, lost their power from 9 p.m. Friday until Sunday afternoon and again from 8 a.m. Monday until 4 p.m. Wednesday.

"It wasn't so comfortable, but we survived," Mr. Debbis said in an interview.

Bub he was forced to purchase a $1,000 generator to heat coops holding about 4,000 chickens, who suffered "stress" when the temperature fell to 40 degrees.

Unpaid Utility Bill Costs Two Their Lives

SCHENECTADY, N.Y. (AP) — Handfuls of cash were found in the home of an elderly couple who died after their electricity was shut off for failing to pay a $253 utility bill, police said Wednesday.

Some of the money, found under mattresses and wrapped in toilet paper, was in $10 and $20 bills. Detective Edward O'Connor refused to disclose the amount, saying only that it was less than $1,000.

Frank Baker, 80, and his wife, Catherine, 82, were found dead Christmas Eve by a grandson, Basil Heise, who went to the two-storey frame house to invite them to dinner.

O'Connor, who called the couple "senile," said the woman reported her purse stolen earlier this year and told police it contained about $20. But when the purse was returned, police found more than $100 wrapped in toilet paper, O'Connor said.

Niagara Mohawk Power Corp., which turned off electricity to the home Dec. 20— leaving the Bakers with no power to operate the blower in their gas furnace—defended its action in a statement Wednesday.

The company said it "regretted the circumstances surrounding the death" of the Bakers, but "we did not deem it necessary to deviate from our normal collection procedures as a result of our repeated experiences with Mr. Baker over the past several years."

Niagara Mohawk representatives had visited the Bakers on Dec. 13 but could not reach an agreement with the couple about payment of their five-month-old bill, the company said.

Power was shut off one week later.

"We try to use personal discretion in these cases. Obviously, we are more reluctant to turn off power in the winter than we are in the summer," said Ralph Holzwarth, a Mohawk spokesman.

Earlier, another spokesman for the company said, "We're running a business."

"The welfare people should be taking care of them (the elderly)."

Storm Kills Five

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Clearing, mild, sunny and warmer today, partly cloudy, skies brought welcome relief to the southern United States today from a storm that left five persons dead and widespread flooding during the Christmas holiday period.

The storm brought up to 10 inches of rain in portions of Alabama, Mississippi and Louisiana between Christmas morning and mid-day Wednesday. Meridian, Miss., reported nine inches of rain in two days and 7.66 inches Tuesday, while Laurel, Miss., got 6.39 inches in 24 hours.

Some parts of Tennessee got more than three inches.

Four persons died in Birmingham, Ala., when a truck and a city bus collided during a violent thunderstorm Wednesday. Eight others were injured.

The fifth storm death occurred Wednesday in Jefferson County, Miss., when high winds overturned a trailer home, killing Mrs. Jesse Bridges Jr., in her 20s.

Many World-famous People Died During Past 12 Months

By R. J. ANDERSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The world of arts and letters was hit hard by death in 1973. Tragedy scarred sports. Many well-known entertainers died. Three men honored by their countrymen as statesmen and beloved by many throughout the world died.

David Ben Gurion was revered in Israel as the founding father of the Jewish state that under his leadership became a military power in the Middle East. He was the little country's first prime minister when it was established in 1948 and served a second term after a short period of retirement.

Ben Gurion suffered a stroke in mid-November and died Dec. 1 at the age of 87.

Two other statesmen were among the many notables who died during the year—Lyndon B. Johnson, former president of the United States, and Louis St. Laurent, former prime minister of Canada.

Johnson, 64, was the 36th president of the United States. He was vice-president when John F. Kennedy was assassinated in Dallas, Tex., Nov. 22, 1963, and served in the White House until his retirement in 1969.

St. Laurent, Canada's 12th prime minister, was 91 when he died at his home in Quebec City July 25. He served as Liberal prime minister from Nov. 15, 1948, to June 21, 1957. He was buried in Compton, Que., his birthplace, after a simple service.

Pablo Picasso, the Spanish-born revolutionary who changed the course of 20th-century art, was one of the richest painters who ever lived. He was an avid collector of his own works and also owned hundreds of paintings and drawings by the 19th-and 20th-century masters. He died April 8 in his home in Mougins, France, at the age of 91. His collection was given to the French nation.

Picasso mastered representational art, invented cubism to give a new dimension to painting, then turned to distortion with the face and body taken apart and reassembled in eccentric, with his own ideas.

Death claimed many well-known writers. Among them:

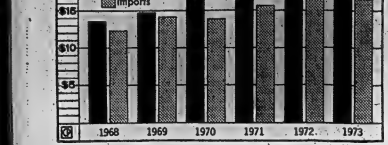
Pearl S. Buck, winner of both the Nobel and Pulitzer Prizes for literature, in New York March 6 at 80; Reinaldo (Pat) Morin, retired Associated Press writer who won two Pulitzer Prizes, in New York, aged 65, and J. R. R. Tolkien, 81, author of The Lord of the Rings in London, Sept. 3.

Pablo Casals, 96, was considered the world's best cellist. He died in Puerta Rico Oct. 22.

The world of the theatre lost Noel Coward, actor, playwright, composer and director. He died in Jamaica March 26 at 73.

In the entertainment world, actor Edward G. Robinson died at 79; Ethel Holt, 94; film director John Ford at 78; Betty Field, 55; Anna Magnani, 65; Robert Ryan, 63; Veronica Lake at 53; Lon Chaney Jr. at 67 and Joe E. Brown, famed film comedian, at 80.

Betty Grable was the favorite pin-up girl of millions of American servicemen in the Second World War. She died July 3 at 56.

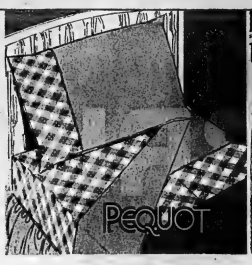


Walter Ulbricht, East German head of state, died in East Berlin Aug. 1. He was 80. Earl Browder, former general secretary of the Communist party in the United States, was 82 when he died June 27.

Gen. Fulgencio Batista, the Cuban dictator overthrown by Fidel Castro, died in obscurity at the age of 72 in Spain.

Millions of television viewers watching the Indianapolis 500 May 26 saw race driver Swede Savage's car skid 1,500 feet on a rain-slick track at 170 miles an hour. It hit a wall, leaped high into the air and disintegrated in an explosion with Savage strapped into his seat. Savage, 36, lived until July 1.

King Gustaf VI of Sweden died at 90 in Stockholm.



The $1.3-billion trade surplus in the first 10 months of 1973 was already exceeded by the total surplus of 1972, although fourth-quarter exports and imports in Canada had not been calculated. But the future is murky and inflation in Canada could price some industries out of competition in foreign markets. (CP Newsmap).

Sid Dennhauer, a former miner at the Caribou Gold Quartz mine at Wells, B.C., says he'd like to see the mine re-open because "it would be good for the town." Only about 400 people now live in the once-thriving town of 2,500. Mine may re-open if the price of gold remains high.(CP Photo)

Canadian Stock Markets Deal Up Many Surprises

By SANDRA INGALSBE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Canadian stock markets had their shares of surprises right to the end of 1973. The hard-won gains of a fall rally vanished and markets tended lower than their 1972 year-end levels.

While there was relatively little domestic news to upset Canadian markets, international and particularly United States problems produced sympathy pains here.

Along with generally rosy economic predictions at the end of 1972, some analysts were warning that energy supplies could become tighter during 1973. That warning returned to haunt stock markets near the end of the year.

The Toronto market's industrial index, considered the best gauge of Canadian trends, carried its strong upswing of late 1972 into the early part of this year.

The index touched a record high of 238.52 on Jan. 12 but went downhill for the next four months, hitting a closing low of 201.47 May 22. It broke that level six months later with a new intra-day low of 199.86 Dec. 14.

Analysis cited a number of factors—high interest rates, an unsettled international monetary scene, fears that overheated economies were heading for a "hard landing" in 1974 and the U.S. Watergate scandal.

Markets appeared to be ignoring record corporate profits, dividend increases and booming demand until a six week rally pushed the industrial index to an all-time high of 227.99 Oct. 26.

However, the decision by Arab oil-producing countries to cut production and embargo some shipments to Western countries raised fears of a recession in 1974.

The Toronto market had some of its sharpest losses on record in December in response to declines on the New York market, and at mid-month the industrial index was near the year's low and well below the 1972 close of 231.57.

Volume of trading on Canadian exchanges was down from 1972.

Gold stocks had the most dramatic gains of the year as political and economic uncertainties caused investors to turn to that traditional store of value.

Western oils were volatile. While they appeared to be beneficiaries of the energy shortage, governments moved increasingly to control pricing and export, and these actions scared off investors.

The turbulent events of the last two months have created uncertainty among analysts about the health of 1974 equity markets.

Bahnov's says that little sustained recovery in the market should be expected.

"The unusually strong economic growth of 1972 is not likely to be repeated next year. Heady corporate profit increases are not expected in 1974 not only because of the energy problem but because of the monetary policies in effect for many months which were implemented to fight inflation."

Wood Gundy Ltd. comments: "While the markets are looking ahead to energy-induced shortages, we believe that many of the positive economic developments in North America over the past two years have been overshadowed by energy problems.

"Considering Canada's virtual self-sufficiency in petroleum, strong resource base and favorable export position, Canadian markets should fare better over the next few years than those more highly dependent on imports."

Living Costs Rise

The consumer price index rose 1.3 to November level of 155.5 up from 154.2 in October, based on a 1961 level of 100. Statistics Canada reported Tuesday. The increase was highlighted by large increases in price of food, clothing and housing in November.(CP Newsmap)

Early Days In West Recalled

By BARBARA ROBSON

Heather Robertson's Grass Roots is one of those rare books that touch the sensibilities, jog the memories and make you wish they would never end.

Spunky, readable and informative, it is the result of the author's journey into four small towns in Western Canada, one city and the community that surrounds them.

"For all Westerners, even city people, the farmer is the touchstone, our fertility symbol, the core of our mythology," she writes. "He is the grass roots, the ash of the earth, the moral fibre of the nation. . . . His gradual disappearance shakes our sense of identity, makes us question the validity of our history."

But the book is not simply another account of the vanishing Prairie farmer. It is about the economics of the West, how individuals scrape a living and spend a life, how they survive. And it is presented in such a personal and intense manner that the people are always uppermost.

To a skilful blending of personal and past, in which both have an immediacy, Miss Robertson makes the peddlers and whisky-runners of early settlements seem as vital as the youngest player on the Landis pee wee hockey team or the oldest participant in the Miami, Man., quilting bee.

She clearly identifies her villains of the west and blames them for the poverty that has always existed. The list includes Lord Selkirk, the Hudson's Bay Co., builders of the CPR., bad harvests—the East.

Even the RCMP is linked to the unmitigated scoundrels, liars and thieves who shattered the dreams of the early settlers. A concrete headstone in a cross-laden cemetery in Bienfait, Sask., is the memorial to three miners the community believed were murdered by Mounties in a labor dispute.

The history she describes of the five communities—Miami and Winkler in Manitoba and Bienfait, Biggar and Moose Jaw in Saskatchewan—so easily slips into passages which describe events in the 70s that both are given a sense of balance.

The book has the ring of veracity that is only occasionally in dispute—when one senses the author has been carried away by her descriptive pen.

The most frequent criticism of Miss Robertson's writing in newspapers and magazines is that she writes to explore the nasty, the laughable and the demeaning—that her writing is first vituperative and only secondarily descriptive and thoughtful.

Some might see this, her second book, in the same way. What she describes is not always pleasant and the way she describes it is not always kind.

She said she set out to discover the roots of the West—a city girl searching for some sense to her existence.

What she has discovered contains little that is new, but she has packaged her findings in such a fashion that it is likely she will reach countless readers—many of whom know little of their own roots.

Fast Warship

This is an artists concept of Lockheed Missile and Space Co. entry in the U.S. Navy's fast warship competition. Called a surface-effects ship because it rides a captured air bubble, this 2,00-ton version may be the forerunner of larger Navy vessels. Lockheed and three other firms have completed nine-month preliminary design studies of such a ship, at least twice as ... vent fast svy ships. It is expected to have a role in thus other missions. Baleine Is Site Of Scots' Trials

The name, which means whale in French, was given to the Cape Breton bay, which Fort Rosemar once overlooked.

Fort Rosemar, the first attempt by Scottish settlers to establish a colony in North America, was destroyed by the French in 1629, a few months after it was built.

During the centuries that followed, Baleine was in the news a few times.

In 1936 aviatrix Beryl Markham crashed into a nearby swamp. And in 1947 Dutch-born Alex Storm recovered a treasure from the French payship Le Chameau that went down off Baleine while attempting to get to Louisbourg in the summer of 1725.

Scottish interest in establishing a colony in North America began in 1622 when Sir William Alexander Stewart decided that because there was a New France, a New Spain and a New England, there should also be a New Scotland.

Spurred by the success of the New World colonies, Sir William set out to recruit settlers but he was able to get prospective colonists only from the lowest classes.

The first group set out for Cape Breton in August, 1622, but got only as far as Newfoundland because of the weather. They stayed for the winter and many died there.

The next spring another group set out from Scotland and again got only as far as St. John's. When they finally were able to get to Cape Breton it was too late in the season to start building so they only surveyed the coast and headed home.

In 1624 Sir William published his Encouragement to Colonies, an account of the two early expeditions.

He described the land of New Scotland as a paradise of very delicate meadows with roses white and red and very good tet earth.

Impressive as the brochure may have been, it failed to generate much interest in the proposed colony.

Later that year, in an effort to get some response to the colony, James I established the Order of the Baronets of New Scotland. The Privy Council of Scotland issued a proclamation to the effect in November but there still was no real interest.

In 1625, two months after James death, three Scottish noblemen became the first baronets of New Scotland under new conditions of the charter. Five more were created the next day and Sir Williams hopes were bolstered.

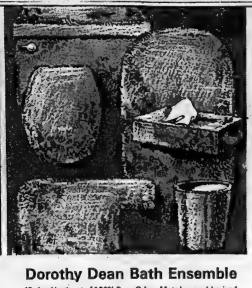
But the creation of baronets did not mean anyone wanted to go to New Scotland. By the end of the year Sir William was almost bankrupt from outfitting ships. The sale of titles was not bringing him enough money to offset the rising costs.

A troubled Sir William took heart a few years later when the French began showing interest in the region. In 1628 he chose his son, Sir James Stewart, to lead a group of 60 colonists to New Scotland.

On July 1, 1629 Sir James and his followers landed in the little bay here, about six miles from English Harbor, later to be known as Louisbourg.

Sir James brother, the younger William, helped the colonists build Fort Rosemar and then proceeded to Port Royal to begin his own settlement.

In September, a French company discovered the little colony and summarily destroyed it, taking the hapless Scots off to Grand Cibou (later known as St. Anne's Harbor) and forcing them to build a French fort.



From Grand Cibou the Scots were taken back to Europe, some dropped off in England and the rest/adventurer cast off to France.

The short life of Fort Rosemar, the pride of New Scotland, was over. Further attempts to establish such a colony in the New World were abandoned.

Today only a dirt road leads to the spot where Fort Rosemar once stood but next year a cairn will be erected to honor the men who tried to build a new home here.

Then Baleine will be listed in the Nova Scotia Tour Book as an area of interest to history buffs.

Luck Runs Out for 12

LEOPARDSTOWN, Ireland (AP) — Twelve persons around the world who drew a horse called Judy Cullen in the Irish Sweepstakes were out of luck today.

The horse was pulled out of the Irish Sweeps Hurdle, so the unlucky dozen lost a chance of winning 50,000 pounds ($120,000) each.

Canadians from Edmonton, Willowdale, Ont., Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., Stratford, Ont., Montreal and Vancouver held tickets on the horse.

Off to Finland

Charlie Drake, well known in the Quinte area, leads his Trenton Bird's Handy Stand Juveniles on a seven-game tour of Finland beginning this week. Coach Drake and his team are scheduled to depart for Finland today. They were to leave Trenton Community Gardens at 12 noon. It is expected the club will return to Canada, Sunday, January 6. Games are set for Helsinki, Lappeenranta, Tampere, Jyvaskyra and Vaasa. At right, winger Jim Baker cuts loose and left, team captain Don Armstrong who has already topped the 50-goal mark in league and exhibition games this season, rounds the net.

Hornets Top Czechs

CAMBRIDGE, Ont. (CP) — Cambridge Hornets skated to a 5-3 victory over Czechoslovakia's Tesla Wednesday night in the first game of an international hockey tournament.

Before a small crowd of 1,325, the 1970-71 Allan Cup champions and members of the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A series, controlled most of the play by close-checking the Czechs in a chippy game.

Pete Panagabko, Corby Adams, Hank Monteith, John Beechey and Pete Brennan scored for the winners, while Paul Beranek and Anthony Slavik tallied for Tesla, last year's national champions of Czechoslovakia.

Cambridge was held to a 1-1 tie at the end of the first period but drew ahead 3-1 in the second period by breaking up the slick passing of the Czech team that used seven members of that country's national team.

Beranek tied the score in the first period at the 16:01 mark with a clever bit of stick-handling. He got around Cambridge defenceman Mike Doersam and rifled a wrist-shot past Hornet goalie Sonny Pennington.

Monteith set up Adams's go-ahead goal in the second period, then scored himself to give Cambridge a two-goal lead.

Crba Jiri had 28 saves while Sonny Pennington had 27 saves for the Hornets.

REGAINS CROWN

ZURICH (AP) — Fritz Chervet of Switzerland knocked out Fernando Atzori of Italy in the seventh round of a scheduled 15-round bout to regain the European flyweight boxing championship Wednesday.

TO UNDERGO OPERATION

WASHINGTON (AP) — Quarterback Bill Kilmer of Washington Redskins entered a hospital Wednesday for an operation to correct an intestinal blockage that caused him stomach cramps during the National Football League season. Kilmer, who was in hospital three times during the last 2½ months because of the illness, will undergo surgery Friday at Georgetown University Hospital.

Cats Pull Out Stops To Swamp Oak Ridges

OAK RIDGES (Special) — Scoring goals has been the Belleville Bobcats trademark this season. Averaging over six goals a game, the Bobcats have been the highest scoring team in the Metro Junior B League.

They kept their reputation up last night, defeating Oak Ridges 15-8.

The Cats scored their first goal with only a minute and seven seconds elapsed in the game, the first of two by Kevin Joudrey.

Joudrey and went on to score three more in the period, as well as six in the second frame and five in the third.

The third period goals were combined with Oak Ridges' six, to make a total of 10 goals within a six minute span in the third period.

The third period scoring flurry started at 5:16 of the frame, with a goal by Gavin Smith, and ended just five minutes and 13 seconds later at 11:09, with a marker by Belleville's Brian Cousins.

Included in the rally were four goals within 87 seconds of each other by the Cats from 10:12 of the period to 11:09.

Cousins was the top goal getter of the night, along with Joudrey, callup Grant Coogan, Cousins and Coogan each fired the hat trick, with Cousins adding in two assists.

Kevin Joudrey scored twice for the winners as did John Sergeant. Joudrey added four assists to his pair, while Sergeant added one helper.

Mark Coates and Andy Ricketts each had a goal and three assists; while other goals went to Dave Taylor, Jim Richardson and Mike Watt.

Only eight minor penalties were assessed in the game, with four to each team.

The Cats' next game will be Friday night, when they entertain Peterborough in a 9 o'clock contest at Memorial Arena.

Peterborough And Oshawa Top Belleville

Belleville Towers Ford City major teams and Dixie Lee minor peewees came up empty in weekend Ontario Minor Hockey Association Triple A action. Oshawa and Peterborough teams held the upper hand.

Towers lost 8-0 to Peterborough and dropped a 6-1 decision to Oshawa.

In the peewee action, Oshawa chalked up a 6-3 win over Dixie Lee and Peterborough topped the Belleville squad 8-1.

Czechs and Russians Given Rude Welcome

Russia's Wings of the Soviet and Czechoslovakia's Tesla Pardubice were given a rude welcome to Canada Wednesday. Both teams are here to take part in the CCM International Hockey Tournament.

Playing in Galt last night, Cambridge Hornets of the Ontario Hockey Association's Senior A series opened tournament play on the right skate by turning back the Czechs 5-2.

Tournament play continues tonight in Toronto when Sweden's Farjestad team hooks up with Toronto Marlboros of the Major Junior A series.

The Czechs are in Belleville Sunday, January 6 for an exhibition contest with Belleville Eagles of the Senior A league.

Just One of 21 Scoring Plays

Scoring goals was the name of the game in last night's Metro Junior B hockey game between the Belleville Bobcats and the Oak Ridges Kings. Here Belleville's Brian Cousins (30) fires one of his three goals in the game past Oak Ridges' goaltender Glenn Taylor into the wide open net. Cousins also added two assists to his hat trick to lead the Cats to a 15-8 win over the Kings. The win moved the Cats into sole possession of third place in the League standings, two points behind first place Pickering, and one behind second place Markham. Cats are at home to Peterborough Friday and meet Markham for the first time this season at Memorial Arena Sunday night.

Leafs Stun Habs

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

President Harold Ballard's assessment of his hockey club improved somewhat Wednesday night when Toronto Maple Leafs stunned Montreal Canadiens 5-2 in a National Hockey League game before 19,495 incredulous fans.

Ballard had said earlier in the day he was "disgusted" with the performance of the Toronto club, because of its aggressive performance Sunday night against Boston Bruins.

Leafs lost that encounter 4-3, but Ballard was so pleased he said: "I think we have a fine young team that can only get better as the season goes along."

Well, the Leafs responded magnificently as rookie Lanny McDonald, with two goals, led a 46-shot assault against first-year netminder Michel Plasse with a pair of goals.

Rick Kehoe, Darryl Sittler, Paul Henderson, Ingo Hammarstrom, Bob Neely, Dave Keon and Don McKenney also scored for the Leafs, who moved four points ahead of idle Buffalo Sabres in the struggle for fourth place in the East Division.

It was only the third loss of the season on the road for the Canadiens. They have won 11 and tied five in previous games against Toronto this season. Canadiens lost a 5-3 verdict to Montreal Wednesday night for a 4-1 triumph in Toronto.

"I cannot remember such a loss," said Claude Ruel, former coach and now Montreal director of player personnel. "At least it gives a coach something to talk about. But if you are going to lose badly, it makes no difference what the score is."

The victory might prove costly for the Leafs, however. Goalie Doug Favell, who stopped 34 of 36 shots, appeared to have injured his leg late in the game when he stretched to make a save.

Coach Red Kelly said he wouldn't know the extent of the injury until he received a doctor's report.

Defenceman Mike Pelyk, who Kelly said had been a "pleasant surprise" this season, also encountered that the Leafs were a young club that was steadily improving.

"Everybody is rising to the occasion, now."

In other games Wednesday, New York Rangers edged Philadelphia Flyers 3-1, Minnesota North Stars topped New York Islanders 1-0, Pittsburgh Penguins tied Detroit Red Wings 2-2, Vancouver Canucks defeated California Golden Seals 6-4 and Chicago Black Hawks thrashed Los Angeles Kings 3-2.

Tonight, the Red Wings visit Buffalo and the Kings go to Atlanta to play the Flames.

NY Rangers 3 Philadelphia 1

Rod Gilbert's 10th goal in his last 12 games put the Rangers off and running against the Flyers, leaders of the west division.

Bill Clement put Philadelphia on even terms at 14:36 of the first period and then in the second, at 10:59, a penalty to Flyers' Jim Watson for holding Billy Fairbairn proved disastrous. Only 28 seconds elapsed before Ted Irvine converted a pass from Bobby Rousseau for the winning goal.

The Rangers crept to within three points of the second-place Canadiens with the victory.

Detroit 2 Pittsburgh 2

Detroit, which salvaged one point in its bid to overtake the fourth-place Sabres, was deadlock victory with three minutes remaining in the game as Syl Apps produced his 13th goal of the season for the Penguins, struggling to stay out of the West Division basement.

The Wings carried the Penguins 1-0 lead when Dave Burrows scored after Ron Stackhouse took a tripping penalty. Mickey Redmond tied the score at 1-1 before Billy Collins shot Detroit into the lead at 15:59 of the final period.

Controversial Detroit centre Marcel Dionne was flattened by two Pittsburgh defencemen in the second period. He left the ice and did not return.

Vancouver 6 California 4

All creatures were stirring except, maybe, the goaltenders and the referee—in the post-Christmas contest between Vancouver and California, the last-place National Hockey League teams.

Neither Bob Champoux for California nor Jacques Caron of the Canucks looked impressive as 19 shots whistled past them and the game was so free of body contact that referee Lloyd Gilmour called only four penalties, three to the Seals.

A highlight for the 15,376 Vancouver fans was Bobby Schmautz' 17th goal of the season on the, granted a three-goal outburst in the final period.

Los Angeles 3 Chicago 2

The Black Hawks stayed in a familiar rut as they were tied by the Kings. It was the 11th time this season the Hawks have been in a deadlock, but the outcome advanced them to within a point of the Flyers, still nursing the lead in the West.

A freakish goal deprived the Hawks of victory at 13:39 of the third period, Tommy Williams banked a shot off the backboards. The rebound hit goalie Tony Esposito on the leg and the puck dropped into the net, just inside the goal-post.

Minnesota 1 New York Islanders 0

Lou Nanne's first period goal was all North Stars needed to beat the Islanders as Cesare Maniago registered his first shutout in 23 games this season. It was Maniago's 357th NHL game.

Whalers Click In Overtime

By THE CANADIAN PRESS with a 3-2 decision over Houston New England Whalers had to Aeros in a battle between the scons from behind, but when giants of the World Hockey Asthe final buzzer sociation that ended in over- Wednesday night they emerged time.

Brad Selwood scored a goal at the 2:39 mark that broke Aeros' streak of nine games at home without a loss. It also cost Aeros a chance to take first place in the West Division.

A crowd of 7,857 watched as the Whalers, now leaders in the East by six points, took a 3-1 series lead over the Aeros.

Selwood's goal came from the left point after a faulty clearing pass, but he confessed he didn't know exactly where the shot was going.

"I didn't care how it went in," he said. "I saw the puck somebody and I threw the shot as relief when it went into the net."

Aeros' goalie Don McLeod said the shot deflected past him off defenseman Paul Popiel.

The Whalers earlier in the day had called up defenseman Bic Jordan from Jacksonville Barons of the American Hockey League as a replacement for the injured Rickey Ley.

In other games Wednesday, Vancouver Blazers beat Cleveland Crusaders 5-3 and Winnipeg Jets tamed Chicago Cougars 4-2.

Vancouver 5 Crusaders 3

The Blazers climbed one notch out of the West Division basement, but failed to gain ground on the Jets. Third-period goals by Mike Charnoff, Claude St. Sauveur and Danny Lawson, his 21st of the season, lifted the Blazers over the Crusaders, who remained third in the East.

Winnipeg 4 Chicago 2

The fourth-place Winnipeg team also relied on third-period goals to subdue the Cougars. Bobby Hull's 30th of the season was the winner and Ted Hargreaves supplied the insurance marker. The Jets are only four points out of first place in the tight West Division race.

Edmonton Oilers and Houston lead the pack with 38 points, while Minnesota Fighting Saints are third with 37. Winnipeg has 36.

The Saints, however, are not doing so well at the gate. Attendance has been averaging between 5,000 and 6,000 and the club is reported to be $10,000 overdue in rental fees to St. Paul Civic Centre Authority, which has granted the team an extension to Jan. 15 to erase the debt.

The chairman of the authority, Lloyd Lather, was asked what would be done if the club did not meet the rental payment.

"We will have to consider that when and if the problem arises," he said.

Dolphins May Have a Plus

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A big reason for Manny Fernandez's success as a defensive tackle for Miami Dolphins is his mobility.

But Fernandez hasn't been mobile since tearing a hamstring muscle three weeks ago against Baltimore. He hopes to get off the bench by providing in workouts today that he is fit for Sunday's American Football Conference title game against Oakland Raiders.

"I felt good last week," said the six-year veteran. "Last Friday and Saturday, I felt I was moving as good as I ever moved. But Coach Don Shula decided to hold me against Cincinnati.

"If I have any problem, it's lateral movement."

The relatively small tackle, at 6-foot-1 and 250 pounds, has been described by some pro coaches as the key to Miami's defence.

Dallas Coach Tom Landry believes both his Cowboys and Minnesota Vikings have changed since the last time they met. The Vikings are more potent offensively and Dallas is tougher defensively.

Dallas defeated Minnesota 20-12 in 1971 in a National Football Conference divisional playoff and the teams haven't played since.

"Fran Tarkenton at quarterback has made the Vikings a much better offensive team," Landry said as the two teams prepared for Sunday's NFC title showdown in Texas Stadium.

Landry added that the Cowboy defence, which has been superb in the stretch run to the playoffs, "is playing with more intensity than any defensive team we've had."

The Cowboys will go into the game without 1,000-yard runner Calvin Hill, who dislocated an elbow in a 27-16 victory over Los Angeles in last Sunday's NFC semifinal playoff game.

Robert Newhouse, who has played only one game at halfback this year, steps into the slot.

Defensive tackle Bob Lilly is also doubtful because of a pulled hamstring muscle. Third-year pro Bill Gregory is primed for Lilly's slot. If Lilly does miss the game, it will break a string of 10 consecutive National Football League appearances.

Len Dawson Is Honored

CANTON, Ohio (AP) — Len Dawson, Kansas City Chiefs' quarterback, has been voted the 1973 National Football League Man of the Year, it was announced Wednesday.

The award, which honors an NFL player for his civic contributions as well as his athletic ability, will result in the creation of a $20,000 Len Dawson college scholarship fund in the Kansas City area.

The contest, now in its fourth year, was run by the Pro Football Hall of Fame. Fans were asked to vote throughout the football season for the winner.

Dawson is the sports director of a radio and television station in Kansas City. During 1972 he was involved in fund raising efforts for the March of Dimes, Cancer and and the Alcohol Driving Safety Program in Missouri.

Braves Bounced

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Hershey Bears scored three goals in the third period to beat Boston Braves 5-3 Wednesday night in an American Hockey League game.

Jim Pressler's long shot with four minutes to play gave the Bears the win, moving them four points ahead of Cincinnati Swords in the AHL West. Cincinnati has four games in hand.

Goals by Rich Leduc, Ron Boehm and Ron Anderson gave Boston a 3-2 lead after the first two periods. Blaine Stoughton, Ralph Klein, Hugh Harvey and Hank Nowak scored the other Hershey goals.

Clippers 3 at Kings 3

Rick Foley, a 206-pound former National Hockey League player, took Bob Blewett's pass at centre ice and skated in alone to give the Clippers the tie.

Defenceman Kent Douglas got Baltimore's first two goals. Norm Dube scored twice and Wayne LaChance once for Springfield.

Tonight, Providence Reds visit Nova Scotia Voyageurs and Virginia Wings visit Richmond Robins.

Smith Sparkles

OSHAWA, Ont. (CP) — Derek Smith scored three consecutive goals in the third period as Ottawa 67s defeated Oshawa Generals 6-4 in the only Ontario Hockey Association Major Junior A game Wednesday.

Generals led 4-3 in the final period when Smith scored the final three goals of the game to give Ottawa the victory.

Tim Young scored twice and Jim Roberts added another for Ottawa. Andy Whitby, Ken Morrison, Jeff Hornback and Bruce Newton replied for Oshawa.

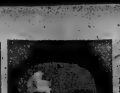
They slashed through practice Wednesday with rain pouring down on the chilled coaches and players as Coach John Madden emphasized defence.

Madden had his charges concentrate on stopped Miami's triple running threat of Jim Kiick, Larry Csonka and Mercury Morris.

Madden said he's not expecting anything entirely new from their Dolphins' offence.

"They may use some things that have been new in the last few weeks or variances of old plays," said Madden. "But how we've seen all we have to see of the Dolphins on film and television."



The Vikings are concerned about the sophisticated Dallas offence.

"Dallas is an exceptionally good football team," said Vik-ing Coach Bud Grant. "They're a very basic defensive team, but a very complicated offensive team—they use many different sets, motions, shifts. This will be a very difficult job preparing our defense for Dallas."

The Vikings started their preparation Wednesday with a two-hour workout in light snow on the artificially surfaced University of Minnesota stadium. A major portion of the workout included reserves running the Dallas offence.

"The fact that Calvin Hill is not going to be playing is going to be an important ingredient in that they still be missing their leading rusher," said Grant.

"But they have other good backs. Newhouse gained more than 100 yards in the last game of the regular season. So they are not deficient."

DANNY LAWSON

Lawson Third

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Danny Lawson of Vancouver Blazers moved into third place in the World Hockey Association scoring race Wednesday afternoon when he scored a goal and picked up three assists to help the Blazers defeat Cleveland Crusaders 5-3.

Lawson has 31 goals and 23 assists for 54 points, nine behind the leader, Wayne Carleton of Toronto Toros.

ROD GILBERT

Three-way Tie

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Rod Gilbert of New York Rangers scored a goal Wednesday night to move into a three-way tie with Bill Goldsworthy of Minnesota North Stars and Rick Martin of Buffalo Sabres for fourth place in the National Hockey League scoring race, as the Rangers defeated Philadelphia Flyers 2-1.

Gilbert now has 18 goals and 22 assists for a total of 40 points, 31 points behind league leader Phil Esposito of Boston.

Foods for '74!

By KATHIE SNOBELEN

KATHIE SNOBELEN

In these days of modern technology, one of the most rapidly changing areas is the food industry. Just looking at the amazing array of products on the shelves of your A&P WEO store is proof of the progress being made. And 1974 will bring more new products. Because our lifestyles are busier all the time, the emphasis will be on convenience foods.

We have all become so conscious of the nutrients in the foods we eat, that there is a growing trend towards wholesome natural foods — especially cereals. Alone and food processors are adding extra vitamins or minerals to their products to make them more nutritious. You are going to be using more and more foods with a vegetable protein, especially soybean, as an alternative to meat protein.

There will be many more packaged "mix-and-serve" casseroles on the shelves. You will also find a much greater variety of frozen foods available, particularly in boil-in-bags.

Singles, newlyweds, and older couples will really appreciate the individual serving sizes of products which are coming on the market. Although the price may be slightly higher than the same food in a larger quantity, I feel that the cost is justified by the convenience and the saving in waste.

New products, new ideas — our A&P WEO stores are becoming exciting places to visit. If you have any suggestions which will help us help you, please drop us a note.

BIRTHS

McKINNEY — Anne and Ed are pleased to announce the birth of a daughter, Jennifer on December 19th, 1973 at Mercy Hospital, Wingham, Ont. 01-42

IN MEMORIAM

TAYLOR — In loving memory of our dear son and brother Norman Irving Taylor, who passed away December 27, 1972.
The rolling stream of life flows on,
And still the years chill;
Outside the love, the voice,
The smiles of the one who once sat here.
And many a lonely heartache,
Often silent tear,
Has always been for memories,
Of the one we loved so dear.
— Lovingly remembered by Mom, Dad, brother Roger, sister Louise and brother-in-law Wally. 01-42

ANDREWS — In sad and loving memory of a dear husband and grandfather Alexander Andrews who passed away Dec. 27, 1972.
Two years have passed since you left us,
For us to be reunited there,
Just ordered God's curse home,
Lovingly remembered by

Names Successor

LONDON (CP) — The Guinness Book of Records has settled on the successor to the late Sir John Ellerman, the shipping millionaire, as Britain's richest individual — apart from the Queen. He is John Moores, 67-year-old founder of Littlewood Football Pools, who is reputed to be worth some £200 million ($1 billion) but does not even appear in Who's Who.

CITY-TV Fed By Blue Movie

TORONTO (CP) — When a cable TV operator outside Toronto recently asked for permission to pick up post-midnight programs from his city's newest and smallest station, no one asked why but knowing smile went around the room as the Canadian Radio-Television Commission hearing.

For at midnight each Friday tiny CITY-TV suddenly takes over 99 per cent of Metropolitan Toronto viewers. The magnet is the Baby Blue movie, undoubtedly the bluest regular program on the continent.

The Baby Blue gives executives of CITY a severe case of corporate schizophrenia. On the one hand, it's an acute embarrassment that an operation striving earnestly for community involvement and acceptance is known far and wide as the outlet for skin shows.

On the other, it's the big breadwinner of a station still engaged in the customary battle with the red ink that goes with starting a respectable TV setup. Advertisers pay four times the normal rate for spots on the Baby Blue, and they're sold out for the next year.

The unlikely mixture of programming has contrived to reverse the betting odds on CITY, which were all against survival when it dipped a shoestring into one of the most fiercely competitive air markets in North America in 1972.

"It's no secret that before we went on the air a lot of the boys didn't give us a chance," said Moses Znaimer, a 36-year-old former production comet with the CBC who is managing director of the owning company and head of its fat-out programming.

Now, little more than 15 months after sending out its first picture with a garish, brash, innovative and generally underpaid crew, he said CITY has come up with its first quarter-year in the black—far ahead of its promoters' time projections.

The outlook is so cheering that Moses—he's a first-name man—has relaxed to the extent of cutting the working day to between 13 and 14 hours. In earlier, frenzied times, it was 18 or 20, seven days a week.

"Now I take a day or day-and-a-half off, too," he added, stretching in one of the director-type folding chair in his cluttered office with its view of CITY'S mini-size main stage through one-way glass.

Here and in other parts of CITY's renovated old building, and around the town, the station's personnel labor frivolously from 8 a.m. to 2 a.m. to produce 44 hours of local programming a week, which they contend is more than any small independent does anywhere in the world.

"They can't take time for a 15-minute coffee break half the time," said Phyllis Switz, vice-president in charge of community affairs, as she grabbed a tea-and-toast lunch on the fly in mid-afternoon.

CITY cameras are likely to turn up anywhere around Metropolitan Toronto, which is basically its changing ground for news coverage and signal transmission. Sometimes a staffer is a one-man reporter-camera crew.

"We've moved camera into the kind of public meetings where they'd never been before," said Ron Haggart, who produces large segments of the 2½ hours of nightly shows starting with Metro spot news and other local topics. [illegible]

With the co-operation of a consumer group, his staff recently got a discount dealer to admit, on screen, that his "25 off" to TV buyers actually was loaded onto the set price in advance. Not exactly revelation, but hardly stuff on normally cautious television.

His 10-hours of news and allied programming started off daringly and hopefully in evening prime time five nights a week but the realities of the advertising dollar eventually shoved it back until five half-hour segments now end at midnight.

"We were foolish to be up against prime-time entertainment," Mr. Haggart says [illegible]

Toys For Hire

BRIGHTON, England (CP) — Britain's first toy library was opened in this south-coast resort by Princess Alexandra. Retired banker John Lee, who organized the project after hearing of similar libraries in the United States, wants more opened in poor areas, adjacent regular children's libraries so that deprived children can graduate to books.

business as the Church of Scientology, Hare Krishna and the people at Cabbagetown, a run-down Toronto district. Another, called Free For All, lets anyone walk in off the street and stand off, live and uncensored.

In all, CITY spends about $1 million a year on local programming; small potatoes by big-time TV standards. But then CITY started small, on a stock base of $3 million subscribed to by 30 backers augmented by revolving bank credit. So there was no margin for error in competition with a brigade of TV heavyweights—the CBC, CFTO, flagship of the CTV network, major station in nearby Hamilton and a cluster of Buffalo stations.

"Thrifts other businesses where you can spend some time building up, in TV you've got to walk in with all guns firing," Mr. Znaimer said. "We've had to spend more than we anticipated, but we've also sold a lot more.

"Right now, we're running tremendously ahead of our projections. We were originally budgeting for a four-month burn-around (before starting to pay off losses) and, unless the world goes into a brave-recession, we'll do it at the end of this fiscal year."

That will be Aug. 31, when the station will be just under two years old.

"What's happened," he added, "is that in only one year people have taken us seriously. We've managed to achieve a real character in the community.

"I think the measure of our success is that we've had a definable characteristic and that is: urban, adult and savagery."

CITY takes a certain pride in having pushed back the frontiers of permissiveness in such experimen's as Free For All, which Mrs. Switzer describes as terrifying but which, she says, has helped a bombed-out people of telephoned on-air obscenities. himself and says problem or

"If a man wants to express something like that, the environment don't fall over themselves in panic," Mr. Znaimer said. "Of course, what happens is that nothing happens because the people who've been more mature than the executives for years."

He recalls his own days at the CBC where he says "enormous amounts of energy used to be spent in layer upon layer of executive thought over rough language.

"It took someone to lead the charge away from that and in many ways CITY has opened up possibilities to others just by showing that a reasonable adult, without being shame-faced, can talk as if he were in 1973 and not 1943."

The Baby Blue has crashed through somewhat further than that. Somebody, business drops off 15 per cent at skin-flick palaces here at midnight Friday, because the solaceum allege that the boredom quotient is high in relation to the sex content of the late movie.

It's a bit of a monster," said Mr. Znaimer with something less than enthusiasm for what it's doing to CITY's reputation. But, he added, there is internal pressure to keep it on. The pressure has to do with "any station as a commercial smash of such magnitude that an advertiser can't buy his way into the bedroom scenery without signing up for less appealing fare[illegible] as well.

"But I think our own efforts deserve more dignified attention," the station chief said, "and say time the Baby Blue becomes CITY I'll cancel it without a single thought."

Blue Movie Big Breadwinner

Mary Ella from Atlanta, Ga. operates the master control at the CITY-TV offices in downtown Toronto. The station went into operation in 1972 and its Baby Blue movie is the big breadwinner of the station. (CP Photo)

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — California is trying to collect $64,054 in state income taxes from the estate of movie star Marilyn Monroe for film profits realized since her death in 1962.

The state wants to collect personal income taxes for the years 1963-70 on all residual profits from Some Like It Hot, filmed entirely in California, and 10 per cent of The Misfits, of which 10 per cent was filmed in the state.

The tax bill from the California state franchise tax board has been appealed by lawyers for Miss Monroe's estate to the state board of equalization. The board is expected to rule in about 90 days.

CLEVELAND (AP) — Television actor Mel Ferrer, in violation since last week on a charge of raping a 15-year-old Cleveland Heights girl, pleaded not guilty Monday in common pleas court.

Ferrer, 54, who plays Uncle Henry in the CBS-TV series All in the Family, was released on $7,500 bail. No trial date was set.

Police said Stewart met the girl Dec. 1 at a public place and took her with him to a private home where the assault was alleged to have taken place.

BOSTON (AP) - Arthur Fiedler, conductor of the Boston Pops Orchestra, has been admitted into a hospital for treatment of a high temperature and pneumonia.

A spokesman for New England Medical Hospital said the 78-year-old Fiedler was admitted the day before Christmas and now is in good condition.

The spokesman said Fiedler should be up and around within a few days.

Your Horoscope

FRIDAY, DECEMBER 28

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL

Aries (March 21-April 19) A member of your family may have some unkind words about a friend of yours. She feels he has a negative influence on you.

Taurus (April 20-May 20) Something's going on behind your back. You won't know it for a while. One you think to be for you is not completely loyal.

Gemini (May 21-June 20) Weigh your words carefully today. Others are doing as they say what you say has substance, and can be verified.

Cancer (June 21-July 22) One you will be working with won't be inspired by your attitude. Anything he does for you will be done grudgingly.

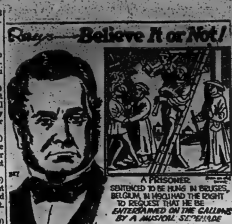
Leo (July 23-Aug. 20) You'd be better off today not attending a social function you feel is an obligation. You won't have a good time.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Suggestions from a friend regarding changes you're thinking of are not sound. Analyze carefully before trying them.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) It will tabl all your reserves not to reply in kind to one who he haves arrogantly toward you today. Let her sound off.

Scorpio (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Something you might buy that you feel will have educational benefits for a loved one is likely not to be used. Save your money.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You will have to give some serious thought to a matter where you share a joint interest. All is not well.



Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) It's important at this time that you try to balance income and expenditures. Set up a budget, stick to it.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Your ideas at this time are good, but likely to fail. You're not put forth the effort required to make them work.

Pisces(Feb. 20-March 20) You will not make as much progress as you should. There's no one to blame but yourself. Take responsibilities more seriously.

Do Not Have Baby Right After Pill

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have been on birth control pills for two years. My doctor says he'd like to start raising a family. Is there a certain period of time to stop taking the pill? A danger period? I was told I should wait two full cycles before trying to conceive as there would be a good chance of losing the baby otherwise. Is there any danger to the baby because I was on the pill for so long?—Mrs. W.F.

Pregnancy is possible very soon after you stop the pill—indeed, some women taking the pill have become pregnant just by missing it a couple of days late.

It is wise, however, to wait several months after stopping the pill before becoming pregnant. Fairly recent studies are showing it is safer, from the standpoint of miscarriage.

That is to say, there appears to be a period of months after six months after stopping the pill when women are less likely to carry a fetus to full term through until it is time for it to be born.

One study shows about five times as much risk of losing the baby as is the case with women who have waited six months before conceiving.

These abortions indicate that the fetus is defective, and I suspect that this has given rise to the belief, rather frequently expressed, that taking the pill results in more defective babies.

This, however, is not so on the basis of studies that have been made. The fetus may be defective; if so, nature resolves by causing an abortion quite early in the pregnancy. But no baby is born.

In one study of 54 such pregnancies that I'm within six months or less of having been on the pill) there were 19 abortions, which is several times higher than would be expected in that same group of women.

But of the other 44 pregnancies, all births and all babies were normal.

There is continuing study in this whole aspect, but on the basis of what is known now, it seems clear enough that women would be wise to wait to avoid pregnancy for six months after stopping the pill.

But if pregnancy does occur within that time, although there is a substantially higher risk of having a miscarriage then, there is no reason to think that the babies who do come through will be endangered or defective.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: A few years ago I read that a man in Jamaica received a transplant of the pancreas of a pig as treatment for diabetes. Do you know if such transplants are successful and can be used as a cure of diabetes?—S.K.

The answer, for practical purposes, is no.

Theoretically, an animal pancreas would be rejected by the body.

Transplants of a human pancreas have been tried a limited number of times, with some improvement in the diabetes—but the transplants in these cases were with patients already having far advanced kidney complications and survival was brief.

In other words, it is strictly an experimental procedure as yet. It is also an extensive, complicated operation.

Note is Mrs. R.M.: No, it is not true that after taking birth control pills "she cannot stop them or there may be damage to her system." Simply not true. Thousands (many millions) have been on "the pill" and then stopped.

Our old friend pessimistic Pete writes, "Here is my favorite rubber bridge hand of 1973. It sure illustrates the importance of playing safe for your contract.

"I happened to sit East. My luck of clubs was the worst in South's ace. South proceeded to play a diamond to the queen and a second diamond to the king. Then he played a third and fourth diamond. I was in with the jack and had noted that my partner had discarded the three and five of hearts and five of clubs so I promptly led my six of spades. South's 10 fell to my partner's jack. He returned a low spade to my king. I led my last spade and all of a sudden we had five tricks in.

Pete's letter continues for some time, but the gist of it is that South could and should have insured his contract by finessing his nine of diamonds at trick three.

This might have lost to a doubleton or tripleton jack in the West hand, but the three no trump contract would still wheel in. Even if West spitted on a low spade the defence could not gather in more than three spade tricks and South would then be sure of the nine needed for game and rubber.

A — If you want to settle for a small close just bid six diamonds. If stubborn you might try five hearts to show second round heart control.

TODAY'S QUESTION

Instead of holding you shake your partner has jumped in three spades over your one spade. What do you do now?

Oil Export Tax May Go to $6.50

OTTAWA (CP) — Rising foreign oil prices might drive Canada's crude oil export tax to $6.50 a barrel from the $2.30 rate planned for January, Energy Minister Donald Macdonald said Thursday.

The latest Arab and Venezuelan price increases will expand the gap between domestic and foreign oil prices to about $6.50 a barrel when the first higher-priced imported shipments begin arriving at eastern refineries in late January, he told a news conference.

He said alternative arrangements to avoid a $6.50 tax may be made at the federal-provincial premiers' conference Jan. 22-23 but the $6.50 rate will apply if no solution is found.

He did not indicate what alternatives may be discussed. It was assumed he was referring to federal-provincial arrangements—not the price Ottawa expects U.S. customers to pay for Canadian oil.

For domestic use, western Canadian oil is frozen at $4 a barrel. The tax is designed to take up the difference between the domestic and U.S. prices.

Mr. Macdonald said the latest foreign oil increases will raise the cost of imported crude oil to about $10.20 a barrel at Montreal refineries. The current average cost is about $6.50.

He estimated that the $4 increase will boost gasoline and heating oil costs about 12 cents a gallon for customers in and east of the Ottawa Valley.

Imported oil is used almost exclusively east of the valley while domestic oil, largely from Alberta, supplies all markets west of the valley.

Eastern customers now pay about 10 eight cents a gallon more than those west of the valley and an additional 12 cents would make a price spread of about 20 cents a gallon, he said.

As a result, it is almost certain that the government will adopt some form of petroleum subsidy for eastern consumers.

Mr. Macdonald said the subsidy will be about 12 cents a gallon, matching the expected retail increases and probably will apply to industrial as well as private users.

Details will be worked out at the federal-provincial premiers' conference and the subsidy will go into effect later if an assistance scheme is approved, he added.

He indicated that the program will be financed from export tax, currently pegged at $1.50 a barrel but scheduled to rise to $2.30 Jan. 1.

Canada has exported roughly one million barrels of crude oil a day to the U.S. during 1973. At this rate, a $6.50 export tax would generate $6.5 million a day or about $2.4 billion a year.

Mr. Macdonald said earlier all revenue raised from the tax would go to oil-producing provinces—Alberta, Saskatchewan, Manitoba and British Columbia.

Using the money to subsidize eastern consumers would leave the Alberta government unhappy, he said, "but it's a difficult situation."

Alberta opposed the tax when it first was imposed and the province cut off energy talks with Ottawa after the rate was raised to $1.90 after being fixed at 40 cents Oct. 1. Communications later were restored.

Mr. Macdonald said he will confer with Alberta officials before the federal-provincial conference.

He said reporters Thursday the earlier commitment applies only until Feb. 1 when, technically, the tax is replaced by an export charge.

Although the tax now is in effect, the government still must push legislation through Parliament to enforce it. Practice in the past has been for the government to announce the tax and pass the necessary legislation later. The necessary bills have been introduced.

Another bill now before the Commons will let the National Energy Board adjust the export charge monthly, in line with world price trends.

Meanwhile, Premier Gerald Regan of Nova Scotia, said in an Ottawa interview Thursday that the government should use general revenues to finance any assistance program for Eastern Canada.

He said he cannot accept the principle that revenues from an export tax should be used for a specific purpose and suggested that some of the costs of an assistance program might be financed through rising revenues from federal gasoline taxes.

Mr. Macdonald later said the revenue from domestic gasoline taxes is too small to assist a large-scale assistance program.

White Says Daylight Time Likely

TORONTO (CP) — Treasurer John White said today he probably will recommend to cabinet next Thursday that Ontario make daylight time mandatory in all municipalities Jan. 6.

The minister said the measure would be adopted mainly in response to requests from several industries which would be "deeply affected" if times were different in Canada and the United States.

The U.S. plans to advance clocks one hour Jan. 6 in an attempt to save energy.

Mr. White said Ontario studies indicate the move is "not as likely" to save energy in the province because electricity savings in the evenings should be offset by extra heating oil and electricity use on dark mornings, particularly in the North.

200 Drown As Ecuador Ship Sinks

By late Thursday, a total of 191 bodies had been recovered, and frogmen still had not completed their search of the sunken coastal steamer in Guayaquil Bay.

Hundreds of relatives and friends crowded the navy dock as launches brought in the bodies. The crowd was openly hostile, and authorities for a time ordered the shrouded bodies held offshore, fearful of a riot.

Long lines of people walked among the bodies in the morgue, trying to find relatives or friends.

Unidentified victims were ordered buried immediately.

The 107-ton old boat was upside down on the floor of the bay. The frogmen could get into the wreckage for only a few hours a day because of strong tides.

The 20-year-old boat had a listed capacity of 150 passengers, but about 400 persons were believed to have been aboard along with 600 drums of tallow. Officials said there were 162 survivors.

Ham Operator Rescues Stranded Taxi Driver

KAPUSKASING,* Ont. (CP) —Taxi-driver Ben Guindon, 19, and two companions were stranded for about five hours Christmas night on an unused forest road near here until an amateur radio operator 750 miles away had them rescued.

The taxi became stuck in snow while driving to a logging camp to pick up a passenger. The three were unable to contact their taxi stand 25 miles away, but were able to get in touch with a ham operator in Portage la Prairie, Man., through the taxi's radio.

German Kidnapped In Ulster

BELFAST (Reuter) — A leading West German businessman in Northern Ireland was pushed into a car outside his home Thursday night in an apparent kidnapping, police reported today.

Thomas Niedermayer, the director of the big Northern Ireland branch of the Grundig electronics firm and also West Germany's honorary consul Ulster, was feared to be the victim of an Irish Republic Army abduction.

Two men called at Niedermayer's house in the Suffolk area of West Belfast late in the evening and he was later seen being pushed into a car, police said.

"We are treating this as an abduction," an army spokesman said.

By late morning, no reports of any ransom demands had been received, police said.

But it was feared that the Irish Republican Army might have kidnapped him to press for the release of their members in prison.

One radio report suggested that the IRA extremists may also be trying to discourage foreign investment in Northern Ireland through a kidnapping.

Kissinger Says Russia Is Helpful in Mideast

WASHINGTON (AP) — United States State Secretary Henry Kissinger says the Soviet Union appears ready to contribute to stability in the Middle East.

At a news conference Thursday he indicated U.S. willingness to work with Moscow for peace in the region and said that with Israel, Egypt and Jordan "now talking from a common base" there is a good possibility of progress toward a settlement.

Kissinger credited the Soviet Union with contributing to a positive atmosphere at the Geneva peace conference. And, he noted, foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko met with Abba Eban, the Israeli foreign minister.

"So as of now, judging the Soviet Union by its actions, we are willing to co-operate," Kissinger said. "Should Soviet behavior change, we can always re-examine our policy."

At the same time, the secretary said the United States will make no deal at the expense of traditional friends, an obvious reference to Israel. He also said the United States will not impose a settlement arranged with the Soviet Union.

Kissinger described the Middle East as a test of Soviet intentions and of the U.S. policy of detente toward Moscow.

"It is obvious that it is not possible for a country to exacerbate tensions in one area and to seek relaxation in another," he said.

Therefore, obviously, we would have to judge the Soviet sincerity in seeking across-the-board relaxation of tensions by its behavior in all the negotiations in which we are engaged with it, including that of the Middle East."

In another area, Europe, Kissinger said the United States stands by its offer to work out a new relationship to common problems with its allies.

But, he said, it is up to the Europeans, and Japan as well, to choose whether to co-operate or to "consume themselves in the sort of rivalry that has destroyed other civilizations."

Accord Reached On Some Points

From AP-REUTER

GENEVA (CP) — Israeli and Egyptian negotiators agreed today on some of the principles to govern separation of their armies along the Suez canal, the United Nations announced.

A meeting lasting two hours and 10 minutes produced "unanimous agreement on some of the principles of disengagement," said the announcement. "There was a further frank exchange of views on other principles. Clarifications were sought by both sides regarding details of these principles."

The announcement gave no clue to the points on which the Israelis and Egyptians agreed and those over which they disagreed.

The negotiators agreed to meet again on Jan. 2, two days after the Israeli elections. Some observers considered this a sign that the negotiators may have reached a major stage in their parley.

Three-men delegations head by Brig.-Gen. Taha el-Magdoub of Egypt and Maj.-Gen. Mordechai Gur of Israel faced each other across a u-shaped table in Geneva's Palais des Nations.

Lt.-Gen. Ensio Siilasvuo, commander of the United Nations Emergency Force overseeing the ceasefire that ended the fourth Arab-Israli war last October, was in the chair.

Oil Export Tax May Go to $6.50

OTTAWA (CP) — Rising foreign oil prices might drive Canada's crude oil export tax to $6.50 a barrel from the $2.20 rate planned for January, Energy Minister Donald Macdonald said Thursday.

The latest Arab and Venezuelan price increases will expand the gap between domestic and foreign oil prices to about $6.50 a barrel when the first higher-priced imported shipments begin arriving at eastern refineries late January, he told a news conference.

He said alternative arrangements to avoid a $6.50 tax may be made at the federal-provincial premiers' conference on $2.23 but the $6.50 rate will apply if no solution is found.

He did not indicate what alternatives may be discussed. It was assumed he was referring to federal-provincial arrangements—not the price Ottawa expects U.S. customers to pay for Canadian oil.

The big prize of the evening on which the ladies had been selling tickets for several weeks, resulted in Ralph Boomhower having a generous stock of Christmas cheer for the holidays, President Hank, Ford thanked the ladies for a grand evening and also for their staunch support during the past year.

The Duke of Edinburgh 608 Squadron Royal Canadian Air Cadets mess dinner, an annual affair since being sponsored by the Unit, left little doubt that there is anything wrong with our youth of today. To be able to sit and enjoy a mess dinner with all the proper decor and tradition established by regular force messes from be advancing of the colors to the numerous toasts performed by the youthful members of the squadron is a credit to the training staff of the unit.

Lt. Tom Riley acted as chairman for the dinner during which certificates were presented by Perry Teatro and Lt. Wilf Lewis qualifying them on range officers. WO Kirkman presented a model glider kit to the young recruit present at the dinner. It is very gratifying to the sponsoring committee to see the results of training in discipline and citizenship, evident among them in such a fine manner.

James "Scotty" Wilson received Christmas cards and letters from visiting air cadets from Scotland and Norway this past week. The visitors had remembered Scotty for his friendliness and many personal presentations to each cadet during their stay in Belleville.

Sick comrades in hospital are: Herb Campbell room 629 BGH, while Harold Bankier is in hospital in Kingston.

Sam's Sermon: The festive season is a time to count our blessings and to give thanks for the good fortune we have enjoyed. When our lot seems difficult, we soon take heart and endeavour to observe the fortitude of the handicapped and those less fortunate in our midst and throughout God's world.

The Presidents and officers join me in extending sincere appreciation to al of you with best wishes for a full measure of health, happiness and good fortune in the New Year.

Public School Broken Into

Belleville police report that vandals broke into the St Mackenzie Bowell Public School on Bridge Drive during the Christmas holidays.

Early Wednesday morning, police discovered that some youths had broken four windows, valued at $25, at the school. The vandals are reported to have entered the building and scattered things about a number of classrooms.

Agent Honored

Belleville insurance agent, Michael Browning, has received an award for outstanding sales and service to the public from Combined Insurance Co. of America.

Mr. Browning won the award in an international contest, based after the company's founder and board chairman, W. Clement Stone.

The Combined group of companies specializes in non-cancelable accident and health income-protection and life insurance.

REV. ERIC L. PERDUE has submitted his resignation as pastor of Parkdale Baptist Church. His seven years as pastor will be completed January 1, 1974 after which he assumes the duties of associate pastor at Central Baptist Church, Brantford, Ontario, one of the largest churches of the Fellowship of Evangelical Baptist Churches.

Rockhound Instruction Next Month

Quinte district rockhounds, a n a t e u r gemologists and prospectors can brush up their knowledge at a five - day provincial government course to be held soon in the Belleville area.

Organized by the natural resources ministry's mines division, the mineral education program will run Jan. 7-12 at Bayside Secondary School.

Films and lectures will be included in the course, which includes mineral and rock identification, elementary geology, prospecting methods and claim staking.

The program staged at various Ontario centres since September and is one of several courses offered by the ministry.

In April and May the Madoc-Marmora area — scene of much professional and amateur mineral exploration over the years - - has been chosen as the site for a practical fieldwork course. This emphasizes learning by experience. A laboratory exercise is followed by work in the field on the same topic.

Subjects include drilling, explosives and geological mapping.

Cobourg Court Conviction

Man Steals His Own Car

COBOURG, Ont. (CP) — Joe Jawan, 26, of Ottawa, was convicted and fined $200 in provincial court Thursday for stealing his car from a garage where it was awaiting repairs.

Court was told Jawan's car broke down and was towed to a garage owned by Harold May.

Jawan left the car there, saying he would return with parts and have the car repaired.

However, he came back early one morning and drove the car to another garage without paying Mr. May his towing and storage fees.

Metro Wants A Share Of All Tax Revenues

TORONTO (CP) — Metropolitan Toronto wants to share the sources of provincial and federal tax revenues within its borders in an attempt to stop rising municipal property taxes.

Preliminary studies by civic officials show gross expenditures by Metro have increased 44.5 per cent during the last three years and are likely to increase 13 per cent next year. Property taxes pay 54 per cent of this expenditure.

John Pickard, finance commissioner, said Thursday property taxes will continue to increase unless Metro is allowed to share provincial and federal tax revenue.

He said Metro's administration must establish both short-and long-term objectives for civic spending. But one of the major weaknesses of this objective is the two-year elected term of Metro council, he said.

"Metro government needs at least a four-year, civic term of office in order to establish well defined programs," he said.

Campus Press Loses Old Steam

TORONTO (CP) — The president of the Canadian University Press (C.U.P.) said Thursday a lot of the old steam has gone out of the college and university newspapers.

Robert Beal said the radicals are still at the typewriters but the "conservatives" are there too.

"There are still the articles on Vietnam and some on Chile but . . . there are not the really good hard issues any more."

C.U.P. meeting here this week came under fire three years ago in a report headed by Senator Keith Davey on the state of Canada's mass media. The report called the student press scurrilous, radical, inaccurate and obscene.

Commenting on that report, Mr. Beal said in an interview young writers are turning now to local issues on and around their campuses.

"There's a lot more now on unemployment, housing and the problems of finding jobs after graduation," he said. "The general direction is the local community."

Although there are the usual scraps with some student councils, "university administrations don't bother with student papers any more," said Mr. Beal, recalling a few years ago when some editors were threatened with expulsion if they did not tone down their copy.

Student is Teacher Critic In Peking

PEKING (Reuter) — The story of a 13-year-old schoolgirl who criticized one of her teachers for his "reactionary" attitude towards his pupils was published today on the front page of China's leading newspaper.

The People's Daily printed the girl's criticism, in the form of a diary she had written and sent to the teacher, together with a letter from her and an editorial commentary praising her for attacking the "poisonous remnants of the revisionist Eye" on the education front.

The girl, Huang Shuai, who attends a Peking primary school, is the latest of a number of pupil protesters whose criticism of aspects of the educational system such as written examinations and an over-academic approach have received publicity in the Chinese press.

In her diary, Huang Shuai criticized her teacher for his impatience, his refusal to listen to her opinions and for "retaliation" against her when she insisted on criticizing him.

Whale of An Event

NEW YORK (AP) — Frances is expecting, and zoologists at the New York Aquarium hoped to take a few obstetric soundings of the 16-foot white whale using a sonar-type device.

After lowering the water level in her pool Thursday at the aquarium on Coney Island, they guided Frances onto a canvas stretcher and placed the electronic listening device at various spots along her abdomen.

But the device, similar to a unit sometimes used with humans, did not detect fetal heartbeats.

Still, hormone tests have confirmed that the whale is pregnant.

Inventors Beat A Path To Auto Manufacturers

DETROIT (AP) — Three hundred inventors who thought they had a better idea on how to make cars run beat a path to General Motors' door in the last decade with suggestions for improving the engines.

Comparable numbers did likewise at Ford, Chrysler and American Motors but despite all the offerings, the piston-type engine still is king of the road.

Glamor-type engines such as the rotary-powered Wankel and the Chrysler turbine grabbed a lot of attention from a motoring public suddenly acutely conscious of how far a car can run on a gallon of gasoline.

Steam engines and electric-powered vehicles came in for their share of attention as the industry stepped up a drive for a cleaner, more economical power plant.

GM, Ford and Chrysler spent $90 million in that search in 1973 alone. Ford had 5,000 workers assigned to its engine research and development section. Other companies had similar work groups.

William Agnew of the engineering staff at General Motors Technical Centre said: "Since 1963, we have made technical reviews of over 200 alternate-power proposals."

An example was the rash of suggestions from supporters of the steam engine as an automotive power plant.

George Huebner, Chrysler's director of engineering research, said his firm has been evaluating steam-engine projects for more than 25 years.

"Our work has indicated that an automotive steam engine would be bulky, heavy and, as a system, up to twice as expensive as the internal-combustion engine," he said.

Of all the possible alternatives, none attracted the attention the Wankel did. Three auto firms—Citroen, Mazda and Spyder—already have Wankel-powered units on highways.

In addition, 26 auto firms around the world thought so much of the Wankel concept they signed agreements permitting them to use the rotary-engine concept.

Conservative GM was one of these, as it pledged $50 million in 1970 for the right to manufacture and sell the Wankel rotary-combustion engine on a worldwide basis.

GM first announced it would introduce the Wankel under a Chevrolet Vega hood early in 1975. Most observers figured this would mean an 1975 model introduction time but on Dec. 21, GM headed its bet and said it would put the Wankel-Vega on sale in 1975 as soon as it was deemed ready for the road in terms of emission-levels and fuel economy.

GM officials emphasized they were not scratching the Wankel project but rather holding off on it until they eliminated some bugs.

Edward Cole, GM president, said the Wankel engine is 50 per cent smaller than a comparable piston engine, 30 per cent lighter and has 40 per cent fewer moving parts.

Freezeup Needed

Skiers, Snowmobiles: Local Conditions Poor

TWEED. — Outdoor sports enthusiasts are being warned to stay off ski and snowmobile trails in the Quinte district until colder weather freezes ground conditions.

Warmer weather since Christmas has created poor conditions for skiers and snow machines in the district. These will remain unchanged until sustained freezing weather sets in, says the ministry.

Meantime, all waterways throughout the district are unsafe for travel. There is no ice on the lakes, which are mostly covered by heavy slush. Small streams, ponds and swamps have only a thin layer of ice or snow.

Sidereads in rural areas are reported ice-covered and treacherous.

Yacht Club Closed for New Facility

PICTON — Prince Edward Yacht Club will be closed for approximately two weeks following a New Year's gala next week.

The club will be shut down while a new, oak parquet dance floor is installed and undercarriage and floor joists renewed.

The building now known as the yacht club originally was Picton's first power generating station and was constructed in the mid-1930s.

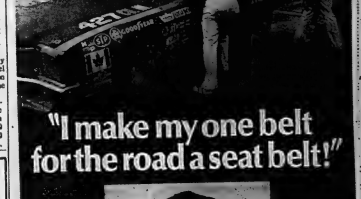
Since the structure's conversion to a clubhouse, improvements have been made steadily.

Chess Club Begins New Season

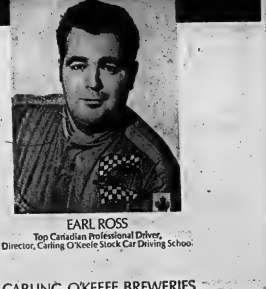
PICTON— The Picton Chess Club has opened for the winter months and players will meet regularly on Tuesday evenings at Benson Hall.

This season a number of secondary school students and public school pupils are joining the group as well as veteran players. The sessions are open to all chess players of any ability.

Prince Edward Scenes on TV



PICTON—A television program titled "The Loyalist" to be shown on the CBC network next week, will feature scenes from the Quinte area.



The documentary contains information about Prince Edward County and will be shown Wednesday, January 2 at 8 p.m.

Seeking Identity

Being young is not the easiest time of life. There is the clash of idealism, intensity in the years of adolescence. There is the gulf of years separating parents and children, problems of discipline, and the struggle for identity.

The world itself, its material resources strained, its peace threatened by political forces and disadvantaged minorities raised in an atmosphere of terrorism, has about it an aura of cynicism in which the young increasingly are seeking release in hedonism, alcohol and drugs.

Of the latter trio of modern escape valves, the last-named, drugs, may be levelling off. The problem is still with us, and will not just walk away, but both public and Government view it today in better perspective. There is less hysteria and the recent round of recommendations of the Le Dain Commission tends to reflect this.

But human nature being what it is, things and people will not always be in line. Conformity and non-conformity will continue to live side by side, and aberration will remain part of the natural order of things.

Young people know the meaning of fear, loneliness and alienation. Because of such conditions they turn to the sort of artificial panaceas under discussion. They may do so also because of curiosity. Whatever the reason the struggle to help them to a better concept of their own worth and into a more fulfilling role in life without the use of dangerous props, goes on, and one that has caught our attention is a program in New Jersey.

With an experiment called Breakthrough, Paul J. Megan, head of the Department of Drug Abuse of Morris County, N.J., is reaching out to young people in a way that is drawing attention across the country. The program brings 30 or 40 youngsters together (often in a tranquil, open-air setting) for a one-day session of looking at themselves, their creative abilities, and their communities, and then offers them a chance to plan together a community project in which they can all participate.

It is a concept that could benefit any group, whether in special need or not. There is no long-term commitment, as in the membership of say the Scouts or 4-H, yet the rewards in finding a new self and in helping others are quickly realised.

MP Puts His Foot in It

Walter Baker's Penchant for Parliamentary Gaffe

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — Poor Walter Baker; the little, altogether likable and outrageously unfortunate Conservative freshman MP from the National Capital District constituency of Ottawa-Carleton.

It is not one thing. It is another, end to end, back to back, thick.

First a Montreal drug firm representative latches onto a handful of his House of Commons envelopes and they are franked out free of postage — courtesy of the ever-generous taxpayer — to a group of medical men inviting them to a conference sponsored by the pharmaceutical company.

There are only 30 of these invitations, and at eight cents per envelope it amounts to only $2.40 — not even a drop into the near-$30 billion government spending bucket — but word of it gets out.

And there is poor Walter Baker, embarrassed all to heck, explaining that this drug-company trip is "a friend who unintentionally helps out in my office and in the rush simply made a damn stupid mistake."

It seems the harassed fellow came charging into Walter Baker's office one harried morning.

He "grabbed a bunch of envelopes, addressed them, and told my secretary to mail them." He is shattered that he has embarrassed her."

But not half as shattered as his friend Walter Baker who is telling one and all that he will reimburse the Government for the postage frank — restricted by law to MPs, Senators and the Governor General — and would witnesses to testify to his restitution.

Then of that embarrassment, Walter Baker scarcely had time to draw a breath before he was hit with news from Kitchener Waterloo that he had been taking credit for compiling a very expeditiously thoroughgoing rundown of Parliament and its work, actually prepared nearly two years ago by Sandy Baird, vice-president and assistant publisher of THE RECORD.

The Kitchener newspaper had done the project, two full pages, illustrated, as a public service, and in response to demands for reprints, had run off, and distributed several thousand copies.

Nothing happened for nearly two years — as far as Parliament Hill was concerned — and then the National Liberal Caucus Research Bureau wrote to the Kitchener-Waterloo RECORD asking permission to distribute copies of the brochure and undertaking not to circulate it, without credit, as had been done by Walter Baker.

It included even a copy of a letter Mr. Baker had written his constituents when sending them The Record's parliamentary rundown, in which he had informed them: "I have put together a brief summary of the highlights — on the workings of government in Canada."

No mention was made in the letter of the brochure being the work of THE RECORD, and it was as if Mr. Baker were the author.

Confronted with this, poor Walter Baker again was shattered with embarrassment.

"I owe THE RECORD an apology," he said straight off.

"I had no idea of taking credit for the work.

"Several of my colleagues (Gord Towers, one Liberal and a New Democrat) had used the brochure for the same purpose, so I gathered up bits and pieces of it here and there and was putting it all together when somebody told me that the Government Printing Office had it all on plates.

So I got them to run me off some 21,000 to 23,000 copies and sent them out as 'household mailers' to my constituents."

There are three printing plates for the parliamentarian, one each in the Centre and West Blocks and the Confederation Building, and frequently they work overtime, including Saturdays and Sundays — to print the hundreds of thousands of postage-free "mailers" MPs are allowed four times yearly.)

"It was a bloody fine piece of work THE RECORD did on Parliament — although I swear I did not know it was that big when I used it — and I rattled that letter, taking credit, for it right off the top of my head.

"I feel like a damn fool, and I wish to God it had never happened."

Walker Baker's brochure, work for word and picture for picture with THE RECORD's, covers eight pages.

Ottawa's Advice for Farmers Hit By Fuel Cuts

By VINCENT EGAN
Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst

Thomson News Service

Agriculture is one of the heaviest industrial users of petroleum-based energy. And no other industry produces a more vital commodity than food.

That's why Canadian farmers are especially concerned about the threat of a shortage of gasoline, diesel fuel, heating oil, propane and the like—even if, as federal Energy Ministe Donald Macdonald said recently, no shortage of oil exists on the Prairies yet.

To help farmers conserve energy, the federal government of agriculture has drawn up a list of suggestions—some less obvious than others. Among them:

—Insulate buildings adequately, not forgetting ceilings and attics. Check weather stripping around doors and windows. Add storm doors and windows.

—To avoid the loss of heat from the barn, use hay bales around its foundation or on the second-storey floor. Pile snow as high as possible around the foundation.

—Reduce the temperature in the shop, garage and milk house.

—For steady lighting of heated buildings, replace incandescent bulbs with fluorescent lights (But fluorescent lamps are not recommended for unheated buildings).

—If you have the choice of motive power, remember that diesel engines use only about three-quarters as much fuel as gasoline motors. Maximum engine efficiency is achieved at almost 90 per cent maximum power.

—Keep engines tuned, and use cold-weather lubricants.

—Instead of having a block heater plugged in all night, use an automatic timer (cost: about $10) to give the engine two or three hours warm-up before starting.

—Keep tractors and other vehicles under shelter; their radiators covered, and they will warm up faster and use less fuel.

Farmers who are planning changes in equipment should consider using electricity rather than fuel for pumps, augers, large blower/ conveyors, grain dryers and heaters. Here are other ideas for fuel economy in the use of processing equipment:

—Auger-type bunk feeders use twice as much horsepower as augerless types. Energy needs of shelter troughs fall in between these two.

—Grain augers use more fuel at higher speeds and increased angles of elevation. Bucket elevators need much less fuel.

—Similarly, farmers should use the lowest possible speed for the required elevating height for choppers and blowers.

—For cutting and grinding, keep cutting edges and knives sharp, and use close clearances with shear bars.

—Process feed into coarse and long cuts. Think of the animal's digestive system before grinding, cubing or cracking.

—In choosing a feed mill, remember that power consumption increases from roller to burr to hammer mills.

—Shield the grain dryer from the wind. Use adequate drying in extremely cold weather or high humidity.

—Before drying grain, clean away the chaff and weeds. Use new drying innovations and consider aeration systems or storage of high-moisture feed grains as alternatives.

Counter Sanctions Against Arabs Ruled Out

Brockville Recorder and Times

Eight American economists, including four Nobel laureates, have urged that nations hurt by Arab oil blackmail consider a counter-embargo.

It would be more productive they say, for oil-consuming nations to confer with each other on such countermeasures as withholding food and manufactured goods "than to outdo each other in subservience which profits them nothing."

According to Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz, however, the administration considered, and rejected, the idea that the United States cut back food shipments to those Arab nations withholding oil from the West.

Despite their readiness to accept Russian arms, the least thing the Arabs want is to become totally dependent upon the Soviet Union. Let them worry about that prospect a little bit.

One reason, he says, is that it would be ineffective: the Arabs could easily make up the difference elsewhere, probably from the Soviet Union, which harvested record crops this fall.

That may actually be the best argument in favor of a little counterpressure of our own.

The worst possible reason to deny food to the Arabs would be if it caused them real hardship. People can make do with less heat in their homes and less gasoline for their cars, but they cannot do without food. If the United States were to refuse to share its surplus stocks with hungry people, it would inevitably lay itself open to the charge of genocide.

But today, world grain production is at an all-time low. Let the Arabs scramble a little to find willing exporters. Let them suffer a few inconveniences.

Electoral System In C The States

By GEORGE KITCHEN

NEW YORK (CP) — One of the major weaknesses of the United States political system, at least in the eyes of foreigners brought up under parliamentary government, is the practice of holding national elections on a fixed date every two years.

By law, congressional elections are held on the second Tuesday of November in even-numbered calendar years. For convenience, virtually all 50 states run their state elections along with the federal contests.

With a fixed date for elections—the next one will be Tuesday, Nov. 5, 1974—members of Congress and the state legislatures spend a great deal more time politicking and seeking re-election than do parliamentarians, who face no fixed election time and generally are limited to a 60-day campaign.

Members of the House of Representatives are on two-year term and tend to spend the second year seeking to improve their re-election chances. Senators are better off, with a six-year term. Presidents are elected for four years, with the next presidential election set for 1976.

The fixed election timetable produces such developments as a meeting Tuesday between President Nixon and key Republican leaders to plan strategy for 1974 congressional contests which are still 11 months away.

Early planning is a matter of urgency for many Republican congressmen who feel the party itself was innocent of any connection with the Watergate scandals, have been hurt individually by the White House involvement, doubt that Nixon at the polls unless Nixon, as party leader, can demonstrate a developed involvement in the affair and restore public confidence in the Republican Administration.

Again, the fixed-date syndrome may exist have been the unpopularity of President Ford's announcement by Nelson Rockefeller that he will not run up the governorship of New York State to work full time on two national commissions on the quality of water and on critical policies for Americans.

Most political observers believe Rockefeller's announcement actually ends the initial stage of what will amount to a three-year campaign for the presidency by the party. The 66-year-old governor already has made three unsuccessful attempts to win the Republican presidential nomination.

Rockefeller denied he is a presidential candidate but conceded that he wants to keep his "options" open until late 1975. In the meantime, the two commissions he will head may easily project him into national prominence and provide him with a national forum for any presidential bid.

Funds For Cancer Research

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

I am writing in regard to an editorial which appeared in The Intelligencer, December 4, 1973, entitled "Cancer Research."

The editorial stated that a large amount of money will be needed for research and education for the next year. The goal for 1974 is $4,700,000.

We all realize that the cost of living in the past year has greatly increased. Likewise, we understand that the cost of cancer research and medical treatments has also increased. Not only has the number of cases increased, but more patients, and more of them cured, so we cannot look aside from this most urgent matter.

I agree with you entirely that campaigns should be held to get funds for this most important cause. We all buy tickets for games of chance, why not give the same amount of money to save someone's life.

Student Busing

Editor
The Intelligencer

With regard to the letter from Millie Hopkins on school busing between Deseronto and Tyendinaga, as far as there is no problem with the seating, but if a student rides the bus he knows for sure there is.

She stated that only 50 or 55 students ride the buses in the morning on buses that hold 61 or 68 people. If this is true then why do we have to sit three in a seat (which is only supposed to hold two) and sometimes stand in the aisle.

It might especially you have to run to the buses so that you can get a seat, but if you don't get there in time you stand, all the way home.

The Good News

News being the almost instantaneous thing it is in the world of the 1970s we may feel overwhelmed at times by the extent of what passes for "bad news."

Ironically, the public is gripped more by the bad news than it is by good news, a fact proved by the demise in California recently of a newspaper whose purpose was to publish only the latter.

However, it is as well to recognize that the good news of the world far surpasses the various isolated incidents that show how life can go awry. The Christian Science Monitor noted this fact in a recent editorial which we reprinted under the heading: The Good News is There.

Here is an example which came our way in a Christmas card message from a young woman who sings centrally with the Belfast Philharmonic Society.

She writes: "Having a wonderful year with the Philharmonic Society — our centenary year — and travelling all round the province (Ulster). Most exciting, especially in the present climate of things. So far it has been a great success."

This rather speaks for itself. The cultural life of Northern Ireland continues and the information from there on the economy speaks not only of business as usual but of record production and exports as well, often in marked contrast with the rest of the United Kingdom.

Bobby Darin

The death of Bobby Darin at the age of 37 following a heart operation removes one of the most talented and engaging personalities of the entertainment world. Darin's sleepy-eyed countenance masked a bright and breezy nature, compassionate too toward his fellow man and especially, we seem to recall, with children.

Darin's is a well modulated singing voice that ranged from quiet ballad forms to a special talent with rock which saw his greatest expression his legendary Mack: The Knife number which remained popular for more than a decade and was the theme tune of his television series of only recent times.

Reduced Tanker Movements Seen Key To Estimating Emergency Oil Imports

NEW YORK (AP) — Fewer tankers have been plying the seas since the Arab oil embargo against the United States began in October, and those with cargoes have been slowing down to save fuel, shipping authorities say.

Business was booming before the embargo, but shipping sources and a survey of a half-dozen major oil ports in the United States point to a slowdown since October.

By what extent the embargo has been offset by imports from non-Arab countries is difficult to assess. But the level of tanker traffic may indicate how successful the United States has been in making up the difference.

Tankers are the chief means of bringing in foreign oil.

Imports normally account for eight million of the 17 million barrels of oil the U.S. needs daily. The Arab embargo should reduce reduced imports by about half.

Government figures show average daily imports for the four-week period ending Dec. 14 were 6.3 million barrels of crude and refined oil. Projected needs in that period were 7.4 million barrels.

An Associated Press survey showed tanker traffic was off 1972 levels in some areas, most noticeably New York and Philadelphia, between the start of the embargo Oct. 17 and Dec. 15.

The survey showed oil was being brought in from the Caribbean, West Africa, Indonesia and South America. How much could not be determined.

Tanker brokers, who find ships for those with oil to transport, say there is less cargo to carry and less fuel to move it since October.

Frank DeSalvo of Polen and Partners Inc. in New York said that, after October, "cargoes dried up, rates for chartering [illegible] dropped off and prices of fuel for operating ships took off."

As a result, he said: "A number of ships are idled. Some by design and some because they have to."

Brokers say the tanker business is used to volatile changes in supply and demand. They say the embargo would have to last another six months to cripple the industry.

Major oil companies own less than one-third of the world's 5,500 tankers and lease many of the rest. Most refused to comment on the amount of their imports or where they originate.

A Shell spokesman said tanker traffic increased in San Francisco because Canadian pipeline shipments were curtailed after the embargo. In November and December, refineries received about 400,000 gallons more than in the same two months last year, he said.

In New York, 467 tankers arrived between October and Dec. 26 compared with 769 in the same period last year. Before the embargo, tanker traffic was running well ahead of 1972.

Oil from Canada, the Caribbean, Italy and Northern Europe is being handled into Boston Harbor at an increased rate, said John Buckley vice-president of a large importing firm.

He said Boston-based oil wholesalers were limited by a quota system to importing 50,000 barrels of heating oil a day in 1972. But since the quotas were lifted, imports stand at about 400,000 barrels a day.

Sixty-six tankers sailed into Boston in November, compared with 34 in November, 1972. A total of 62 foreign and domestic tankers arrived in December, 1972, compared with 69 forecast for this month.

U.S. Rules Issued

Service Stations Last to Get Gas

WASHINGTON (AP) — Energy chief William Simon has ordered a six-degree cut in home heating in the United States and put service stations last in line for gasoline, starting Jan. 15.

Simon signed regulations controlling and virtually rationing distribution of oil and its products just before the midnight Thursday night legal deadline. A copy was obtained by The Associated Press.

Rules for gasoline, butane gas, home heating oil and diesel fuel take effect Jan. 11, replacing existing programs in effect until then. The other regulations now are effective and all of them are to be fully applied beginning Jan. 16.

The official regulations to conserve petroleum since they were proposed last Dec. 12, but the gasoline allocation system is virtually unchanged.

It assigned top priority to essential services purchasing gasoline in bulk, second priority to other businesses purchasing in bulk and the leftovers to all others including the service stations.

The regulations left unspecified just how much gasoline would be made available, but remarks by Simon earlier Thursday appeared to indicate that the previously proposed 25 per cent reduction in gasoline production to a level five per cent lower than in 1972 probably will be adopted.

While the original proposal spelled that out, the version finally adopted left it up to Simon's Federal Energy Office to set the reduction and revise it quarterly.

Simon told reporters Thursday gasoline allocations must be cut some 900,000 barrels a day—the amount which was the basis for the original proposal.

—Adoption of earlier proposals for allocating home-heating oil, diesel fuel and other "middle distillates," requiring heating reductions of six degrees in homes and 10 degrees in other buildings.

—Revised rules for the heavy fuel oil called "residual," requiring the six-and 10-degree heating reductions instead of previously-proposed allocations and fuel reductions, and adding safeguards on fuel cuts to electric utilities to avoid power blackouts.

—Revised rules for aviation fuel, assigning major airlines 85 per cent of the fuel they used in 1972 instead of 85 per cent as previously proposed. Regional airlines and air taxis will get all of their 1972 fuel supplies instead of only 90 per cent.

—Rules to assure that petrochemical plants will get all the raw material they need.

—And completely revised rules for propane and butane gas, replacing a complex priority system with a simpler three-stage distribution. Retail to petrochemical and synthetic rubber production; then to "traditional" markets for liquid petroleum gas including industrial fuel; and finally, if any is left, to gasoline blending.

In gasoline allocations, top priority is assigned to bulk purchasers engaged in energy production, agriculture, public transportation and emergency services to receive all they need.

Energy producers and public transportation are to receive all the "middle distillate" oils they need, including jet fuel.

Emergency services are to get as much as they got in the corresponding month of 1972.

Once the needs of those users are served, agriculture, industry, freight and mail-hauling are to get up to 10 per cent more middle distillate oil than in 1972 and others would get as much as in 1972.

The defense department, previously assigned fuel to meet "100 per cent of its current requirements," lost that guarantee in the final regulations which promise only that allocations to defense "will be based on current requirements," subject to presidential review.

The regulations also added a new provision permitting refiners and importers to divert up to five per cent of the available fuel from one state or region to another to ease unpredictable imbalances, without prior approval from the Federal Energy office.

Earlier Thursday, Simon ordered revision of a standby system for rationing gasoline, including the printing of a standby month's supply of ration coupons, but he postponed for at least six weeks the decision whether to impose rationing.

Quebec Hydro Service To Be Restored Today

QUEBEC (CP) — Full electrical service was expected to be restored today to the provincial capital and Eastern Quebec, one week after a series of freezing rainstorms touched off blackouts which at one point affected 300,000 residents.

But freezing rain and light snow forecast for today could alter the situation.

A Hydro-Quebec spokesman said only 750 customers were without power late Thursday night, and crews were continuing to work on the remainder.

The freezing rain followed a 16-inch snowfall.Ice-laden power lines broke under the strain of heavy snow and trees.

The spokesman said repairs cost about $2.2 million in overtime pay and replaced equipment. In Eastern Quebec crews replaced 228 power poles and 79 transformers, he said.

Technician Jean St. Armand, checking lines outside Quebec City, said that he hadn't had a full night's sleep in four days.

"But there's fewer hookups off sick during an emergency like this than there are when the weather's great," he said. "Maybe we're a strange bunch."

Mr. St. Armand's job is to roam the back country by snowmobile or helicopter looking for problem spots for crews to patch up.

One Hydro-Quebec official, Francois Houle, criticized "the many property owners who refuse to let us cut off a tree limb posing a threat to power lines . . . but who are the first to complain when they have no electricity."

"We have teams to get rid of old trees and branches which threaten high tension wires, and it doesn't cost the property owner a cent. to have that done," he said in a statement.

Although Montreal was only partially affected by the power cuts, a city official said that the week of snow, ice storms and rain had made snow removal the most difficult in more than 20 years.

Jean Arpin, municipal roads director who is responsible for keeping 1,016 miles of streets clear, said the situation was complicated by a "disturbingly high" number of parked or abandoned cars.

About 1,500 pieces of equipment and 2,000 men were at work clearing side streets, he said.

Montreal International Airport was in full operation, after being shut down most of Wednesday due to freezing rain.

Energy Shortage Seen Symptom of Big Issue

OTTAWA (CP) — The world energy shortage is symptomatic of a larger problem that mankind must learn to face, Prime Minister Trudeau said Thursday in New Year's message released by his office.

Extravagant use of resources has brought the world to the point where it must look soberly at the future and reduce demands on the environment, he said.

"Recent events did not create the current situation; they merely hastened its coming.

"What we are beginning to experience now was inevitable because man has been consuming the resources of this planet with a voracious appetite that no wisdom or insight—be it religious, philosophical, scientific or political—has so far been able to curb.

"But what man's shortcomings of conscience, culture or morality have prevented him from doing, necessity is now obliging him to do.

"Nature herself is beginning to demand the thoughtful stewardship that moralists have always urged.

"But we will find new sources of satisfaction, and re-discover the pleasures that perhaps had been long forgotten amid the artificial abundance of our consumer society.

45 Gypsies Are Lost

OTTAWA (CP) — The Immigration department has lost track of 45 persons it wants deported but a government spokesman said Thursday the department is not concerned about the affair.

The misplaced persons make up a band of gypsies, seven families who arrived in Montreal April 27 aboard a Soviet ship.

Evidence at deportation hearings indicated they bought passage to Canada and entered as visitors after being denied visas to travel to the United States from France.

"If you're on bail, you're free to go," the government spokesman said when asked Thursday how 45 persons had managed to disappear so easily.

If the group is found in Canada—the spokesman said ago," an immigration official said in a recent interview.

"there's no proof they've left the country"—there still is a problem. The government still has no place to send them.

Immigration Control Proving Much Easier

TORONTO (CP) — Because of stricter immigration laws, officials at Toronto International Airport say they are having an easier time this year than last with the flow of illegal immigrants to Canada.

"You can hardly believe it's so quiet compared with a year In the past, thousands of visitors from the Caribbean poured off flights, adding to thousands coming from Europe and Asia, he said. If immigration accepted them as visitors, most applied for landed-immigrant status within a week.

If immigration refused them, they came in anyway and joined the crush in the various levels of the appeal system.

However, all that is over now since the federal government decreed there no longer will be an automatic appeal against a deportation order.

Saint, Czar or Pope?

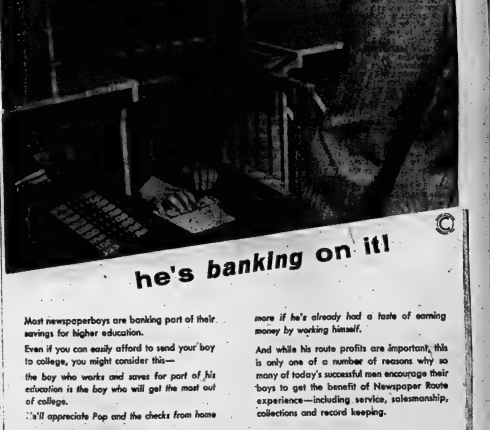
Alexandre Emmanuel Names of Trudeau Baby

OTTAWA (CP) — The new Trudeau baby will be called Alexandre Emmanuel Trudeau after the saint, the czar or the pope . . . "take the one you want . . ." Prime Minister Trudeau said Thursday.

He told reporters, however, that the baby, born on Christmas Day, will have a nickname—Sacha.

Margaret Trudeau chose the name Alexandre and the prime minister chose Emmanuel.

Mr. Trudeau distributed cigars outside his office to reporters who missed out at the Ottawa Civic Hospital Christmas day when seven-pound, nine-ounce Alexandre was born.



Mr. Trudeau called Emmanuel a good biblical name.

"It means God is with us," he said, adding it is the best Christmas name he could think of.

"I missed out last time when we didn't give it to Justin but I was darned if I'd miss out again," Justin was born on Christmas Day two years ago.

Mrs. Trudeau will be returning home shortly and the couple plans to spend a quiet New Year's Eve together.

Mrs. Trudeau wasted another prime minister said. She had told him that two boys would be close in age and would be able to play together.

Most newspaperboys are banking part of their savings for higher education.

Even if you can easily afford to send your boy to college, you might consider this—the boy who works and saves for part of his education is the boy who will get the most out of college.

...'ll appreciate Pop and the checks from home more if he's already had a taste of earning money by working himself.

And while his route profits are important, this is only one of a number of reasons why so many of today's successful men encourage their boys to get the benefit of Newspaper Route experience—including service, salesmanship, collections and record keeping.

Pill Discovered For Both Sexes

In limited trials so far, it has proved "100 per cent foolproof," says its inventor, Dr. Elsimar Coutinho, a leading international figure in the field of contraceptive research.

"A woman can take it for 12 months and then rest for 12 months while the male partner takes it," he told reporters. This rest period was very important, allowing the recovery from any undesirable side-effects.

Coutinho said there is a risk of slight changes in the reproductive organs after prolonged use of the pills but the body returns to normal once the pills are stopped.

The Brazilian scientist and his team at the World Health Organization (W.H.O.) research centre in northeastern Salvador believe the unisex pill may herald an era of shared responsibility in birth control.

The same team has already developed a long-term contraceptive capsule and a male contraceptive pill.

The "slow release" capsules are injected into the form and should offer sterility for as long as two years.

Other researchers are trying to perfect a dissolvable version of the injected contraceptive, to avoid the unsightly bulges produced by the capsules beneath the skin.

The capsules have been tried experimentally on more than 2,000 women in Salvador.

With the unisex pill, the team is so far working with only 30 couples.

It will not be marketed to the public until all its effects have been thoroughly studied, and international approval obtained.

Coutinho's earlier research work on the male pill was prompted by the need for a rest period for women on the pill.

He said it has the added advantage that it is capable of increasing the man's sexual drive.

The male pill is based on noresteroids, which impede maturation of the sperm, and on androgens which counteract the resultant loss of libido. Depending on the proportionate "mix" of these constituents, the pill can be designed to enhance male libido.

"We can say today that the male pill is in a very advanced state," said Coutinho. "It is more efficient than the female pill since it does not produce any spermatogenesis and has no side effects."

A man must take it for six weeks before it becomes effective, and he recovers his fertility five weeks after he stops taking it.

But Coutinho admits that the biggest obstacle to male pill-taking is psychological—many men see it as leading to a loss of masculinity.

"This is especially true in Latin America. I think the Latin-American men will be the last to take the pill. The Americans will be the first."

Brazil—population over 100 million—is one of the few countries with a policy of encouraging increased population. Birth control is frowned on and it was only recently that the work of Coutinho and his Salvador research team became public knowledge here.

Leocidio Ribeiro, a lawyer and medical practitioner, has exhorted the government to crack down on abortions. He said there were 1.5 million illegal abortions a year, at a time when Brazil "needs more people to obtain a population of 150 million by the end of the decade."

HELPS BIRTH CONTROL

BUCHAREST (AP) — Romanian women pay only 15 per cent of the cost of birth control pills and the government pays the rest, the official news agency MTI said.

Widow Runs Her Farm With Animals' Help

NEWTON FALLS, Ohio (AP) — Frances Hall Crandall, 68, believes "fighting like cats and dogs' applies better to people than to animals," and her herds, flocks and gaggles back her up.

Mrs. Crandall, a widow since December, 1972, runs a 150-acre farm without human help. A pair of border collies, Lady and Nudder Puppy, come to her aid.

Not too long ago, for instance, Nudder Puppy shepherded 20 fat, shorelegged ducklings back to the safety of the front yard from the road into which they had strayed.

The collies also drive the cows, herd the goats off from slipping away, and serve as watchdogs. And they like the cows, horses, steers, sheep, chickens, geese, ducks and rabbits—are her companions since her painter and paper-hanger husband Benjamin, died at 84.

"Animals get along together a lot better than so-called civilized people," she says. "And they're reliable and honest as the day is long.

"We've got a Garden of Eden here," she says, petting one of her Pomeranians in the kitchen of her large farmhouse.

All the animals are named and "love it when you talk to them," Mrs. Crandall says. She also thinks they communicate with her as she walks among them. Listening to their whinnies, cackles, bleats, bonking, mooing and barking.

The cheese, George and Sarah, are 20 years old. Sarah still lays eggs. Speckled Lady, one of two show horses and a black billy goat buddy up for hours, the goat standing quietly under Lady's neck.

There is an old buck sheep and a Hereford calf which are inseparable. And there is a Muscovy drake that never lets around three times by the tail before letting fly," she replies. "Now I only swing her two times.

Plumptre: Editors Call Her Woman of the Year

By JEAN SHARP
CP Women's Editor

Beryl Plumptre is the hands-down choice as Canada's most newsworthy woman of 1973...in a vote by 120 women's-and-family-editors of newspapers and radio stations.

They matched their vote for the chairman of the food prices review board with another for the rise in food prices as the news story of the year of most immediate concern to women.

The annual poll by The Canadian Press asks the editors to choose people in several categories whom they consider to have made the most news. The vote is not based on merit or achievement necessarily, simply on newsworthiness.

BERYL PLUMPTRE

Mrs. Plumptre was chosen by the public affairs category as well as in the general woman of the year category. Other choices were: Karen Magnussen, sports; Margaret Atwood, literature and art; Anne Murray, entertainment.

Mrs. Plumptre was appointed to her post at the end of May and has created a storm of controversy since then.

The board was set up to look at food prices, study food marketing practices and report to the House of Commons and the public on findings.

Mrs. Plumptre's $40,000 salary and the need to have such a board at all have been questioned by members of Parliament. Many of the board's reports and Mrs. Plumptre's comments on them have been criticized by consumer groups and food industry spokesmen.

She is an economist who has been president of the Consumers' Association of Canada, president of The Vanier Institute of the Family and economic consultant to several government agencies.

Food prices themselves became a matter of headline concern when they began to rise faster than they have in years, and faster than the rest of the cost-of-living index which has taken its biggest jump since 1951.

Monthly food price rises, lead by beef, reached a peak in the summer, to ease off slightly in the fall. But November's cost-of-living index, reported by Statistics Canada, indicates they will end the year with a bang.

Skater Karen Magnussen, the sports category choice, is a 15-year-old girl from North Vancouver who became 1973 world figure-skating champion. She won three gold medals at the world championships in Ludwigshafen, Germany, in Colorado, in March. Since then she has turned pro with Ice Capades to earn a reputed $100,000 a year for three years.

Anne Murray's name is on the list for the fourth consecutive year. She kept busy during 1973 with an NBC special plus specials in England, Sweden and Germany, and with personal appearances in her single Danny's Song, was No. 1 in Canada's record charts, and reached No. 5 on U.S. trade ratings.

She received the Canadian Radio and Television and Radio Artists award for the best TV variety performance on Canadian television.

Margaret Atwood, chosen in the literature category for the second year, continued to garner international recognition.

Two books, the novel Surfacing and a poetry collection, Power Politics, published earlier in Canada, were published in the United States this year, and both made the New York Times best books list.

Survivor, a book on Canadian literature published late in 1972, created a stir that kept Miss Atwood in the news well into 1973, with its theory that the central theme in Canadian literature is survival. The book is to be published in the U.S.

Miss Atwood will open 1974 as the first Canadian to go to Russia in a cultural exchange involving writers. She will travel there for a month in return for the current visit to Canada by Soviet poet Yevgeny Yevtushenko.

Muriel Hampton and her eight-year-old daughter Cynthia had a narrow escape from death recently when the car Mrs. Hampton was driving skidded and overturned as she swerved to avoid hitting a dog. Snow at the time had made the road slippery. Damage to the car roof was extensive but both passengers emerged unhurt.

Hockey Helmets Take Tough Tests

By JEAN SHARP
CP Women's Editor

TORONTO (CP) — A 10-pound wooden block strikes a child if a puck or a stick is bounced off his head.

The tests are being made by the Canadian Standards Association (CSA) to test helmets and the safety standards the helmets must meet under federal regulations that come into effect Jan. 1.

F. Cecil Hamilton, manager of program planning, says the push for standards for helmets began with the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association asking the CSA to act.

The CSA is a voluntary, non-profit association supported by the business community.

Mr. Quail says, "First we confirm there is a need for a standard. In this case we sent a letter to trainers, coaches, hockey players and manufacturers to ask whether they would support a committee and work on the evolution of a standard.

"All the manufacturers agreed to help, which you need."

This committee has included a dentist and a doctor as well as sports experts and manufacturers.

There has been some disagreement from the standards that have resulted, but Mr. Quail defends them saying they represent the practical consensus of knowledgeable people. He says some compromise is always necessary.

Their main concerns were to protect players' heads from the impact of being hit and from the possibility of a skate blade getting through the helmet.

"We didn't worry too much about comfort. We did worry about how much head to expose. The player must be able to see and hear to be safe. Is it more important to have him able to hear or to cover the ear?

"Cost is a factor. If it's good, but costs too much, no one will buy it.

"The trouble with a standard is that you always expect perfection, but you always have to give something away.

"If we find we've reduced head injuries but not eliminated them, we may have to tighten the standards. There is little medical information around on what the head can take."

He says the testing procedures for the hockey helmets are new. The methods used on motorcycle and industrial helmets were of some help, though the problems are different. The damage done in testing on existing helmets also told them something about what to look for.

Once a standard is worked out and accepted, manufacturers and the CSA the first series off the production line and spot checks are done after that.

In this instance, because there are government regulations covering the helmet standards, meeting the standards is mandatory.

A CSA approval seal is given to those meeting the standards.

This does not mean all helmets will be exactly alike. Manufacturers will still style them and make them as expensive or inexpensive as they like, as long as they meet the safety standards.

"We don't care how they do it."

Once a customer has bought a helmet, Mr. Quail says he should clean and handle it the way the manufacturer recommends, or he might make it less safe. Paint and harsh cleansers, doping a helmet on a radiator, drilling a hole in it can all impair its usefulness.

Successful Living

Widow Needs Time For Grief to Pass

Dear Doris: What does one do with the day that is ahead? To get up in the morning with nothing but hopelessness to face, really no purpose for getting up at all!

I have applied for work but where does a woman of 53 years find a job. The reason for existing seems to have gone out of my life. My whole interest and purpose in life was my husband, who died a year ago.

I have a wonderful daughter and son-in-law who have been a source of strength to me, but they have their own lives to live. They are not with me during the long lonely hours at night.

"Life Is Meaningless,
Dear Meaningless: That dreary time of grief just has to happen, I guess. The ones who can pick up the piece and carry on as if nothing happened has turned life upside down, usually pays the piper later on.

Your loss, your shock is still new. If you weren't feeling depressed you wouldn't be human.

But it will not always be so. Do your best, right now, to reach out in kindness to someone worse off than you are and the shadows will lift a little.

Perhaps before long the right job will turn up to make you feel useful; perhaps you will find a woman friend to share lodgings with, and help banish those empty idle hours. Keep believing.

Confidential to Wife on the Beaches: Could it be that your husband has been dismissed all his life, and now takes all his frustrations, unconsciously, by insisting on dominating you? He is still more possessed by his parents than he is balanced, functioning married man, helping you to make ends meet.

Try making a list of all expenses; showing your husband how much his parents' share is costing you; and insist on his joining you in talking with them as a better deal.

Basically he is afraid of them. You aren't. Hold the line; gently, if possible, but firmly.

(There are Canadian resources to help solve your problem. Write to Doris for direction, in care of this newspaper, enclosing a envelope for private reply.)

Ann Landers
Ann, Reader Disagree Mercy Killing Benevolent

Dear Ann Landers: I read with great sadness the letter from the gentleman whose aged father was dying and how the doctors were doing everything under the sun to keep the old man alive even though he wanted to go. Another example of man's inhumanity to man.

My beloved father-in-law was 86 years old. There were no tubes or machines to keep him breathing. And for one solid week we watched him as he tried to escape this vale of tears. It was heartbreaking.

We had a dog we all loved dearly. He suffered a heart attack and was in so much pain he couldn't even lie down. We took him to the veterinarian and I held his paw while the doctor gave him a shot of sodium pentothal which he never even felt. In a short time he was out of his agony. Why can't we be as benevolent to man-kind?—I.V.

Dear I.V.A.: I have been an outspoken and vociferous critic of using "extraordinary measures" to keep a person alive when two or three doctors have concluded that the patient is hopelessly ill with a terminal disease. To deny a person the right to die with dignity is wrong.

Your suggestion, however, that a suffering patient be "put out of his misery," as you put it, is quite another matter. I do not believe in "mercy killing" and cannot condone the directive act to end a human life.

Dear Ann Landers: Is it a little peculiar (to put it delicately) for a 25-year-old girl to sleep with from seven to 10 dolls in her bed every night? My collection is enormous, and she is still buying them.

I am not in the locomotive so, of course. I have nothing to say. I raised five girls and they all had dolls, but none of them ever acted like this.

We are moving soon and I would like to give all these dolls to the Goodwill. In my opinion it's time the little girl grew up. Maybe I'm wrong, but I find it embarrassing when people see all the dolls in her room and ask, "How is the child?"

I'm looking to you for support, Ann. Please be on my side. Thank you.—Very Confused.

Dear V. C.: Giving the dolls to the Goodwill would not "help the little girl grow up." It would only make her bitter and resentful. If she got comfort and pleasure out of her doll collection, no one has the right to deprive her of it, no matter how old she is.

Dear Ann Landers: I have complete faith in both my clergyman and my psychologist, but they have given me conflicting advice pertaining to a matter that concerns my spiritual as well as my psychological well-being.

I feel as if I am being torn in mid-air, unable to make a decision. The source of the matter is too personal to describe in a letter and I'm sure you couldn't print it anyway.

Do you have a suggestion as to how I might resolve this conflict? I trust your judgment completely and would do as you say.—Torn in Cheektowaga

Dear Confused: What you are asking is which "adviser" to listen to, the clergyman or the psychologist. Sorry, dear, I can't tell you. I know nothing about either. Moreover, I have no desire to be the arbiter of the problem. Your best bet when faced with conflicting advice is to choose the least destructive.

Before, Watches Were Round

By JEAN SHARP
CP Women's Editor

TORONTO (CP) — Nowadays you don't buy a watch just to find out the time. You buy it as a fashion accessory, to change with your costume, even if you are one of the people who pays several thousand dollars for a watch.

Emil Keller said in an interview: "Nowadays all the watches are good. It's only a matter now of taste and personal appreciation. Before, all watches were round, and that was it.

"Now there is a trend for changing watches. 'I'm or 35 or 30 years ago, people who bought a watch bought it for life. Young people buy a watch every year or so now."

Mr. Keller is export manager for Piaget, a Swiss firm whose watches are sold by about 30 stores in Canada, including Lucas in Canada. Their average watch costs $3,000 to $4,000. Mr. Keller said their most expensive cost $105,000.

"Most of the people who can afford Piaget watches own several more than one. They buy them as jewelry, because they are collectors, or as an investment.

"We are going to have a record year. Since inflation some people don't want to keep cash. A $60,000 watch is an investment.

"It is exclusive. Apart from its intrinsic value, it is a collector's item."

Apart from the watch itself, pieces in this league area set with jewels, and Mr. Keller said colored stones are fashionable now. Stones such as jade, coral, opal, lapis lazuli are used with diamonds. Watch faces are made of tiger eye, a brown stone that is petrified wood and looks like wood.

"There is a slower change than there's in ready-to-wear fashions and designs that are classical. More than 50 per cent of our watches have been in our collection for more than 10 years.

"It takes 100 years for a piece of jewelry to become fashionable again because it has an antique charm.

"But we very seldom have customers who want jewels reset. They keep it as it is, rather than have it modernized. Often they are attached sentimentally to a piece.

"Especially if it is expensive, every piece is a piece of art, and it shouldn't basically be changed."

Mr. Keller said North American, Anglo-Saxon and German men like gold bracelets. Italian and South American men like leather straps. About 95 per cent of women's watch bracelets are gold, except for a few sports models.

If you are buying a watch for a man who is truly persnickety about knowing the right time, Mr. Keller suggests looking at an electronic quartz crystal watch.

The movement alone costs about $1,000, but he said it will not vary by more than one or two seconds a month.

Such watches, he said, are best bought in the world's exclusive jewelry houses because there are inferior models available.

LADY'S PRIVILEGE?

SOUTHEND, England (CP) — Bob and Ivy Walker were barely back from their honeymoon when Ivy went home to mother. The two women returned to the marital apartment and cleaned out all the furniture and the couple's savings. Bob, who sold two of Ivy's bracelets, was fined for stealing. "I think it's a bit steep," he said. "I've got absolutely nothing left from our marriage."

Troubled Film Finally Out

LOS ANGELES (Reuter) — Warner Brothers released its $10-million troubled production of William Blatty's The Exorcist Wednesday to reviews citing it as a "landmark" in the supernatural horror movie field.

The film about a modern-day possession of a young girl's body by the devil was praised by Los Angeles Times critic Charles Champlin as a film of "ferocious strength."

"It is strong and frequently revolting stuff," Champlin said.

The movie trade paper Variety said the film assaults "the senses and the intellect with pure cinematic terror, spellbinding but never gratuitous, revolting but always compelling."

Based on a documented case of possession and exorcism in a 14-year-old Maryland boy in 1949, the films relating the blasphemy and foul language of Blatty's book.

Originally set to cost $3 million, its cost skyrocketed partly because of mysterious happenings during production which led Blatty to claim the film itself might have been the target of supernatural forces.

These included a fire which destroyed a principal set in the New York studio, the flooding of another set because of the malfunctioning of a fire alarm system and the death of a principal actor, Jack McGowran, before his role was completed.

Warner Brothers, confident that the film will be a major contender in the Academy awards next April, is holding up wide-scale release until mid-April.

Local critics believe the film's director, William Friedkin, would win an Academy award for the second time within three years. He won the best director Oscar two years ago for The French Connection.

Singled out for praise in the reviews here was the film's special-effects director, Marcel Vercoutere.

The girl's bed shakes and rises, she levitates to the ceiling and open wounds suddenly erupt on her skin.

Champlin said that thanks to makeup man Dick Smith, the girls face is "the most ghastly and distorted since Dorian Gray's."

Questions and Answers On Highway Travel

Ontario Motor League
Eastern Ontario Club

QUESTION: How much is the fee for uninsured motor vehicle drivers?

ANSWER: The uninsured motor vehicle fee is $40 this year and must be paid when you obtain your 1974 vehicle registration, if you have no automobile insurance. Remember, you are not buying automobile insurance when you pay this fee.

The Motor Vehicle Accident Claims Fund protects accident victims, not the uninsured motorist. You must have adequate automobile liability insurance to be safe, and protected against tragic financial loss if you should cause an accident.

QUESTION: When can I get my new 1974 licence plates for my car and trailer?

ANSWER: Renewal registration for passenger motor vehicles and trailers for 1974 went on sale December 1st 1973. As in 1973, the fees are $22 for a 4-cylinder car, $32 for a 6-cylinder car, $40 for an 8-cylinder car and $5 for trailers. This year marks the first time that Ontario will be issuing a licence plate sticker instead of new plates to signify that the vehicle owner has paid his annual registration fee. No new permit will be issued for renewal as the present permit will be used for five years. Under the new system motorists will not be required to fill in an application as in the past but rather need only present their permit with the fee to the issuer. The issuer will then ask the motorist to sign an insurance declaration and will return the multi-year permit on which he has affixed a sticker. He will also provide another sticker the motorist will be required to attach to the rear of his vehicle.

QUESTION: We are planning on heading for Florida but are worried about the rumors concerning inability to obtain gas. Have you had any confirmation of these rumors?

ANSWER: So far, there have been no firm reports of anyone being refused gas on the main routes like I-75 out of Detroit. In fact, the Florida State Tourist Bureau's booth at the state border asks visitors to fill in a questionnaire, one of the questions being, "Did you experience any difficulty obtaining gas on your way to Florida?", and they say that they have not yet had one report of a visitor beingrefused gas on any of the main highways.

Our advice is to stick to the main routes, keep the top half of the gas tank filled and remember that there is no gas available from 9 p.m. Saturday to Sunday midnight each weekend.

Just remember too: that the speed limit of 50 mph is being rigidly enforced.

For those who are worried about driving all the way, there is still the auto-train from near Washington to Sanford, Fla., near Orlando. It is booked up until the latter part of January, but reservations and other details can be arranged for any time after that through Bolin's Travel Service in Belleville.

BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, FRIDAY, DECEMBER 28, 1973

100 Years--and All's Well

The most spectacular event of Mary Harriet Hart's life happened Thursday — after 100 years.

Not that she'd waked a century for it.

It's just when it arrived she suddenly couldn't recall a more momentous event, ever.

"The biggest thing that ever happened to me?" she pondered as relatives convened with cake and congratulations at Hastings Manor.

"This is the biggest thing that's ever happened to me."

And, with a little assistance, she walked to the table in the county home's guest lounge and prepared to preside at the party hailing her 100th birthday.

At the event she was as alert as any other day in her almost three-year residence at the home.

"She's right with it — enjoying life," said one of the home's nursing staff.

The restful awareness includes a healthy appetite.

She eats what she wants —and is very definite about what she wants to eat," said the nurse.

Mrs. Hart herself indicates she doesn't estimate her habits at 100 as extraordinary. She has no tips for setting longevity records.

Suggestions for a long life?

"None. Not as I know of," she says good-humorously. "I think I lived a very good life."

The good life extended over a period of history that saw society totally transformed.

She was born Mary Hawkes in England, into a family that made its living barging on the Thames at Rainham, Kent, on Dec. 27, 1873. Queen Victoria was about midway through her long reign, in a world of monarchies and empires.

In Canada, a month earlier, John A. Macdonald had been ousted from office by the Pacific Scandal. Liberal leader Alexander Mackenzie was prime minister.

In Belleville, the week of her birth, council met for the first time in its new impressive town hall and accepted a $2,400 tender to build a new Lower Bridge. Workmen were still hanging gas brackets to illuminate the clocktower that was to become the future city's landmark.

Married to William James Hart, Saturday's centenarian arrived in Belleville in 1908, following a short stay in Orillia after sailing from their home land.

Mrs. Hart for years worked as a shoemaker in the city. And through their marriage they were both active members of the Salvation Army.

Mr. Hart became a sergeant-major of the Belleville corps. Their daughter Ethel became a senior major, working in various cities across Canada.

Mrs. Hart has outlived her immediate family. Her son, William, died in Montreal in 1938; her husband in 1953 and daughter Ethel in 1971.

One of seven children, she says, she and a brother, William Hawkes of Orillia are now the only survivors. He's 94.

Her long association with the Salvation Army was recalled at her birthday party. Among the congratulations was a telegram from Arnold Brown, who spent much of his early life in Belleville. He's now Commissioner Brown, second-highest ranking officer of the Army's world organization.

Her immediate family — all present Thursday — is headed by a grandson, Howard Hart, a former Belleville resident, president of the Canadian Pulp and Paper Association and living at Beaconsfield, Que. Then there are his children — Mrs. Hart's great-grandchildren — William, 13, Peter, 14, Suzanne, 12, Caroline, 9.

Sporting -- Right To The End

Recent mild weather may have slushed up ground conditions. But where there's enthusiasm there's still sledding. This band of young Bellevillians kept up their sporting attempts even as the sun went down Thursday on Herchimer Ave. hill.

U.S. Gas Rationing Not Likely To Affect Canadian Tourists

WASHINGTON (CP) — Nobody is exactly sure how at this point, but the expectation here is that—in the event of gasoline rationing in the United States—Canadian tourists driving south will be taken care of.

Anyone planning such a trip, however, "should be guided by prudence," a Canadian embassy official said.

Both the state department and the office of the United States energy chief, William Simon, said Thursday that it was expected that the problems of prospective Canadian tourists would be taken into consideration.

Official policy on this and other aspects must be formulated and published in the federal register before Jan. 11.

Simon's announcement outlining a standby plan for gasoline rationing, even though it insisted that rationing may never have to be instituted, touched off a spate of enquiries to his office, to the state department and to the Canadian embassy here.

A state department source said:

"I'm sure provision will be made for foreigners bringing in their own cars and driving in Florida. Something to this effect will probably be folded into the contingency plan."

A spokesman for Simon's office agreed—"before anything like this goes into effect, there is sure to be some agreement. I'm sure something will be done to take care of visiting Canadians and Mexicans."

The Canadian embassy here is keeping close watch on the situation, advising Ottawa progressively as developments occur.

"It's not only a matter of possible gasoline rationing, but the allocation situation should be kept in mind," the embassy official said. "Canadians should remember that in many cases gas stations are closing on Sundays and that they may expect to find stations closed on other days as the gasoline supply fluctuates."

However, beyond that, the embassy said it would have no firm advice to Canadians travelling to the U.S. by car until U.S. regulations on this point are known—until travellers are faced with the fact of rationing."

Simon, in his announcement, said that even with the immediate printing of ration coupons, a program of rationing could not go into force before March 1.

"We have been very conscious of what it all might mean," one diplomat said. "It could affect not only Canadians driving south—which they do in great numbers—but also Americans driving north, which is a factor to consider."

All They Need For a Party

City police are investigating a break-in through the rear door of Swan-Dale Hosiery Fried Chicken on Station Street, that occurred before midnight last night.

Missing were: one turkey, eight chickens, two six-ounce bottles of pop, two packages of hamburger buns, two packs of dinner plates and a 19-inch portable black-and-white television set.

Some Sold Sweep Shares

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Two of the six Canadians who held lucky consolation tickets on favorite Comedy Of Errors solo half-interest but still won plenty of money Thursday.

One of them was Don Brewer, 30, owner of an automotive supply business in Cambridge, Ont., who collected $28,000 from an Irish syndicate for half of his ticket on the favorite last Thursday.

"They gambled and they won — maybe I lost a little but I would have hated to bear that my horse had tripped at the finish line," he said.

The winning ticket was worth more than $115,000. Mr. Brewer will still pocket $27,500, plus the $20,000 he was guaranteed. The Irish bookies will make a net profit of $77,500.

The other Canadian who held a half-share was Mary Chapman, a 47-year-old Kitchener, Ont., widow who works in a shoe factory.

She was unavailable for comment Thursday but a niece said Mrs. Chapman, normally a calm and quiet person, was taking "nerve pills" after hearing results of the race.

Two others refused to sell their tickets or share in the win - Paul L'Heureux, a 46-year-old crane operator in a St. Catharines, Ont., junkyard, was offered $20,000 last Friday for his ticket.

Andy Vanoostrum, a 36-year-old ore welder from Cumberland, Ont., near Ottawa, said he twice refused offers of $20,000 for his ticket.

They'll collect the full taxfree $50,000 or $115,625 as will Danny DeLong, a 27-year-old pulp mill foreman at Brooklyn, N.S., and Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Simpson of the Vancouver suburb of Burnaby.

Nineteen Canadians held tickets on the first three horses. Four won $29,000 or $46,250 on Brendon's Road, the 15-to-1 longshot which finished second and nine had tickets worth $10,000 or $23,125 on Captain Christy, the winner last year which went off at 2-to-1 odds and finished third.

Half of the 12 tickets drawn on Comedy of Errors were held by Canadians.

Spree Ends After $200,000 Mistake

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va., (Reuter) — A man who went on a spending spree after he was given $200,000 instead of $200 in a bank error has turned himself in on an auto theft charge here, police said.

James Garrett, 34, who received the $200,000 while working as a car salesman in Oakville, Ont., turned himself in to state police and FBI agents in Albermarle County where he was wanted for the theft of a re-tail car in October.

State police said Garrett turned himself in because he knew the FBI was about to catch him. He had been sought by the FBI on an unlawful flight warrant stemming from the auto theft charge.

Garrett was being sought in Canada on a theft charge.

While Garrett was working in Oakville, he cabled his mother in Virginia for money. She arranged for a $200 cheque to be sent to an Oakville bank but in the transfer the amount of the draft was erroneously made out for $200,000.

A man accepted $20,000 in cash and a credit note for $180,000 from the bank. Garrett then allegedly went on a two-month spree which took him to Las Vegas, Honolulu and various other spots in the United States.

Authorities here said Garrett has arranged through his lawyers in New York to return about $180,000 to the bank.

Garrett, a native of Lynchburg, Va., has been charged by state police with auto theft.

Police in Oakville said there has been no decision on whether to request Garrett's extradition.

Mission Half Completed

Astronauts Record Comet

HOUSTON (AP) — The sight of a comet streaking near the sun has captured the attention of the Skylab astronauts at the midpoint in their marathon space voyage.

The comet Kohoutek makes its closest approach to the sun today and begins the long climb back to the far reaches of the solar system.

Astronauts Gerald Carr, William Pogue and Edward Gibson also were to discuss the comet with its discoverer, Czech-born astronomer Lubos Kohoutek, who was to be in mission control in the late afternoon.

Carr, Pogue and Gibson reach the halfway point in their mission today, and flight director Milton Windler told reporters:

"I think the odds are very good that we'll complete the full 84 days both from the standpoint of the crew and the hardware."

During the night, scientists in mission control took charge of the station's telescopes to photograph Kohoutek as it hurtled toward the sun at 250,000 miles an hour.

The comet made its nearest approach to the sun, 13.24 million miles, at 5:34 a.m. EST while the crew slept. It then began its journey around the sun on a path that will take it beyond the orbit of Pluto. That's where it began its journey to the inner solar system an estimated two million years ago.

It will be another 75,000 years before it again appears near the earth.

The astronauts were to alternate at the telescopes today to record Kohoutek as it begins its flight away from the sun.

Thousands of scientists around the world have joined the comet watch. But the Skylab astronauts have the best viewing because they are above the layers of earth's atmosphere.

Because of the brightness of the sun, most earth observers can't see the comet now. But about Jan. 2, they should begin glimpsing it at twilight. By mid-term Jan. 5 and 10, it should appear as bright as Jupiter.

Pogue reported from Skylab Thursday: "It's very visible, and it's very bright."

Gibson said he could see the comet's tail of gas and dust "standing out quite a bit." The comet's nucleus is less than 25 miles in diameter, but the tail streams out more than 20 million miles.

Not as Bright As Expected

WASHINGTON (AP) — Comet Kohoutek "won't be a spectacular as we had hoped" for public viewing but will still be of great value to scientists, a National Aeronautics agency official said Thursday.

Dr. Stephen Maran of the Goddard Space Flight Centre said it was believed at one time that the comet would be as bright as the full moon. He said these estimates changed when it was discovered that the comet contained less dust than expected and would not reflect as much sunlight.

At its brightest, as seen by the naked eye, the head of the comet will probably be about as bright as the planet Jupiter.

The comet is due to pass behind the sun today, and then emerge as an object visible in the early evening sky for the first time.

Gas Goes Up Jan. 1

Belleville residential and commercial gas users will be subject to an average rate increase of seven cents per thousand cubic feet as of January 1, a Northern and Central Gas Corp. Ltd. official announced Thursday.

The Toronto based company announced it has received approval for the increase from the Ontario Energy Board. The company said the increase is interim and subject to confirmation at a full rate proceeding before the board early in 1974.

Industrial customers across the province will not be affected.

This morning, a company official explained the rate will be increased by an amount equivalent to gas cost increases experienced in the second half of 1973. The gas company's supplier, Trans-Canada Pipeline, recently raised the cost of gas.

Air Exercises Restricted

NORTH BAY, Ont. (CP) — The commander of the Canadian Air Defence Command and the 22nd region of the North American Air Defence Command (NORAD) based here said Thursday energy shortages have resulted in cuts of "live" exercises."

Gen. W. M. Carton said this includes increased use of simulators where a computer does all the work.

The general said the two defence commands are observing a 15-per-cent energy cut ordered by the federal government.

Guest of Honor Well Remembered

A distinguished Bellevillian was honored at a birthday party last night. The guest of honor wasn't there although some of his descendants were present.

The party took place at a city school named after him. Sir Mackenzie Bowell and it was to mark his 150th birthday.

Sir Mackenzie's great grandsons, Bruce and Mackenzie Holton of Fort Hope were there. As were the fifth prime minister's great-great-grandchildren, Janis, Kathrine, and Blake Holton and Beth Shorey.

Mackenzie and Bruce Holton were the children of Mackenzie's daughter, Cora line, one of nine children of the statesman and his Belleville-born wife, Harriett. Sir Mackenzie, born in England, came to Belleville when he was 18. He died in Belleville in 1917.

Jack Thomson, a Whitby school teacher who has made an intensive study of the life of Sir Mackenzie, spoke on the statesman.

He outlined Sir Mackenzie's involvement with the Orange Order and his political life. Sir Mackenzie was apprenticed at the age of 12 to the Belleville Intelligencer of which he was editor and publisher from 1834 to 1845.

He was Canada's minister of trade and commerce from 1894 to 1896 he was Canada's fifth prime minister.

Representatives from various organizations, all of which played a part in Sir Mackenzie's life, were present last night. Entertaining the city was Mayor Robin Jeffrey, while Jack Ellis, MP for Hastings-Frontenac and the federal government. Major Carl Hubbell represented the militia and Miriam Graham represented the school system.

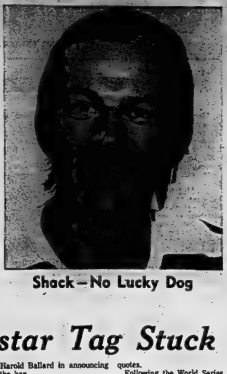
The 150th birthday party was sponsored by the Hastings County Historical Society under its president, Gerald Boyce.



Happy 150th Birthday

Off-beat Sports Quote of 1973

Ordinary Superstar Tag Stuck

By GORDON GRANT
CP General Sports Editor

Johnny Rodgers said earlier this year he wanted to be just "ordinary superstar."

He spent a lot of time later explaining what he meant, but most of the sports writers and broadcasters voting in the Canadian Press year-end poll picked those words as the most off-beat sports quote of 1973.

For the record, the Montreal Alouette all-star wide receiver and the 1972 Heisman Trophy winner as the top college football player in the United States, explained he wanted to be a superstar, but also "to be one of the guys."

"I don't want to be put on a pedestal as so many superstars are," he said. "I want to be treated like anyone else."

Rogers wasn't the only man in football to utter a memorable mouthful.

"The Calgary Stampeders will win the Grey Cup," said Jim Duncan, Stampeder coach.

Less than a month later, Duncan was fired and the Stampeders missed the Canadian Football League playoffs.

To add insult to injury, Roger Kramer, a former Stampeder said:

"I'll tell you how bad it was. For my last two years, I was the worst tackle in the league and everyone knew it but Duncan."

Then there was Angelo Mosca, one of the most feared and nasty defensive tackles in the CFL. Following his retirement after the 1972 season he applied for a job with the league as a public relations man.

He said: "I think I could do a lot to promote goodwill for the Canadian Football League."

Mosca now earns his living being a bad guy on the professional wrestling circuit.

The first half of the Western Football Conference final between Edmonton Eskimos and Saskatchewan Roughriders was played in heavy fog. Even ground-level television cameras missed most of the action.

After one play, a commentator said:

"Now we're going to see a replay of that last play—although I don't know why."

Hockey had its moments.

When Ted Garvin was appointed coach of Detroit Red Wings of the National Hockey League he said he'd build the club into a winner.

While his exact words have been lost, many participants in the poll thought they were the most off-beat of the year.

Garvin lasted 12 games before being fired—the Red Wings' record was two wins, one tie and nine losses.

His parting words were also considered by some to be pretty funny:

"We were just getting to know each other," he said.

Then there was irrepressible Eddie Shack of Toronto Maple Leafs who said he was upset because the Leafs wouldn't allow his dog in the dressing room—despite the fact the dog brought the club back.

"But that isn't luck he leaves on the floor, Eddie," said Maple Leaf president Harold Ballard in announcing the ban.

Another Maple Leaf, defenceman Jim McKenny, was asked to name some of the NHL's tough men in the corners.

"That's tough to answer," said McKenny. "I haven't been in the corners too often myself."

And George Armstrong, coach of Toronto Marlboros, Memorial Cup champions, explained his success.

"My secret as a coach is to remember I have a good hockey club and not to ruin it with a lot of coaching."

Bears' Loss Helps Raiders

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Nepean Raiders, although idle Thursday night, remained in sole possession of first place in the Central Junior Hockey League today after their nearest rival, Smiths Falls Bears, lost a 4-3 decision to Gloucester Rangers and remained in second spot.

Gloucester moved two points closer to Smiths Falls to tighten a grip on third place.

In the only other game Thursday, fourth-place Pembroke Lumber Kings skated to a 4-2 win over bottom-dwelling Rockland Nationals.

Dual Role to Disappear—Francis

NEW YORK (AP) — He sits high up in the press box, about as far away from the Madison Square Garden ice as you can get.

But Emile Francis, general manager of the National Hockey League New York Rangers, says he sees the game every bit as well now as he did when he stood behind the bench, doubling as the club's coach.

"Maybe better," he said with a smile Thursday, eyeing the television set at his elbow that provides him with instant replays.

Francis surrendered the coaching job to Larry Popein this winter after spending most of the last eight years doubling as bench boss and general manager.

"You always miss something you liked," said Francis, "and I liked coaching.

"When you've done something like that for as long as I did, sure you miss it. But there's so much to keep me busy that I really don't have much time to think about it."

Francis piloted the Rangers into the playoffs for seven straight seasons while doubling as GM-coach. Other NHL executives marvelled at his ability to do both jobs. He thinks the dual role will soon disappear.

NHL expansion to 18 teams next season and the development of the rival World Hockey Association have complicated the GM's job.

"With what's going on now, one man can't do both. There's no question about time."

Not being tied down to the parent club has given Francis more time to watch other hockey players. He spent last week in Providence, R.I., and Springfield, Mass., watching American League games, and in Boston to see some NHL players too.

"Providence is our top farm club," he said. "Last year, when I was coaching, I only saw that team three times all year. I've seen them 12 times this season already."

Then there was the matter of a five-player trade with Los Angeles Kings last month. Before he made the deal for defenceman Gilles Marotte, Francis watched the Kings play five games in nine days. "There's no way I could have done that if I were still coaching."

Part of the problem Francis faced when he were two bats was negotiating contracts with draft choices. "I'd be sitting with a player I might never have seen," said Francis.

"We had 33 players whom our scouts recommended," said Francis, "By the time we draft, I will have seen 32 of them."

That's progress for the Rangers, but not for Francis. He has no more leisure time with one job than he did with two. For example, this week he finally got around to seeing his 15-year-old son, Bobby, play a game with a team of New York City junior-age all stars.

"That was the first time I've seen them," said Francis.

Voyageurs Like Home Ice

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Nova Scotia Voyageurs continued their Jekyll and Hyde existence Thursday night.

At home, they generally are on their best behavior, as they were Thursday night in defeating Providence Reds 5-1. The win gives them 11 wins and three ties in 15 games at home.

But going on the road seems to have some effect on their play as Dr. Jekyll's potion had on his personality. They are 2-14-3 away from home.

The victory moved the third-place Voyagers within one point of the Reds in the North Division. Haven Night's hawks lead with 45 points, six ahead of Providence.

In the other game, Virginia Red Wings beat Richmond Robins 3-1.

Hershey Bears top the South Division with 64 points, four more than Cincinnati Swords and seven ahead of Baltimore Clippers. Jacksonville Barons have 37 points, Virginia 25 and Richmond 18.

Nova Scotia 5 Providence 1

Centre Jim Cahoon had two goals and an assist to lead the Voyageurs to victory before 2,940 fans in Halifax. The winners outshot the Reds 57-26, including 23-5 in the first period while taking a 3-0 lead.

Ron Andruff, Sean Shanahan and Ed Gilbert got the other Nova Scotia goals. Andre Pelotty scored the lone Providence goal at 3:40 of the second period.

Virginia 3 Richmond 1

The Red Wings scored a goal in each period for their 11th triumph in 31 games.

The teams were tied 1-1 until Bud DeBrody got the winning goal at 12:19 of the second period.

Dan Gruen and Mike Jakubo got the other Virginia goals before 8,025 fans in Richmond. George Pesut scored the only goal for the Robins, who outshot the visitors 40-28 but were foiled several times by goalie Terry Richardson.

Richmond received 54 minutes in penalties compared with 37 minutes handed to Virginia. Richmond's Ray Schultz picked up two majors, a 10-minute misconduct and a game misconduct for fights with Lee Carpenter and Len Fontaine.

Quebec Remparts, who earlier this month were in first place in the Quebec Major Junior Hockey League's East Division with 49 points, six ahead of Sorel Black Hawks, found themselves four points behind Sorel 4-3 as a result of Thursday's action.

Sorel hammered Laval Nationals 10-6 in Laval while the Remparts dropped a 4-3 decision to Drummondville Rangers to end Trois-Rivieres Draveurs defeated Shawinigan Dynamos 4-2.

Towers Squeezed Out In Silver Puck Event

TRENTON — Goals for and against are important statistics in hockey but in the Silver Puck Tournament being staged at the Community Gardens here this week, that part of the game takes on added significance.

Ask Belleville Towers Food City major storm.

Food City finished its three games in the storm section with two wins and one loss. Kingston Township and Trenton teams finished with identical records.

The top two teams in minor and major divisions advance to the finals. The three-way tie in the major category brought the goals for and against into the picture. And Belleville found itself out of the final by a margin of 13 per cent.

Here's how it went.

Towers scored 11 goals in the three games while giving up eight for a mark of 72 per cent. Trenton and Kingston each scored 10 times. Kingston allowed only five goals and had a percentage of 58 while Trenton was scored on six times and that gave the host team a 60 per cent result.

Food City waited until the final game of the day to lose out. The team won its first two starts, edging Trenton 3-2 and then blanking Napanee 6-0. But Kingston put Towers out of it by posting a 5-3 win in the windup to the day-long schedule of 12 games.

Towers fell behind 3-0 in the early going of the game with Kingston but rallied to make it 3-3 with the only goal of the second period and another counter early in the third.

Kingston pulled away with three unanswered goals late in the game to clinch a spot in the championship game and put Belleville on the sidelines.

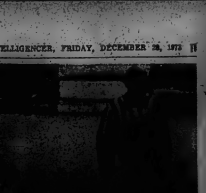
Danny Allen and Barry Graham each fired a pair of goals for Kingston with singles for Brent Franklin and Robert Thornbury.

Team captain Stewart Eccles had a goal and an assist to lead Towers. D'Arcy Maher had the other Belleville goal. Picking up an assist each were Rick Mandeville, Steve Thompson and Gary Green.

In the opening game on to win over Trenton. Thompson was a two-goal shooter for Towers with Meher adding the odd counter. Todd Woodward and Mike Nadjiwon were the Trenton marksmen.

Maher had two goals in the 6-0 defeat of Napanee. Singles went to Bryson Lambie, Craig Saxby, Steve Molaski and Emerson. Rick Cook and Brad Hunter combined talents to chalk up the shutout.

Trenton scored 3-0 and 5-3 wins over Kingston and Napanee respectively while Kingston shut out Napanee for its first win of the series.



So it's Trenton and Kingston in the major final Sunday at 4.10 p.m.

In the minor section, Belleville Quintes gave it a good try but lost all three games. Trenton Legion stopped Quintes 5-1 in the tournament opener and the Belleville skaters were shaded 4-3 by Ajax before bowing 7-1 to Kingston Township.

Tim Mulrooney had the lone goal in the loss to Trenton. In the game with Ajax, Quintes' counters were supplied by Mark Horwood, Chris Coates and Bryan Beer. Robbie Stinchcombe was the lone marksman in the loss to Kingston.

Kingston and Ajax qualified for the minor final. Kingston went through three games without a defeat while Ajax completed its games with two wins and a loss. They meet Sunday at 3 p.m. for the championship.

Tournament action continues today and Saturday. The peewees run through a 12-game set today with 16 teams taking over Saturday. Belleville is represented in minor and major divisions both days.

Dixie Lee Wins 4-2 At Trenton Tourney

TRENTON (Special) — Belleville Dixie Lee scored a 4-2 win over Trenton Loyalist Coach Lines in minor division peewee play this morning as the second day of the Silver Puck Tournament got under way.

Thursday, Alton teams in major and minor sections played a 12-game schedule and Saturday, the Bantams will take to the Community Gardens ice with the finals in all categories to be played Sunday.

Dixie Lee was scheduled for its second of three games at 1.50 p.m. with Ajax supplying the opposition. The Belleville team's final game of the day is at 6.30 p.m. against Kingston Township.

Belleville is represented in the major division by Rollins Construction. Rollins was assisted to make its first tourney start against Trenton Raiders at 10.20 this morning. This afternoon at 4.10, Belleville will be out four weeks.

Wellington Tournament At Stirling

Thanks to the Village of Stirling, Wellington's annual minor hockey tournament will go on as scheduled this year.

Stirling has offered ice time at the village arena to officials of the Wellington Minor Hockey Association. Wellington's arena was destroyed by fire recently.

First round tournament games match Wellington and Brighton at 8:30 Saturday morning; Stirling and Frankford, 9:30; Campbellford and Millbrook, 10:45, and Ayr vs. Napanee, 11:45.

Tournament action continues through the day at Stirling Arena.

TWO SWORDS INJURED

CINCINNATI (AP) — Cincinnati Swords said Thursday they have lost two players to injuries. Centre Joey Robertson, who suffered a broken leg against Hershey in an American Hockey League game Dec. 13, is out four weeks.

Splitting the Defence

Major Alton action was fast and furious during Silver Puck Tournament games at Trenton Community Gardens Thursday.

Kingston Township player was to squeeze between a pair of Belleville Towers Food City defenders in pursuit of the puck. Peewee teams get their chance for tournament play today with the backams taking over tomorrow. Finals in all divisions will be played Sunday.

Bobcats At Home For Two

Bobcats are within striking distance of first place Pickering Panthers heading for their final games of the year and will be giving it all they've got to overhaul the leaders before 1976.

Peterborough supplies the opposition for tonight's game. Cats go into this one with 41 points, good for third place behind Markham Royals, 45 points and the Panthers, 43.

Markham and Pickering did the Cats a favor Wednesday night when they played to a 7-7 tie. That turn of events kept the Royals from opening up more daylight at the top of the heap.

Sunday night at Memorial Arena Markham is the visitor. It's the first meeting between the two clubs this season.

Plante's Fines Do the Trick

By NEIL CAMPBELL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The fines coach Jacques Plante handed out to the players was earlier in the day considered to have a positive effect on the play of Gerry Cheevers' Cleveland Crusaders.

Quebec defeated Cleveland Crusaders 4-3 to vault into a second-place tie with Toronto Toros in the World Hockey Association East Division.

Plante, who is general manager of the club, fined goaltenders Serge Aubry and Richard Brodeur $100 each and forwards Rejean Houle and Michel Parizeau $50 each.

The goalies missed a Wednesday workout while Houle and Parizeau showed up late for it.

Aubry and Brodeur didn't play Thursday, but the fines remained set up Guy Dufour's goal-tending and Claude Larose's second goal. Gerry Cheevers' was the winner in the second period.

"Michel Plante had an easy time of it in the Quebec goal, as the Nordiques got outshot the Crusaders 28-17.

The Nordiques and Toros each have identical records. Cleveland dropped to fourth place in the

Czechs Down Bombers 5-3

Canada, represented by Flin Flon Bombers of the Western Canada Hockey League, surprised the favored Czechs with two goals in the first period. Bob Watt beat goalie Pavel Svitana and Cliff McCrae hit the same 11 minutes later.

The Czechs then scored three straight goals, with Hrbaty getting two for a 3-2 lead after two periods.

Cam Connor tied the score on a power play in the second period, but Czechoslovakia's Milos Novy scored on a rebound puck past goalie Roger Swanson at 9:39 of the period and Milan Nevoy closed out the scoring two minutes later.

Hawley at 510

LAUREL, Md. (AP) — Gala Double, ridden by Sandy Hawley, captured the $34,250 Seneca Handicap at Laurel, finishing 6½ lengths ahead of Dicey.

It was the fifth victory of the year for Hawley, a 26-year-old native of Oshawa, Ont., and his first stakes triumph for Gala Double.

Northern Law jumped off to a two-length lead at the half-way point, but Gala Double had no opponent in site as the fourhorse field made the stretch turn.

Hayley then asked for a little extra, and the two-year-old Maryland-bred son of Spring Double II produced a quick burst of speed, passing the leader easily and drawing off to win unchallenged.

"I had a handful of horse all the way," Hawley said. "I knew I'd set him down he just took off."

Gala Double ran the 1 1-16 miles in 1:50 1-5 over a muddy track and paid $5.60 and $3.40 as the 9-to-5 favorite, third. Because of late scratch reduced the field to four, there was no show wagering.

Three Pointer

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Coach Alex Hannum of Denver Rockets never tires of witnessing a three-point basket, especially when it plays a key role in helping his team win an American Basketball Association game.

Thursday night was an example when rookie Mike Green scored on a 30-foot shot that carried the Rockets to a 105-100 triumph over Kentucky Colonels.

Stu Aninclo whipped Dan Diego 104-76 in the other ABA game.

In the National Basketball Association, Milwaukee Bucks beat Philadelphia 76ers 129-107, Phoenix Suns defeated Seattle SuperSonics 113-100, Kansas City-Omaha Kings downed Cleveland Cavaliers 118-108 and Portland Trail Blazers edged Golden State Warriors 118-117.

Tops in WHA

Wayne Connelly of Minnesota Fighting Saints picked up a goal and an assist Thursday night to climb to eighth place in the World Hockey Association points race.

He now has 21 goals and 19 assists for 40 points, 13 behind leading Wayne Carleton of Toronto Toros.

tight East Division race. Cleveland has played 34 games, Quebec 36 and Toronto 35.

Minnesota played 37 games. Minnesota Fighting Saints remained three points in the WHA West with a 5-4 win over the slumping Edmonton Oilers and New England Whalers downed Los Angeles Sharks 5-3.

Rebels 5 Oilers 4

Rob Wallen had a goal and two assists and goalie John Garrett blocked 34 shots for the Rebels, who last the Oilers and Houston Aeros by one point.

Ted Hampson's breakaway goal at 16:32 of the 2nd period proved to be the winner as Minnesota battled back from a 3-0 first-period deficit.

Whalers 5 Sharks 1

John French and Tom Webster scored in the third period goal scorers apart to break open a tight game, as the Whalers gained their first win of the year on the Toros and Nordiques.

A first-period fight between New England's Ted Green and the Sharks' Steve Sutherland also involved Whalers' Danielle Smith, who was handed a minor and misconduct. Moe Legault also drew a bench penalty.

Tonight, Vancouver Blazers play New Jersey Knights at Cherry Hill, N.J., and the Toros play the Cougars at Chicago.

Marlies Top Swedes

TORONTO (CP) — Brian Dillon scored two goals Thursday night to lead Toronto Marlboros of the Ontario Hockey Association Major Junior A series to a 4-3 victory over Leksand of Sweden in an international hockey tournament game.

It was the first game for each club in the six-team round-robin tournament, which includes participants from Czechoslovakia and Finland. Dillon, along with Cambridge Hornets' Bruce Crawford Foresters of the OHA Senior A series.

Cambridge defeated Czechoslovakia Tesla 5-2 Wednesday night.

Before an estimated crowd of 3,000 at Toronto, the first period was scoreless with Toronto goalie Mike Palmateer making several key saves as the Swedes outshot the Marlies 17-5.

Bruce Boudreau and Mike Marson, on loan from Sudbury Wolves of the OHA, each got the other Toronto goals. Benny Anderson scored both goals for Orebro of the Swedish team in Sweden.

The Marlboros also had players from Oshawa Generals and Hamilton Red Wings, both members of the Junior A series, in the lineup.

Sweden outshot Toronto 36-31 over-all and took eight of 13 minor penalties.

Second Loss For Regina

STOCKHOLM (CP-Reuter) — Regina Pats suffered their second straight setback in Abrarne Cup play Thursday, 10-5, to Moscow Dynamo.

Three goals by Rich Ulrich were not enough to offset the power of Dynamo as the Soviet team outscored the Canadians in each period—3-1, 3-2, 4-2.

In other Abrarne Cup contests involving Swedish clubs, Djurgarden dumped Swedish champion Leksand 7-4 and Soderstalj defeated AIK-Stockholm 6-2.

International Tournament Under Way

LENINGRAD, U.S.S.R. (CP-AP) — Canada was idle Thursday as the World Junior hockey tournament, a day in which the favored Czechoslovakia and Soviet Union teams posted victories.

The Czechs were hard-pressed in snatching a 6-4 win from Sweden in the opening game of the six-country tournament while the host Russians handled Finland 8-2.

The Finns and Swedes meet today, when Canada, represented by Peterborough, Prize of the Ontario Hockey Association Major Junior A series plays the United States.

Morton Waits Chance

Should Cowboy quarterback Roger Staubach get injured on one of his many scrambles, Landry knows he can send in a nine-year veteran who is capable of keeping the potent Dallas offence perking along.

Quarterback Craig Morton has quietly played out his role as a backup-idler this season, asking only that he be traded at the earliest opportunity.

Morton was used only when the Cowboys were way ahead, when Staubach was injured, or to hold the centre snaps for Toni Fritsch's extra point and field-goal attempts.

In the NFC semi-final playoff game against Los Angeles Sunday, Staubach suffered a stunning blow while scrambling for yardage. He was taken to two plays while Staubach completed a 29-yard pass to Drew Pearson on a play. As it turned out, Staubach was the veteran who ran the game and Landry came close to putting Morton into the game to stay.

"Staubach is still young, but he's getting to be the starting quarterback," says Morton.

"Also, I listen in when coach Landry sends in the plays so I can get a picture of what he's thinking."

Four National Football League teams are interested in Morton, who became incensed last year when Landry yanked him from the NFC playoff game against San Francisco 49ers.

The teams reported interested in Morton are San Diego Chargers, Green Bay Packers, Denver Broncos and the 'Skins.

Minnesota was scheduled to arrive tonight to prepare for Sunday's 1 p.m. (EST) kickoff. The Vikings will work out at Texas Stadium Saturday.

Money Motivates Foley

MIAMI (AP) — When you come right down to it, glory isn't the big motivating factor. Money is. Just ask Tim Foley.

For the second straight year, the Miami Dolphins' cornerback may pick up a big Super Bowl cheque without even working up a sweat in the game.

"It looks like we'll still young enough players—that our economic planners can't do well enough to get us established—that we could use $25,000," Foley said during a Dolphin workout Thursday.

The winner of Sunday's game will pocket $15,000 while the losers will head home, comforted in part by a $5,000 check.

But the winner can grab an additional $15,000 by winning the National Football League title in the Super Bowl Jan. 13 at Houston against either Dallas Cowboys or Minnesota Vikings.

Add that to the payoff from last year's first-round games—it comes out to one-seventh of the coach's annual salary—and you've got yourself a pretty healthy bundle of money.

Foley suffered a shoulder separation in the Dolphins' 34-10 win over Washington Redskins. He's getting over the same injury now.

And even though he's healthy enough to play, he's still watching games from the bench, the decision of Lloyd Mumphord's fine work in his absence.

If Mumphord keeps it up, coach Don Shula may have him and Foley again may be a Super Bowl starting duo.

"We're happy because we've got a chance now to become one of the better teams that ever played football," says Foley.

"Back-to-back Super Bowls would do more than just establish us as one of the great teams. I think that's in the back of our minds."

Only one team, the 1967-68 Green Bay Packers, has won two straight Super Bowls.

Sunday's game will be an artificial turf, but a slogan taped on the trainers' door in the Raiders' locker room reflects the dolphins' preference.

"Gravel, sand, dirt, mud, turf, grass, cement or asphalt, it doesn't matter. We came here to play football," it says.

Super Bowl quarterbacks:

The Raiders, who fly into record tonight, practice on the artificial turf at Miami-Dade Community College because their practice field was "a disgrace."

Coach John Madden of the Raiders said he wasn't letting the fact the game is being played on Miami territory bother him.

Rick Martin—Pots a Pair

French Connection Is Back in Business

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

For the French Connection line, it was as though Gil Perreault had never been away.

With Perreault back on the job, the line accounted for all three Buffalo goals Thursday night as the Sabres defeated Detroit Red Wings 3-2 in National Hockey League game.

The reunited threesome accounted for 14 Sabre shots as the Sabres outshot the Wings 40-26.

"I'm very pleased with the way Perreault skated," said Buffalo coach Joe Crozier.

"He was dancing last night, skating with authority, and it's nice to see that his line got three goals. We could have had more except their goaltender (rookie Bill McKenzie) played very well.

Buffalo goalie Dave Dryden, who has started 22 games and won 12 for the Sabres this year, first blocked a shot when Detroit rookie Nelson Debenedet poked a shot through a scramble in front of the net.

"I fell and he put it under," sighed Dryden.

Jerry Korab, obtained in a trade from Vancouver Canucks earlier this week, arrived in Buffalo just 80 minutes before game time, but played full shifts on defence.

The win was an important one for the Sabres, moving them within two points of fourth-place Toronto Maple Leafs and stalling the improving Wings, who remain eight points behind the Leafs.

The Flames 6 Kings 4

Bob Leiter scored three times from the slot, twice on passes from Larry Romanchych, to lead the Flames to their victory.

Defenceman Tracy Pratt, sent to Vancouver by Buffalo in the Korab trade, was balking at the move.

Pratt, who at first told Canucks general manager Hal Laycoe he wanted more money in report, was to be in Vancouver today to meet with Laycoe.

Laycoe said Pratt would be suspended unless he reported for action today. Atlanta was the other player in the trade. It will be in the lineup for tonight's game against Minnesota North Stars.

The Leafs, who have been using three goalies in rotation, will have only one ready to play against Atlanta Flames Saturday night.

Doug Favell, who suffered back pains in Wednesday's 9-2 win against Montreal Canadiens, expects to be ready to play when his turn comes up again in five days, but he'll undergo examination in hospital.

Ed Johnston, who injured leg against Boston Bruins last Sunday, won't be ready to play this weekend. That leaves Dunc Wilson as the starter for both Saturday's game in Toronto and Sunday's game in Chicago against the Black Hawks.

FOUR NORDIQUES FINED

QUEBEC (CP) — Jacques Plante, general manager and coach of the World Hockey Association Les Nordiques, Thursday fined four of his players for various infractions concerning a Wednesday practice. Plante fined goaltenders Serge Aubry and Richard Brodeur $100 for missing the workout and forwards Rejean Houle and Michel Parizeau $50 apiece for reporting late for the practice.

HARVEY SUSPENDED

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (AP) —Right winger Buster Harvey of Minnesota North Stars was suspended indefinitely Thursday by coach Parker McDonald for ineffective play and insubordination. McDonald said Harvey would not accompany the team on a two-game road trip and would not be paid by the North Stars while he is under suspension.

Your Horoscope

Saturday, Dec. 29
By BERNICE BEDE OSOL

Aries (March 21-April 19): You'll do yourself more good in the long run if you put the needs of others well ahead of your own. Be charitable.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Over the next few days contacts that you now have will, in various manners, help advance your interests in important areas.

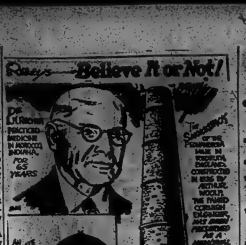
Gemini (May 21-June 20): Conditions that contribute to your basic security look especially favorable at this time. Build upon these solid foundations.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): This is a good period to rectify misunderstandings you may have had recently with a friend.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Some one you're associated with stands to offer more than just friendship. There's a key to the relationship; if properly developed.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): This is a much better day to make serious decisions than yesterday. Revise your thinking if you now see a clearer path.

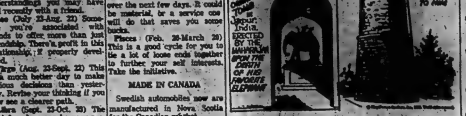
Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): The next few days can be very productive, if you plan your schedule wisely. Clean up work you've fallen behind on.



Scorpio (Oct. 24-Nov. 22): You're much more appreciated socially than you realize. Let your favorable people know you'd like a get-together.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23-Dec. 21): A good day to set up a conference on situations pertinent to the family as a whole. Seek their consensus before you take any steps.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Have more peace of mind. Get in touch with one you've neglected lately. Let her know she's important to you.



Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 19): A small windfall is not unlikely over the next few days. It could be material or a service one will do that saves you some bucks.

Pisces (Feb. 20-March 20): This is a good cycle for you to do a lot of loose ends together to further your self interests. Take the initiative.

Celebrant, Consider Ways to Get Home

By BRUCE EASSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

If you plan to bring in New Year's in high style with the grain or grape, now is the time to consider a safe means home for the morning after.

Public transit:

It's free New Year's eve in several communities, particularly major Ontario centres. Even if the fare does cost 25 or 30 cents, it's much cheaper than the bail from jail.

Taxi?

Try to arrange ahead with a cab company to collect you for the heavy-headed trip home to aspirin.

Transporting the inebriated "will be most of our business that night but it won't be free," says the spokesman for one Vancouver taxi firm.

A friendship driver?

A friend indeed for those in need. If there's one where you are partying, ply him or her well with coffee and cake.

Police:

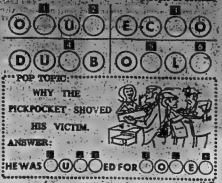
Constabulary in Charlottetown and Moncton, N.B., will help those who have partied too well to get home if other police duties don't intrude.

Calgary police offered such a service at Christmas but take a hard line at New Year's.

"When 95 per cent of the people go out with the expressed purpose of getting into the booze bag . . . It's good luck, to them," said a Calgary police spokesman.

Bed for the night:

Some hotels in a number of major communities are including a room for the night in the tariff for their New Year's festivities.



At private parties, even a pillow and a blanket on the floor are preferable to the mattress of a jail cot.

A Cross-Canada Survey by The Canadian Press indicates police in most areas agree with the Calgary police spokesman.

However, Sgt. Gordon Deary of the Nepean Township force near Ottawa, said the family will be called to pick up any driver charged with impaired driving after a breath analysis test. This is the procedure with most forces.

Hydro Demand Steady

TORONTO (CP) — Despite a general growth in Ontario and a more buoyant economy, voluntary customer restraint is keeping energy consumption at about the same level as last year, an Ontario Hydro spokesman said Thursday.

"There's no question but that this is a result of voluntary restraints on the part of our customers," the spokesman said.

During last week's cold spell, an all-time high of 13.7 million kilowatts was demanded Dec. 17 and, met by a system with a delivery capability of 17 million kilowatts. The previous peak demand was 13.7 million kilowatts one day during the first week of December, 1972.

However, the return of milder weather during the weekend has brought peak demands to about the same level as this time last year, when Ontario enjoyed a particularly mild December.

Economic Council Altered

TORONTO (CP) — Premier William Davis has appointed 14 new members, one of them a woman, and re-appointed four others to the Ontario Economic Council.

Mr. Davis said in a statement Thursday the changes represented an attempt to strengthen the council under chairman Dr. Grant L. Reuber. The chairman was appointed earlier this year for a three-year period.

"It is my goal to have the council play a key role in the formation of public policy in this province," Mr. Davis said. The council is an independent, provincially-financed body engaged in social and economic research.

Its reports are not binding on the government but they influence policy decisions.

Mr. Davis said two other members will be appointed shortly to bring the council to its maximum statutory strength of 21 members.

A council spokesman said in an interview 12 members were not reappointed, some because of age and others because they had indicated they were not able to devote enough time to council duties.

She and Elizabeth Leitch were the only women members of the council. Mrs. Leitch, an economic adviser, has retired.

PIERRE TRUDEAU

PM Sees Two Foes

OTTAWA (CP) — Alberta and Saskatchewan will line up against the federal government at the federal-provincial premiers' conference on energy in late January, Prime Minister Trudeau said Thursday.

"The other provinces will fall somewhere in between."

He told reporters he does not foresee the prospect as a constitutional battle but a political discussion.

Provincial aspirations must be taken into account in shaping energy policy, he said, but the federal government has a duty to speak for all Canadians.

The conference, scheduled Jan. 27-29, will focus on energy. Alberta is by far the largest oil-producing province. Saskatchewan ranks second.

Trio Claiming To Be Police Beat Youth

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) — RCMP and Niagara regional police are investigating the beating of an 18-year-old youth in a motel room here Dec. 18.

John LaRonde, who lived in the motel, said he opened his door to three men who said they were police. He and his room were searched, he said.

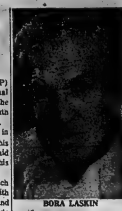
He said he was not told which police force the men were with and alleges he was beaten and kicked during the 15-minute search.

"They showed me a badge, but it disappeared so fast I could not read it," he said.

The youth was treated in hospital later that night for injured ribs and bruises to the arms, neck and face. No charges were laid against him.

Regional Deputy-Chief James Gayder said Thursday the matter is being investigated.

"It now is understood that one of our men was involved," he said.



Staff Sgt. H. J. S. Blythe of the local detachment of the RCMP said that the investigation is "out of my hands."

"I reported to my superior and the investigation is continuing out of Toronto."

Wife Charged

HAMILTON (CP) — The wife of Burton James, assistant vice-president of administration at McMaster University who was shot and killed Christmas Eve, was remanded in provincial court Thursday to Jan. 4 on a charge of non-capital murder.

Mr. James, 56, was shot Monday night in his home in nearby Ancaster.

BORA LASKIN

Bora Laskin To Get Award

TORONTO (CP) — Mr. Justice Bora Laskin on the Supreme Court of Canada is to be given the Benjamin Nathan Cardozo award Sunday.

Mr. Justice Laskin is the first Canadian to receive the award, given by the Tau Epsilon Rho lawyers' fraternity to a person judged best able to perpetuate the late Justice Cardozo's liberal views of law.

Man Arrested

WAWA, Ont. (CP) — Arthur Alexander Roberts, 27, of Kingsville, Ont., was arrested here Thursday by provincial police in connection with a shooting incident in Kingsville.

Police had issued an alert for Roberts, arrested on a charge of attempted murder in connection with the shooting incident Sunday in the Windsor-area community.

As a result of the incident, Peter Yaumenl, 25, of Kingsville, is in hospital with two bullet wounds in his abdomen.

College Now Faces Deficit

HAMILTON (CP) — For the first time in its seven-year history, Mohawk College is facing the possibility of a budget deficit in 1974, college officials said Thursday.

President Sam Mitriniger said the community college may have to adopt what it calls "a no growth policy" in an attempt to combat the budget problems.

He said it wouldn't necessarily mean a cut in student enrolment, but that it would certainly mean holding the line on the number of students allowed into the school's program.

Information Director Charles McNair said more students would have to mean more teaching staff—something the college isn't going to be able to afford.

"So we may have to adopt a status quo position and stabilize the student population," Mr. McNair said. Total post-secondary enrolment at the college this year was 3,830—a nine-per-cent increase over last year.

Help Offered

HAMILTON (CP) — If quitting cigarettes heads your list of New Year's resolutions, she are some people who want to help.

Henrietta Jonkhof, a Seventh-day Adventist, said the church, which has operated a five-day plan to stop smoking in conjunction with hospitals and churches, has extended the plan on a home-visit basis.

She said she takes film strips to outline the program which sets up the would-be quitter with a partner to telephone when resolve starts to weaken. She arranges follow-up visits at the convenience of the participant.

HOWARD HUGHES

Hughes Faces Fraud Charge

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Billionaire recluse Howard Hughes has been indicted by a federal grand jury in connection with his purchase of a regional airline.

The indictments returned in U.S. district court Thursday charged the elusive industrialist with conspiracy, stock manipulation and fraud in his 1968 purchase of Air West.

The indictment marked the first time criminal charges have been filed against Hughes despite extensive investigations involving his financial empire.

A former top Hughes aide and three others also were named in the nine-count indictment that climaxed a lengthy investigation by the Securities and Exchange Commission and the grand jury.

The defendants were accused of conspiring to put pressure on directors of Air West to sell out to Hughes by depressing the value of the airline's stock and threatening lawsuits against its directors.

Bad Bills Passed In Police Canteens

OTTAWA (CP) — A number of counterfeit dollar bills have been passed in money-changing machines in the RCMP headquarters and the local police station here.

Officials reported Thursday that the phoney bills were put into machines that give change for dollar bills in RCMP and police canteens and lunchrooms.

The canteens and lunchrooms are restricted to RCMP or police personnel and employees.

The company that operates the vending machines said two bogus bills were found in the police station Thursday morning and more than six at the RCMP headquarters.

The incident is under investigation.

Inquest Set

PETERBOROUGH, Ont. (CP) — An inquest will be held Feb. 6 into the Christmas Day death of three persons in a burning house fire here, Coroner Dr. Robert MacMillan said Thursday.

Ella Becher, 66, Thomas John LeClair, 67, and John Joseph Poulter, 33, were killed in the fire.

Police said Mrs. Becher was killed when she returned to the house where she believed her 30-year-old son was sleeping. The son, however, had escaped moments before his mother returned to the burning house.

Man Jailed

BARRIE, Ont. (CP) — William Oral Wannamaker, 34, of Phelpston, Ont., was sentenced Thursday to 30 days in jail for passing counterfeit $50 bills in a Barrie shopping mall.

He pleaded guilty to the Sept. 1 charges laid the same day police seized $60 in genuine bills by two storekeepers.

Wannamaker's lawyer said his client offered to make restitution but is waiting until police release $200 in genuine bills seized at the time of his arrest.

The lawyer said the offences were not the work of a professional criminal but his client had found himself stuck with the bogus money and had tried to pass it.

Police Scour Belfast

BELFAST (AP) — Hundreds of soldiers and police searched for Thomas Niedermayer today, but investigators said they have failed to turn up any trace of the West German business executive.

Relatives said Niedermayer, general manager of the Grundig electronics plant in Belfast, was abducted Thursday night after he was lured outside his home by two men who said they had accidentally struck his car.

Authorities, who centred their search Friday on the Roman Catholic section of Andersonstown, believed the abduction to be the work of the Irish Republican Army.

But the IRA, which usually is quick to boast of a successful operation, has been silent. No ransom or other demands have been received, police said.

Security men said the kidnappers also could be Protestant extremists or common criminals.

Niedermayer, one of the best known foreign business men in Ulster, is the honorary West German consul in Northern Ireland. He has been a key figure in Britain's attempts to boost the province's economy.

Kingston Missing Holidayers

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — Nine prisoners—including a married couple—released on three-day Christmas passes have failed to return to Kingston-area penitentiaries.

Prison officials said 249 in area prisons were issued holiday passes to visit friends or relatives.

Mideast Parley Recessed

GENEVA (CP) — Israeli and Egyptian military negotiators have taken a four-day New Year recess after reaching agreement on some of the principles for disengaging their forces along the Suez canal.

They will meet again Wednesday after Israel's New Year's Eve general election, the outcome of which will be a crucial factor in deciding Israeli policy.

A United Nations communique Friday said that in the two meetings of the military working group this week, Israel and Egypt agreed on some principles of disengagement and exchanged views frankly on others. Both sides now wanted the details of the outstanding principles clarified.

Conference sources said that the Middle East peace conference, to which the military working group will report, might meet at the ambassador level Jan. 15, with the Soviet Union and the United States as co-chairmen.

The sources said if all went smoothly, the five foreign ministers of Egypt, Jordan, Israel, the Soviet Union and the United States could reconvene Jan. 21 to set their seal on any military agreement reached and to start the second phase of the political talks.

This time the missing sixth member of the peace conference, Syria, may be present. Syria refused to join the first phase, saying it feared the real issues would be side-tracked, but an empty table was kept ready for the Syrian delegates.

News Briefs

TORONTO (CP) — Canadian National Railways' Turbo train between Montreal and Toronto will resume regular service Jan. 10, replacing the afternoon Rapidos, after an extensive trial period during the Christmas season, CN officials announced Friday the gas-operated Turbos are scheduled to make the 350-mile run in four hours and 10 minutes, 49 minutes faster than the Rapidos.

Bogus Bills Bountiful

MONTREAL (CP) — A record $2 million worth of counterfeit money has been put in circulation in Canada this year, Mike Ballard, director of security for the Canadian Bankers' Association, said Friday. A rash of bogus $50 and $100 bills turned up in the Montreal area and other major Canadian cities, he said. There were 5,448 counterfeit bills with a total face value of $74,142 put in circulation across the country in 1972 and 90 per cent of them were American bills.

Swedes in Cold Water

STOCKHOLM (AP) — Swedes will get hot water only every other week during January and February as a result of the energy crisis, the Swedish Energy Board said Friday. "It is now clear that voluntary restrictions will not be enough to cover the needed 25 per cent cut of fuel for heating," Erick Husa, president of the government board said.

Big GM Layoff To Help Canada

DETROIT (CP) — General Motors, blaming a slump in car sales, has announced plans to lay off about 38,000 workers indefinitely and 40,000 workers for up to 10 days.

The indefinite layoffs, announced Friday, will idle nine per cent of the auto giant's 420,000 hourly production workers in the United States.

But the trend mainly responsible for the U.S. plant slowdown, the switch by consumers to smaller cars, is benefitting General Motors of Canada. A company spokesman in Ste. Therese, Que., said the plant there is hiring more workers.

The plant produces Vegas and Astres, both compact cars, and "we'll be increasing production to 30 cars an hour by mid-January" from the current 25, the spokesman said. About 600 additional workers, including some office personnel, will be hired to keep up.

In Oshawa, Ont., a spokesman said GM of Canada has had nine straight months of record sales and expects December to be the 10th.

He added, however, that there may be one sour note for Canada in the parent firm's slowdown: Canadian plants supplying components for U.S. production might suffer, although "we don't know about that at present."

In Detroit, Richard Gerstenberg, chairman of the corporation, said the layoffs are necessary because plants have been working nearly at capacity but 1974 new-car sales will be down 12 per cent from 1973 record levels.

"The retail sales of passenger cars have been adversely affected by the Arab oil embargo and uncertainty regarding the continued availability of fuel," Gerstenberg said.

GM said it will eliminate a second shift on Jan. 21 in five of 25, assembly plants and at six others a week later and will adjust assembly operations elsewhere. But small-car production would be increased and truck production is expected to remain steady.

The Big Three automakers, including Ford and Chrysler, started chipping away at huge inventories in November. GM laid off about 137,000 workers before the holiday vacation, cutting 80,000 units from its production schedule.

Ford sources said "just a handful" of workers had been laid off indefinitely so far. At Chrysler, the number runs to about 4,600.

A Ford spokesman said it was unlikely layoffs would be announced there before late next week because the Ford staff remains on vacation.

Chrysler spokesmen indicated the automaker would hold firm to January layoff plans that involve some 8,600 workers at plants being converted to compact car production.

Gerstenberg said more than 80 per cent of the men indefinitely laid off would be eligible for unemployment compensation and supplemental benefits averaging up to 95 per cent of weekly take-home pay, more than $150 a week.

Venezuelan Oil Hike May Soon be Felt Here

CARACAS (CP) — In a move expected to raise fuel prices in the United States and Canada, Venezuela has nearly doubled its tax reference price on crude oil to a world record $14.08 a barrel.

The increase prompted Canadian oil company officials to predict that Eastern Canadian gasoline prices may rise between 18 and 19 cents a gallon.

The reference price, $7.74 per barrel this month, is the amount Venezuela uses to compute the income taxes and royalties foreign firms pay for drilling its oil.

The government announced the rise on Friday, saying it would go into effect the first of the year. Last January, the reference price was $8.31.

The news was the second blow to U.S. consumers in a day. Energy minister Donald MacDonald said Thursday that Canada, largest foreign supplier of oil to the U.S., might raise its tax on oil exports by $0.50 a barrel by February. The tax was already due for a rise to $2.30 Jan. 1 from the present $1.80.

But the Venezuelan announcement was also a blow to Canadian consumers. Venezuela's second best customers. Eastern Canada imports 800,000 barrels of Venezuelan oil a day, compared with 1.7 million barrels by the United States and 270,000 to Common Market countries.

The 1.7 million barrels a day Venezuela sells to the U.S. amounts to 16 per cent of American oil imports. Canada supplies 23.9 per cent of U.S. imports.

Oil industry spokesmen in Caracas predicted that some of the Venezuelan price rise would be passed on to consumers.

"We just can't swallow the increase, the consumer has got to absorb a good deal of it," said one oil company official.

Oil Squeezing Europe

LONDON (AP) — The Arab oil weapon has started to squeeze European workers, leading to unemployment, and reduced hours for thousands and threatening the livelihoods of millions more.

An Italian newspaper survey said 15,000 jobs have been laid off and 200,000 more face a jobless future. Another 3½ million in the tourist industry are threatened with loss of jobs or earnings.

In Sweden about 10,000 have been laid off and 60 firms have gone bust.

In Britain, where the oil shortage is coupled with even more crippling coal miners' labor dispute, 540,000 have been laid off, 200,000 of them since Thursday. This pushed total unemployment over one million out of a work force of 25 million. Experts predict 1½ million may be made idle by February if the miners' slowdown continues.

One Common Market report suggests unemployment in the nine member countries could double to four million next year because of the oil crisis, coupled with a predicted retail price rise of one to 1½ per cent.

However, experts say industry overall has reacted cautiously, avoiding panic and massive layoffs. They point out that even the decision of the Persian Gulf oil-producing nations to cut January 1974 output by their oil production to all of Europe except the Netherlands by 25 per cent though the oil will cost much more. Western Europe gets most of its oil from the Arab states.

Nevertheless, the threat of unemployment is a real one, confirmed by the layoffs to date and the reduction in work weeks and earnings felt by many.

Only Britain and West Germany have taken sweeping measures to cope with the crisis. Britain is introducing a three-day working week beginning next week, while Germany has banned the import of foreign labor.

Britain's measures, however, are mostly due to home labor troubles—in the coal and rail industries. Electricity workers settled Friday, taking off some of the strain.

Many governments have asked industries to use less electricity, reducing capacity and, at the very least, providing less opportunity for overtime earnings.

It is the poorer southern European countries—Yugoslavia, Turkey, Italy, Spain and Portugal—that may feel the first widespread effects of unemployment. About 2½ million immigrant workers have flooded into West Germany alone in recent years, most under contract, for skilled and unskilled jobs Germans could not or would not fill.

Shell Sells

ROME (AP) — The Shell Oil Co. has sold its entire Italian operation, including three refineries and 4,000 gasoline stations to AGIP, a subsidiary of the state-run ENI Oil Corp., a communique issued by ENI said Friday.

No figure was given for the sale. The ENI communique, however, said the deal involved all the Shell activities in Italy except the chemical industry, the company's participation in Monte-Shell, a joint venture with Montecatini Edison, and Shell's underwater researches.

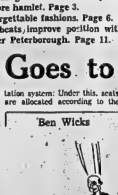
Mrs. Meir Goes to Voters

TEL AVIV (Reuter) — Prime Minister Golda Meir led her ruling Labor party into the home stretch of what looks like the closest general election battle in Israel's history.

Polls suggest that Mrs. Meir's government, sharply criticized for its handling of the October war against the Arabs, could be swept from power in Monday's voting. That could bring a sudden switch in Israeli policy at the current Geneva peace talks.



Mrs. Meir and her chief political opponent, Menahem Begin of the centre-right Likud, wind up the campaign tonight with rallies in Tel Aviv. Mrs. Meir's rally will be for new Soviet immigrants to Israel.

The elections, originally scheduled for Oct. 30 but delayed by the war, line up 1,065 candidates on 13 different party lists in a proportional representation system: Under this, seats are allocated according to the number of votes which each list attracts.

The party lineup lists Communists, Black Panthers championing the rights of Oriental Jews, various religious blocs, the militant Jewish Defence League of Rabbi Meir Kahane, a civil rights party, two Arab Israeli groups and other small groupings.

But the chief battle is between Mrs. Meir's Labor alignment which, with four affiliate Arab members, controlled 69 of the 120 seats in the outgoing Knesset, and the Likud, which controlled 22.

Its leader, Begin, once chief of the Irgun Zvai Leumi underground organization that fought a guerrilla campaign against the British when they held a mandate in Palestine, has been one of the biggest draws of the election campaign rallies.

Woman Sentenced On Fraud Counts

A Belleville woman convicted on 26 different charges of fraud and false pretences that involved a total of more than $1,400 was Thursday sentenced to one year in jail after she appeared before Judge T.L. Clendenning in a provincial court.

Marilyn Diane Malcolm was convicted on 20 of the charges Dec. 11 and yesterday pleaded guilty to an additional 18 counts of false pretences.

Arrested by police early in December, Miss Malcolm was charged with the fraud and false pretences offences after she and a male friend spent the month of November and the early part of December touring Hastings, Prince Edward and Lanark Counties purchasing merchandise from stores with cheques drawn on a bank account that had had a balance of nil since April.

The fraudulent purchases were made in Belmore, Madoc, Tweed, Stirling, Picton, Smiths Falls, Perth, Trenton and Belleville. Miss Malcolm used her own name and an alias, Caroline Wendy Green, when making her purchases.

In speaking to sentence, Miss Malcolm's lawyer, W.D. Tunnell-Penrod, told the court that his client was not interested in receiving a probationary term but would rather have the controlled supervision that accompanies a jail term.

Flames to Mark Clearing of Debt

The Victoria Avenue Baptist church finance board's slogan "Debt Free in '73" has been lived up to. Earlier this month the church succeeded in paying off a mortgage assumed 12 years ago for the construction of Emmanuel Baptist Church in Belleville's eastend.

To commemorate the occasion, church trustees will symbolically burn the $3,000 mortgage during Sunday service, Dec. 30.

Victoria Ave. church presented the east end congregation with the money to finance the building, completed in 1961. However, in order to make the gift, says church trustee William Hales the Victoria Ave. Baptist Church had to borrow. The loan has now been paid off.

Sunday, the Emmanuel church congregation will join the 175 members of the Victoria Ave. church in the mortgage burning ceremony.

Participants in the ceremony will be R.L Orr, a trustee at the time of construction, William Hales, Victoria Ave. chairman of trustees, Emmanuel church member, Paul Wiegand, William Dempsey, finance board chairman, and Mack Lush, Victoria Ave. church treasurer.

Barber Shop Broken Into

Belleville police are investigating a break, enter and theft that occurred at Paul's Barber Shop on Victoria Street sometime during the Christmas holidays.

Shortly after noon hour on Boxing Day, a police officer on patrol discovered the break-in. He reported that someone had apparently forced open the front door to the barber shop and stolen an undisclosed amount of cash.

Performing Bear

Backed by New Potatoes, Edward Bear, a popular Toronto-based soft rock band, played to 600 people at Centennial Secondary School Friday night. Big black-haired guitarist and vocalist, Roger Ellis, drummer Larry Revoy, and organist Bob Kendall played to Belleville's younger set in a one-night stand before heading off to Niagara-on-the-Lake and subsequently Bancroft. Last night's concert was the third time the band has been in Belleville.

Bird Count On Sunday

Area naturalists will be taking an annual sampling of birds within a 7½ mile radius of Belleville this Sunday in an effort to gauge the number of species that frequent the Quinte area in winter.

Compiled statistics will be forwarded to the National Audubon Society headquarters in Washington, D.C. where samplings from across the continent will be tabulated.

Irwin Knight, program coordinator with the Quinte Field Naturalists, said yesterday naturalist groups across North America have been engaged in the annual census for the past two weeks.

The Quinte group, affiliated with the Federation of Ontario Naturalists, has been involved in the project for a good part of its 25-year existence. This year, Mr. Knight expects some dozen spotters to be out with binoculars and notepads.

"A lot of people think that the only winter birds around here are sparrows and starlings," he said. "But there are also hawks, purple finches, evening grosbeaks. A lot of these you don't see in town."

Approximately 35 species have been spotted some years, he said, though in some cases 100s are seen of one species alone. For the first time this year, pigeons will be counted.

The area covered by the sampling is roughly bounded by Bayside on the west, Foxboro on the north, and Shannonville on the east. Parts of Prince Edward County will also be surveyed.

Unwelcome Lodger

DALLAS, Tx. (AP) — Bob Hancock and his wife Margo figured that noise in the walls of their new home was too loud for rats. And a two-inch-wide path in the attic insulation was even more puzzling. Then a neighbor told them the former owners had searched in vain for a pet which disappeared six months ago: a five-foot boa constrictor.

Picton Police Get Big Hike

PICTON — Town police here have been granted substantial pay increases in an arbitration decision announced here today.

Isaac Mason, chairman of the Picton Police Commission, said a first class constable will receive a raise of $1,000, for 1973 retroactive to Jan. 1. This will bring the salary to $11,000.

In 1974 a first class constable will receive $12,000.

Mr. Mason said the arbitrator's decision is a 12.00 per cent increase for 1973 and a 9.09 per cent hike for next year.

Police constables had been seeking a 31 percent increase in salaries and benefits in a one-year period.

Mr. Mason said constables were also awarded 100 percent payment for hospitalization and medical costs and a $15,000 life insurance policy will be paid for the municipality.

Constables were also granted an additional statutory holiday they had earlier requested during negotiations with the police commission.

The commission already had agreed to allow the holiday.

The arbitrator was George S.P. Ferguson, Q.C., a Toronto lawyer. Arbitration hearings were held here Dec. 4.

Indoor Events Would Help

By MARGARET HAYLOCK

PICTON — Prince Edward's drive to organize an annual winter carnival seem to have fallen flat despite the involvement of several service groups and numerous individuals.

The first winter festival held approximately three years ago seemed to meet with enthusiastic response as the community planned a wide range of program events.

Initiated by the Prince Edward Chamber of Commerce, the carnival included a beauty pageant in the selection of a snow queen, snowmobile races, a cross-country ski marathon race, hockey games, curling and a huge bonfire of discarded Christmas trees.

The carnival was repeated the following year but participation in some of the events such as the snow queen competition seemed to lag.

In a community eager for tourism it would seem that a winter carnival could offer a great deal both to visitors to the county and to residents. It provides a once-a-year opportunity to capitalize on many of Prince Edward's Christmas card settings such as the Milford Pond and Picton Harbor.

In past years carnival organizers tended to put too many eggs in one basket by scheduling numerous outdoor events all subject to cancellation if the weather was not co-operate.

A classic example was the Christmas tree bonfire held at Picton fairgrounds. This event, held at night, was to be the climax of a cross-country snowmobile race among municipal officials.

About 4 p.m. shivering spectators huddled in the shelter between the County Centre and the Prince Edward Curling Club for a bonfire that supposedly died less than two minutes. There was no other carnival activity planned to offer further entertainment.

Since weather cannot be ordered it would seem logical to include several indoor events in addition to the outdoor sports slated on a carnival program.

The Society Whirlers, a Prince Edward area square dance group, might be asked to organize an evening of "swing your partner" music for a winter festival. Such a program its successfully conducted each year during the Quinte Bloomers Festival.

If the snow queen's crown were awarded in this type of setting, more contestants might be attracted.

To be truly successful the winter carnival should not be limited to Picton. Some events should be scheduled in other communities such as Bloomfield, Wellington, Cherry Valley and Milford.

An old-fashioned skating party could be organized at the Milford pond or sleigh rides offered in this rural community.

Perhaps the highlight of a winter carnival should be a torchlight parade joined by students from Prince Edward County school. If the parade were held on a Friday night many merchants might stay open shopping on Main Street by drawing a crowd to Picton. Certainly it would encourage more persons to get into the carnival spirit.

The Prince Edward Chamber of Commerce and the service clubs of the county have demonstrated excellent organizational abilities for many projects in the past. Perhaps it's time for a winter carnival to be staged again featuring several indoor programs.

Mail Truck Hits Pole, Hydro Cut

DESERTONTO — Power to Shannonville, Desoronto and most of Napanee was interrupted for under two hours early today after a mail truck struck a hydro pole on Highway 52E, northeast of here.

Driver of the truck, John Fair, RR 4 Belleville, was uninjured in the collision.

Provincial police at Napanee said $3,000 damage was caused to the vehicle.

An Ontario Hydro spokesman said this morning crews from Picton restored electricity to customers within two hours.

Winter Comes to Gosport

Boats on dry land (top) mark arrival of another cold season in Gosport. Picturesque Quinte fishing community south of Brighton. But fishing still goes on year round in Lake Ontario centre through which (bottom), Mike Todd (left), Mike Cooper and Jim Clarke take either walk.

Quiet Fishing Village Draws New Dwellers

GOSPORT — For generations, nestling on Lake Ontario, this has been a quiet fishing haven.

It still is. But, like many a small Quinte community, it's been discovered.

The discovery is marked by the presence of new homes, recently built. The little community with the scenic location south of Brighton, now is also becoming home for commuters, living here, working elsewhere.

Yet, the lake, from which Gosport — named for a small sea centre in southern England — drawn its essential, historic characteristics still is an active influence.

Lake Ontario provides all of the approximately 1 million lbs. of fish that are shipped from here each year.

The harvest gives work for 22 licensed commercial fisherman and the packing plant still run by the Quick family.

The Quicks are inseparable from the background of this community. There have been seven generations of them represented by Purtell Quick, 61, and his son, Glen who now run the factory.

They're descendants of Capt. William Quick who came here some time after the settlement was founded in the early 1800s by Obadiah Simpson — now a memory on a plaque here.

What Simpson settled on originally had been an island joined to the mainland by a roadway.

Gosport's tradition as a waterfront centre settled in with the arrival of William Quick. He went into the shipping business and boatbuilding — - hiring skilled craftsmen from Quebec.

The first Quick also provided the area with one of its enduring legends.

He's supposed to have buried a large quantity of gold somewhere in the vicinity of nearby Dusty Bend. But, through the years fruitful attempts to turn up the treasure have been fruitless.

Gosport blossomed as a shipping centre as schooners carried oats, grain, barley and cheese across the lake to United States ports. One year, when Rochester ran out of ice, supplies were sent from here.

Tariffs brought an end to the trade, and the centre's popularity as a summer resort even dwindled. Until recent years, the community remained unchanged.

However, the fishing plant worked steadily. Winter, now gripping the countryside, sees no cessation of activity. Fishermen merely trade boat nets for gill nets and fish through the ice instead of the open waters of the lake.

Among the catches are large quantities of carp, perch, eels, and bullheads. They are shipped to points as far away as Europe these days.

Today, the lamprey eel, which once threatened Great Lakes fishing, seems coming under control, says Mr. Quick. A recent federal control program has seen chemicals placed into streams and rivers feeding the lakes, seems to have worked. Fewer fish are found with lamprey scars and the predators themselves seem fewer — and smaller.

QUINTE COUNTRY

Labor Council Project

Trenton Citizens' Bureau Is Assured by LIP Grant

TRENTON— The federal government has granted a $9,886 Local Initiatives Program grant to start a "citizens' bureau, here.

The bureau — which assists and advises individuals with problems usually needing official solutions — is being sponsored by the Quinte District Labor Council.

The QDLC originally had sought a $60,000 LIP grant, which would have provided six months' work for nine people.

The reduced grant will permit employment of three people for roughly the same period.

The council will next week to appoint a five-member board of directors which will be the contact group between the bureau and the sponsoring labor council, Douglas Sword, QDLC president in Belleville said.

William Hockley, director of the Belleville citizens' bureau after which the Trenton project was modelled, has been asked to also manage the enterprise here, said Mr. Sword.

Approval of the grant was made known through the Canada Manpower centre here through which the original application was processed, Trenton is in Prince Edward-Hastings riding.

The Belleville bureau in Hastings riding, founded on a LIP grant last year, was refused a second grant this week. Hastings was among constituencies in which LIP allocations were drastically reduced this year.

Mr. Sword said hopefully the QDLC could provide volunteer help for the Trenton bureau particularly during evenings.

He said the project was in keeping with increasing community involvement toward which the QDLC is now thrusting.

One of the first requirements is office space. Once that is met, the bureau should open soon after the new year begins, said Mr. Sword.

Municipalities Awaiting Lead From Province on Daylight Time

Quinte area municipal officials aren't bursting any energy debating the merits or disadvantages of daylight time.

At present, local governments seem content to await any lead from the Ontario cabinet — now expected late next week.

Indications are daylight time could be mandatory for the province. At present it's the prerogative of local councils.

But if the cabinet settles for a recommendation, it's likely most local governments will fall in line, say area municipal representatives.

To Friday, municipalities had no indication of senior government intentions.

Earl Dafoe, Belleville deputy city clerk, and Horace Casey, Thurlow township reeve and Hastings County warden, said there had been no communications from the provincial government on a possible time change.

Ontario Treasurer John White — - cabinet minister responsible for municipal affairs — - said Thursday he would probably recommend the province make the time change mandatory if — - the day the United States plans to advance clocks one hour to an attempt to save energy.

At present, legislation is permissive. Each municipality is responsible for setting daylight time each year — - from late April to October. Under that system, city council would immediately discuss and decide the issue, leaving its lead from senior government, said Mayor Robin Jeffrey.

Reeve Casey said other municipalities would follow suit.

Both, however, echoed the same sentiments expressed earlier by provincial cabinet ministers: While it may be a convenient time for most business communities and cultivators, with the U.S. daylight time is a questionable energy-saving device.

Mr. Dafoe said Ontario studies indicate the move is not likely to save power. Electricity saved in the evenings would be offset by increased use and heating demands on dark mornings — particularly in northern areas.

Energy Minister Darcy McKeough says any savings would be small.

"I have to agree with Mr. McKeough," said Mayor Jeffrey. "I'm not sure it's going to save us any energy" although daylight time would be a boon to many citizens.

My own honest opinion," said Reeve Casey, "is that it isn't going to make that much difference."

When it was last mandatory — in wartime — - it seemed "a useless exercise."

Mayor Jeffrey himself, he said a move to daylight time would not make any difference to farm routine.

Time Switch No Benefit to Rural Students

MARMORA— Switching to daylight time in mid-winter may not be all that desirable for one segment of the population — - - school students in rural areas.

For such youngsters such a change isn't "going to be very good," says Mrs. Lillian O'Connor, chairman of the Hastings -Prince Edward separate school board.

Most students in rural areas of the district now leave home between 7:20 a.m. and 8 a.m. to catch school buses.

Daylight saving would mean they would leave homes in total darkness, since clocks would be advanced an hour.

The board's administrative territory extends to the northernmost reaches of the county district, 21 schools at Madawaska and Whitney, near Algonquin Park.

In such areas the problem is compounded by winter road conditions — - - which means students would have to leave home even that much earlier, said Mrs. O'Connor.

Damage $1,400 In Collision

TWEED — Damage was estimated at $1,400 when cars driven by John Wesley Spratt, 23, of Mine St., and Gerrard Joseph Kehoe, 24, Oshawa, collided at the south end of this village early Saturday.

Both cars had to be towed away.

Police said Mr. Kehoe had been charged with careless driven.

Rail Travel

While the difficulties of railroad officials coping with today's traffic are readily understandable, it may also be asked why, in this computer age, can traffic patterns not be gauged more accurately?

It is really asking a bit much, especially where the elderly are concerned, that passengers be forced to stand all the way from say Belleville (or from points farther back along the line) to Toronto — these selfsame passengers incidentally who are helping with their taxes to keep the railroad in business.

In Belleville on Boxing Day two trains arrived with only a short interval between around 1.30 pm. Conductors on the first seemed reluctant initially to allow anyone aboard, then relented saying, "If you want to take a chance," the point being no one seemed to know for sure what the situation was regarding the train immediately following. As it turned out, seats were available on the relief train.

One woman passenger was at the start of a journey that would take her halfway around the world, to New Zealand; she shared her hectic suitcase with a young man who in Toronto carried the bag and helped her to a taxi stand. Earlier other passengers crowding the exit corridor had helped get the case through to a small space where the makeshift seating arrangement could be set up.

Here again there is the problem passengers face with their baggage. Railcar design has changed little in years so that in times of pressure it is the passengers who suffer — being forced to crowd through narrow exits, coping with baggage as best they may. The railroads could take a lesson from the buses and provide baggage pits that open up at the side of the vehicle, eliminating the need for passengers to haul them on board with them.

Once aboard the first of those two lunchtime trains Belleville passengers faced a two-car lineup for the restaurant facilities.

Sure, we expect this sort of thing at times of peak travel — and patient, not to say docile citizens that we are, nobody complains.

But we are entering a new year. Nineteen hundred and seventy-four is almost upon us. Are things going to be any better on the railroads as well as in other spheres of public service? The fuel crisis is opening up fresh opportunities for train travel — let us hope the railroads meet the challenge with vigor and with the interests of the travelling public in mind.

Free Spenders

Since it is very clear the policy of the federal government, courtesy of the taxpayer, is to "live grandly beyond its means," to quote those classic words of a long ago Conservative of the Bank of Canada, James Coyne — there is no thought in individual citizen's minds either to do anything else but follow suit.

Christmas spending has been a case in point. In Belleville shoppers were out in force right up to the last minute on Christmas Eve and the word from Toronto is that it has been an "extremely good selling season" there.

An official of one major Canada-wide company says that sales were up about 20 per cent over last year.

There is plenty of money around of course and even when it is not readily available, credit is not hard to come by. Basically too the economy is strong so that if dollars — and shrinking ones at that — continue to be spent with abandon, nobody, least of all anyone in Government, or anyone calling himself an economist, is ready to cry halt.

Mr. Coyne is still around somewhere. A voice crying in the wilderness back in 1959 or thereabouts, he is now a ghost of the political past. Canadians are still spending grandly beyond their means, but no one seems concerned as we head swiftly toward 1974.

Just think too . . . only another decade to go to 1984, Big Brother, perhaps a cashless society — just credit, greater computerization — and all that.

MP's Awkward Questions in Parliament

Taxpayers Fork Out Huge Sums for Ottawa Trips Abroad

By RICHARD JACKSON
OTTAWA (CP) — Bill Knight, New Democratic MP for Assiniboia, got Socialist shoes. He is marching to a different drum.

If he hops it up he could drive — or perhaps a lot of people — to find out if Liberal House Leader Allan MacEachen's office around the bend and up the wall.

First he was working on all those long public service salaries, asking why one out of every three in Industry Trade and Commerce, to name some other department, was a $20,000-a-year man or over better.

He got a lot of answers with the salary lineups in the different departments which set some flack flying from the taxpayers in letters-to-the-editor pages and other public sounding-off places.

Now he is tackling out-of-pocket service overtime and travelling expenses.

"Especially travelling expenses."

Overtime he can't find much about.

But when he asked—for an accounting of overtime exceeding $1,000-a-year paid senior public servants in the last fiscal year, he was the bureaucratic brushoff.

They told him in the Government House Leader's office, which answers all those thousands of questions in the daily Opposition MPs, that it would be too costly to compile such a list.

And that anyway, if they were disposed to spend the dough, which they were not, they really could not do it because there just was not that much time to assemble the data.

But Bill Knight's doing much better with those travelling expenses.

What he is really after, he explains, is how much is being spent by how many senior public servants on their own private government business trips, and how much overall, you know, jumketing-it-up to Faraway Places.

First off, he extracted from the Government a catalogue — it was three inches thick — of last year's overseas trips made by the high-priced help of the departments, crown corporations and federal agencies.

It made fascinating reading.

Leafing through it, he said, "What are guys from Statistics Canada doing in Las Vegas?"

"And how come another guy from Information Canada gets to go to Hong Kong?"

But that is just scratching the surface.

For there are all kinds of "guys," as Bill Knight calls those public-pocket-emptying ones who are listed as visiting such noted world watering holes as Nassau, Bermuda, Puerto Rico, Trinidad, Bermuda, Antigua, Rio, Montego Bay, the Caymans, Marrakesh, Corfu, Cape Town, Sydney, Tel Aviv, Tripoli, Egypt, Ceylon.

All, mind you, presumably on government business.

But Bill-Knight is nailing it down with such questions as No. 1,276 on the Commons Order Paper:

"What was the purpose of the trip made by J. J. Carson, Chairman of the Public Service Commission (salary range $40,000 to $45,000 a year) to South Africa, Zambia, England and New York (for) $4,170?"

Or: "What was the purpose of the trip made by G. P. Kidd, vice-president of Eldorado (salary range $22,500 to $28,000) to Nassau, London, Vienna, Barbados (for) $1,411?"

The questions about trips, nations and purposes and amounts to such other places as The Hague, Bonn, Rome, Madrid, Beirut, Madrid, Canberra, Washington, London, Buenos Aires, Rabat, Algiers, Bucharest, Princeton, New Jersey and Williamsburg, Virginia, Dakar, Lima, Lagos, Bogota, Hong, Addis Ababa, Mexico City, Acapulco, Warsaw, Copenhagen, Glasgow, Boston, Nashville, Massachusetts and Ljubljana, Yugoslavia, cover six pages of the Commons Order Paper.

Some of the "guys," are so casual about listing the trips, "Envoy", appears as an answer.

Altogether Bill Knight names 84 names in as many questions of why did the guy go there, for how long and for how much.

He calculates that in one year there were about 400 of these hundreds of trips costing hundreds of thousands of dollars.

And there, just as an afterthought — or maybe because Bill Knight says he sometimes has a little personal pleasure may have rejoined the business picture — he has told you what months of the year were these trips made? — like in darkest February to Nassau?

The 70s and Why Some Folk Hate Computers

By AL COLLETTI

NEW YORK (CP) — Do computers hate people?

Some people think they do, and they hate back, says a leading international accounting firm.

It calls this trend "dislocation" and says the time commands the attention of every thoughtful businessman.

"Coming at a time of intense and unprecedented hostility to business this attitude could well have far-reaching practical, political and sociological effects," says the firm of Coopers and Lybrand in its journal.

Computers have become a major factor in information-pooling or data-banking. There is a trend toward more centralization of data banks.

These are personal groups, both in and out of government, who fear that the accumulation of so-called "profiles" on individuals by a centralized computer poses a real threat to civil liberties. Some of them say it's an uncalled-for invasion of privacy.

Coopers and Lybrand concedes that computers do pose a threat to the use of human judgment. And they may be bad for business.

"For this reason, the use of computers for such purposes as matching couples, assessing political reliability, or . . . for recruiting executives may border on charlatanism.

"Information can be manipulated to produce misleading or unfair inferences."

Computers are basically resented for two reasons: The first is explicit—electronic data processing systems have demonstrated an unresponsiveness to complaints and to special situations for which they have not been programmed.

The second reason is seldom explicit but poses a more serious challenge to management. Computers tend to close the comfortable gap between theory and practice that nearly everyone takes advantage of at some time or other.

For example, a consumer is likely to become outraged at a billing error by the computer that has a regulation of erroneous correcting departments in their automatic data-processing system.

Coopers and Lybrand suggest three steps businessmen could take to improve the computer climate:

— Setting up a "systemized error management" office to deal quickly and courteously with customers.

— Complaint handling should be given high priority. "This could go a long way towards dispelling the 'inexorable computer' fixation so prejudicial to consumer relations."

—"Programmed allowances for inefficiency might be preferable to the superficial view of computers.

"An error-management program should systematically consider eliminating inefficiency and flexibility that existed before automation," the firm advises.

Thomas Becket, Archbishop of Canterbury, was murdered in his own cathedral 803 years ago today in 1170—by supporters of King Henry II. The son of a London merchant, Becket became chancellor of England at the age of 37. The first Englishman to occupy the post since the Norman Conquest. He proved an excellent politician and lived in splendor rivalling the king's. However, when appointed archbishop in 1162, he used his personal power initially to strengthen the church's position against the king. It is recorded that the murder followed Henry's wild cry: "Who will rid me of this turbulent priest!"

"Jesus answered and said unto him, Verily, verily, I say unto thee, Except a man be born again, he cannot see the Kingdom of God." John 3:3

Salvation calls for a great deal more than joining something or turning over a new leaf. Only a complete turn around assures us of the abundant and the eternal life: "Lord Jesus come into our hearts and make us what you want us to be and what deep inside we would like to be. Amen"

Garbage Source of Energy

Kingston Whig-Standard

It was announced recently that the Metro Toronto and District authorities are going to cooperate to build a 315-million pilot plant which will use Metro garbage to generate electricity.

A garbage-separating plant will be built at Carlingview Drive in Etobicoke. Combustible material will be separated at this plant and taken to the Ontario Hydro generating plant in Mississauga where it will be burned as a substitute for coal.

There will be a trial period of two years, during which time the plant will handle about 1,000 tons of garbage a day. It will, however, be capable of taking 1,250 tons a day — about 20 per cent of the total daily garbage of Metro.

This sounds very progressive. But what about that other use of garbage which has come to the startled attention of the public? A man was recently discovered calmly processing garbage in a household apparatus which he had built in his back yard. Questions put to various chemists brought forth the information that the process used by this enterprising citizen is well-known and quite feasible — to many gallons of gasoline from so many hundreds of pounds of garbage.

So perhaps Metro is missing the real importance of unexploited garbage. Perhaps the stuff is just too valuable to burn, even to produce electricity. If we could get the ban on fires in backyards lifted, in fact, we might solve all our problems — enough home-brewed gasoline to see us through a fuel shortage and put out of business multinationals out of business.

Russia Influences Arabs

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

This year many of our people will be short of heating fuel and many of them out of work because of the oil shortage.

The Russians have plenty of oil; and I have no doubt it was they who put the Arabs up to grain to save their people from the West.

The Russians' objective, of course, being to weaken and destroy the economies of the western countries.

This year again the Russian and Chinese agricultural policies failed — as they often do under their stupid system — and we exported millions of tons of grain to save their people from starvation.

From now on we should tell oil; and I have no doubt it was they who put the Arabs up to grain to save their people from the West.

The Russians' objective, of course, being to weaken and destroy the economies of the western countries.

This year again the Russian and Chinese agricultural policies failed — as they often do under their stupid system — and we exported millions of tons of grain to save their people from starvation.

From now on we should tell them that if they want our grain they get no more grain."

Stop the shipment of grain to Soviet Russia and Communist Chia. Why should we feed our enemies? Perhaps in that way they can eventually destroy us officially and militarily?

A Day for a School Guard

Editor
The Intelligencer

I am sure it must be heart warming for the school crossing guards to see that along with frozen toes and noses they also have a frozen license. I am sure also that the taxpayers in Belleville will be relieved to know that our city manager, with the silent acquiescence of the board council, is prepared to say "No" to any demand or even expectations by the low-paid, hard-working school guarding of the public purse is reinforced with a reminder that there is no room for complacency a step out of line, there is a long waiting list, together with a host of liberated females, ready to take over their frosty corners.

I suppose it would be presumptuous of the lowliest to suggest to Mr. Ellis that when he frames those estimates earnings, he give consideration to the fact that to qualify to task the school guard is required to make eight trips to and from this post daily.

Economics of the 70s

Editor
The Intelligencer

The western world is currently staggering under an energy crisis, one of many that has struck the free enterprise bloc in the past decade. Some observers, though the present situation is not quite as serious as crisis we face is the total obsolescence of the system we have subscribed to for so long.

Capitalism with its dogma of free competition is a far cry from stable course of boom-bust cycles with a depression to terminate each good measure, to say nothing of two major wars.

The pursuit of the profit motive the growth syndrome has dominated the philosophy of political leaders who continue to fall over themselves in their endeavors to cater to the needs of corporate interest.

Blinded by the profit motive, corporate interests have brought pressure upon governments and economists alike to win support for their selfish interests over and above the needs of the people and the country as a whole.

The government, both past and present, must share much of the blame for our present state of affairs. We have been cheated by the system, and there is the apathy of the people.

In this crisis, the best Mr. Stanfield can do is call for a vote of no confidence. No suggestion that party differences be put aside and there be a pooling of the world brains of the West to find solution to solve our problems. No Sir, let's make as much mileage we can out of the present situation and to hell with the people.

We must blame our present troubles not on the Arabs, not on the Russians, but on the fact that we have chosen to go with a system that is not geared to benefit 20th century civilization.

Wiretapping and the Law

Trois-Rivieres Le Nouvelliste: There is currently no law which forbids wiretapping and this could lead to all sorts of abuse.

A law on the protection of privacy is necessary. On the other hand, we understand that police forces must have the means to fight effectively against organized crime and against extremists who could endanger vital interests and safety of the public.

But to avoid abuse and, above all, to protect the private life of honest people, wiretaping should be subject to certain regulations.

To us, it seems normal and desirable that the police, before beginning any wiretapping activities, should obtain authorization from a judge and only after having presented sufficient reasons to justify their actions.

We believe that it is not the role of the police to decide by themselves what is or what could be a threat to public security and safety. The definition of this should come from a judge.

Looking Backward

Philippine Priests Lead Opposition to Martial Law

MANILA (AP) — Despite its reputation here for conservatism, the organized Christian Church is providing much of the opposition to the martial law regime of President Ferdinand E. Marcos.

In open letters and speeches from the pulpit, some Roman Catholic and Protestant clergymen have made pointed criticism for what one Philippine bishop, Jesuit Francisco F. Claver, of Mindanao, labeled "government by decree, which amounts to the same thing, one-man rule."

In response, the martial law government has for the first time put a Roman Catholic man under detention and placed an activist American priest, Rev. Edward Gerlach, under detention without announced charges.

In addition, since September, Dutch priest, Rev. Henry Van den Broken, left the country after spending nearly two months in detention in connection with a case in which three persons were killed in a fray between guerrillas and police.

Rev. Lois Jalandoni, who had won awards for his work among poor sugar workers, has been arrested as a rebel chief. Rev. Fernando R. Vicsingco of Cebu was detained briefly when other priests were arrested for his connection with what the authorities said was a subversive organization and two Catholic Law Social Action workers were arrested.

The government has made no comment on the detentions. Only the arrest of Father Jalandoni has been reported in the government-controlled press.

The bishops met Enrile 10 days after authorities revealed the nun. The mother superior of her order, Sister A. Escarcena, identified her as Sister Maria de Monserrat of neighboring Quezon City.

Father Gerlick was arrested by police in Davao City, in southern Mindanao, the day after the bishops met Enrile.

His colleagues in the American order said the government had no grounds for taking action against him. They pictured the priest, who came to the Philippines in 1962 and has become so fluent in the local language that even Filipinos believed he was half-Filipino, as deeply dedicated to social reform.

Members of the executive board of the Catholic Bishops Conference met Oct. 30 to discuss state-church relations with Defense Secretary Juan Ponce Enrile. Church officials said the bishops raised the question of the imposition of martial law and complained that intelligence officers searched a convent in Quezon City and opened a holy tabernacle, an act considered a sacrilege.

But multiplies the problems of the elderly. Never was there so much freedom in society but its temptations are in proportion. The provincial leader of the NDP has assured teachers that they are now ready to take their place alongside students and "other groups regarding authority." That kind of remark is less than reassuring!

Change challenges our stability. We need something stable if we are to find true security is to be found in the midst of change. But, in point of fact, the biblical record shows that God changes things so much that he has the ability to "make all things new". (Revelation 21:5).

I recently read of a woman who was driven to despair by the death of her husband and daughter in an automobile accident. Although friends comforted her and she tried hard to keep her courage, she was losing the battle. Finally, she left home and began wandering till she was arrested, decided not to care what happened.

However, as she walked, a passage from the Apostles' Creed kept coming into her mind: "He fell three at length bit her. She heard herself saying, "It's true! It's really true!" The words that she had remembered were, "I believe in God the Father Almighty." She returned home and began to live life anew.

Do you recall how bleak and uncertain the outlook was for democracy toward the close of 1939? Some of us will never forget the quotation that King George VI made famous in the conclusion of his Christmas broadcast to the Commonwealth.

These words echo down the centuries to us: "I said to a man who stood at the gate of the year, 'Give me a light that I may tread safely into the unknown.' And he replied, 'Go out into the darkness, and put your hand into the hand of God. That shall be to you better than light and safer than the known way'."

What a word it is true then is now true, and will remain true. "Put your hand into mine and the hope of an otherwise changing world. That is why our cry can say, "A Happy New Year!"—and mean it!

God Can Provide Stability

By REV. DR. GORDON C. SMITH

Everything seems to change. We inhabit a flattened galaxy of one hundred billion stars that change position at the super speed of light. A score of people will be born as you read this column. Almost that many will die. The weather forecast will be revised. The processes of aging set in. Those who say that we live in the height of a great civilization may be right.

Change distresses us, disconcerts us, frustrates us, even change for the better. Medical science lengthens life but multiplies the problems of the elderly. Never was there so much freedom in society but its temptations are in proportion. The provincial leader of the NDP has assured teachers that they are now ready to take their place alongside students and "other groups regarding authority." That kind of remark is less than reassuring!

Music of Ivan Rebroff Based on Russian Choir

By MICHAEL BENNETT
CP Correspondent

Ivan Rebroff has a bass voice with an exceptional four-octave range that couldn't sound more Russian if he had been born there.

He was born in Berlin in 1931. His parents had fled Russia during the revolution but his roots are entrenched in the folklore and culture of a country long since dead. The voice sounds as though its span had been developed inside a centuries-old Russian Orthodox church.

"It was forbidden to use female voices in the church because of St. Paul's First Letter to the Corinthians, Chapter 14, Verse 34," the singer explained. "He said women have to be quiet in church or something like that. On the other hand, they were such great musicians, those Russians, they couldn't do without the high notes."

Instruments were also barred from the church because they were made by human hands and humans were full of sin from the time of Satan, he said.

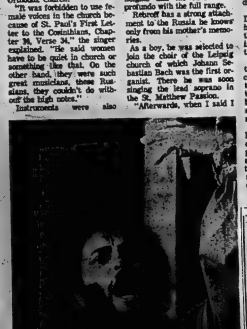
"Oh—that which our Lord created Himself, only the voice could be used to glorify Him. They had these great choirs of two octaves and they used to castrate boys, but afterwards they stopped it because it was against nature."

Choirmasters found tenors who could reach soprano heights and the rare bass profundo with the full range.

Rebroff has a strong attachment to the Russia he knows only from his mother's memories.

As a boy, he was selected to join the choir of the Leipzig church of which Johann Sebastian Bach was the first organist. There he was soon singing the lead soprano in the St. Matthew Passion.

"Afterwards, when I said I wanted to become a professional singer, my mother said: 'Are you crazy? Everybody can sing in our country. But you!' And she laughed.



When Rebroff's voice changed, he began singing with the Black Sea Cossack Chorus to help pay his way through the Academy of Music. Then there was 18 years in opera. First, in a small-town company and later in Frankfurt, where he made his debut as Don Basilio in The Barber of Seville. He still does operatic roles with a dramatic flair.

"We know what kind of idea Dostoievski must have had when he wrote the music. It's only these dull artists who are not intelligent enough to give them figures life."

"They stand here like this"—he assumes a haughty centurion pose — "and sing their arias, instead of trying to make a character. Everybody has a voice but personalities are very rare on the stage."

But Rebroff's passion is the Russia of his forefathers. In concert he portrays a drunken priest, singing Satan in a swaying, comic stupor in red tunic, peasant pants and Cossack boots, part of the legend of the 13 robbers.

"The Russian music is my greatest hobby," he said.

Bass to Soprano

Ivan Rebroff whose voice ranges from bass to soprano, brings to the concert stage the songs and culture of Russia his parents fled during the revolution. "He is maintaining a musical tradition that has all but died in the Soviet Union of today. (CP Photo)

Forgettable Fashions of 1973

Year-end reviews fill the pages of newspapers at this time of year, solemnly studying Women in the News or the Big Story of 1973. We thought you might enjoy a different, lighter, year-end review. This one of some of the fashions we didn't have the gall to print during the year. Hairstyles, jewelry, men's and women's clothes — here are some of . . . to put it charitably . . . the more unusual of this year's offerings from the fashion pundits.

To top off some of the ... urn .. unusual fashions on this page, why not an original Vidal Sassoon hairstyle? If you're in a hurry, don't fret. You won't have to queue up for this one.

Men were supposed to turn up at the office looking like this in the fall. Shown in Montreal last spring, it's a velvet overcoat with matching loque and scarf. Look. He's not even blushing.

London model Vanessa wears this Jean Varon dress with panache. Of which you'd need a lot to get away with this outside the bedroom. Designer John Bates called it "Camo"; Associated Press called it "cleavage".

It must have looked better on the mink. Pearl, beige and black mink diamonds and squares are joined in this belted coat. Rudolphe of Toronto is responsible for this coat.

If it isn't Gloria Swanson, who is it? It's a model for Elizabeth Arden displaying how to make-up now that wells have made a comeback. (They must have gone again while we weren't looking.)

As if the people of Greece didn't have enough problems in 1973, Yannis of Athens designed this green chiffon skirt with its revealing bodice supposedly patterned after a jacket a boy of ancient Thrace may have worn.

Chunky may be an understatement when it comes to describing this necklace by Kenneth Jay Lane of New York. Varying lengths in a spectrum of colors, the necklace is worn with big button earrings.

Supermarkets

One of the first things they teach you in journalism school is that you never take advantage of working for a newspaper to vent your own personal spleen.

Since I'm about to break that rule, I thought you ought to be forewarned.

It's just that every time I go grocery shopping, I get a headache. I'm not alone, either, because a number of shoppers complain to me about all kinds of things that go wrong in supermarkets. Here are some of their - - and my - - complaints, encompassing just about every market in town.

One reader says she paid a premium price recently for chops clearly marked "New Zealand" lamb. When she got the package home and opened, they were stamped - - quite clearly - - Australian lamb.

The same woman mentions that in a package of pork chops frequently the top layer are nicely cut center chops. Underneath are all the end cuts - - at centre cut prices.

One of my own recurring complaints about this cut of meat is that chops are so frequently paper thin at one side and an inch thick at the other. Virtually impossible to broil or fry.

Another reader complained recently that toilet paper in one market was marked at two rolls for 39 cents. Naturally assuming that a larger quantity is cheaper per roll, she picked up a roll of four. They were priced at 46 cents.

Frozen foods in supermarkets are a constant source of irritation both for me and many readers. One tells of a store where frozen orange juice was consistently liquid. Another person was angered to find frozen vegetables - - the hagged type - - solidly glued together. Since this type of vegetable is frozen with the idea that small quantities can be poured out of the bag, its obvious those vegetables have thawed at least partially.

Recently I purchased a 48-ounce glass container of apple juice at 49 cents. I liked the juice and the price so went back, a few days later, to buy more. Like a fool, I didn't check the price. I got home to discover I'd paid not 49 cents but 52 cents. Thirteen cents in three days is a steep rate of inflation.

Many persons have complained that local supermarkets often run out of certain items. One brand of merchandise will be offered for sale for months then disappear for months.

Old food for sale is another frequent complaint. "Fresh" produce that looks like it remembers the Summer of 43 and brown spread the salad meat aren't tempting. More and more, consumers are demanding dating on meat and produce.

If you've survived your trip to the supermarket thus far, you've still the battle of the check-out counter. Some common complaints: not enough cashiers, customers who won't fill their own bag, and only one "quickie" checkout. Personally, I'd like to see cashiers police the "eight items or less" aisles more stringently. When a purchaser customer lines up with a basketful of groceries, let the cashier wave him off.

The final - - and universal - - complaint is the supermarket, comes at the very end of the trip when you have to pay for the stuff.

Sky-high prices after all the irritation is truly adding insult to injury. The next time you're standing in line for what seems like hours, ask yourself if you'd put up with this kind of nonsense from any other business that gets thousands of your dollars every year.

Ann Landers

Old-Fashioned Problem:
Her Mama Is A Snob!

Dear Ann Landers: I'm a 16-year-old with a very old-fashioned problem. I have to believe that in this day and age with the collapse of phony status symbols, and with kids rejecting the material static values of the Establishment," there are still people around who think family background matters. My ancestors go back to the Hugenots (big deal) and what my parents keep trying to know about the family history of every boy I go out with. It's a real kick in the head.

Which saying it is so many words, they have a knack for every guy who doesn't belong to the upper crust as my mother calls it. Mom thinks you're neat because you are against the legalization of marijuana. Any advice?—Philadelphia Mahnine Out Of Order

Dear Philly: Doesn't your mother know that the "upper crust" is usually a bunch of inbreds held together by a lot of dough?

I like your values better than your mother's. I hope you will continue to judge people by what they are and not what their relatives were.

Dear Ann Landers: How can a marriage die in less than 10 years? What happened to all the love and happiness?

My husband and I both work. When he is sober he is a wonderful husband and father. But what happens about one day out of 14. He comes home for dinner smelling of alcohol and is interested only in himself. The children beg for his attention but he has no time for them, unless it's to scold or criticize.

He leaves the house almost every evening after dinner and I know he is seeing other women. When we do go out together he seems to enjoy humiliating me before the few friends we do have.

Is divorce the best thing? We are both young enough to make a new life and find some happiness.—Lonely.

Dear L.: Divorce might be the answer, but try something else first. Al-Anon has done wonders for women who have alcoholic husbands. Write for their literature: The address is: Al-Anon Family Group Headquarters, Inc. P.O. Box 182, Madison Square Station, New York, New York 10010. Good luck to you, dear.

Author Creates Discontent Angel

By JEAN SHARP
CP Women's Editor

TORONTO (CP) — Angelica is a naked angel who becomes so depressed at the strain of being eternally nice, she plots ways to earn, Here, after much pain and travail, she learns to be herself, to be honest, to be real.

Her creator, Helen Lucas, says Angelica began life as a friendly cartoon creature she drew on cards to send friends on special occasions.

She now is in a book where her adventures, says Mrs. Lucas, symbolize her own struggles with the work and, she believes, the plight of many women.

"Angelica's not good looking, but she doesn't care. She thinks she's beautiful.

"She does all the things I'd like to do. I have thought, 'If only I had had more wisdom, if only I could not give a damn about being nice.'

"That's the whole thing of the book. Who can be nicer than an angel? And she fights it. She's in heaven, and she's depressed, and depression is reverse anger.

"The female really plays that nice girl role. She meets a boy and is nice so he'll like her.

"If Angelica can learn to live with her background, her wings and her halo, the rest of us can learn to live with ours."

Mrs. Lucas is a painter.

"I do very serious, heavy stuff. Mostly very abstract work. My background is Greek, and it's heavy."

She says in her setting, all she painted at first were icons, in the traditional style.

"That was safe. Anything I did other than looking after the house threatened my marriage."

She says her cultural and religious background and the attitudes of the time kept her from trying to work and hold her in a marriage she considered unsatisfactory.

"The women born in the '20s, the '30s and '40s were caught in the status quo.

"In the Greek church, the women and babies have to be cleansed after the baby is born because the woman had intercourse. . . . I'm sorry this tradition still is around, because it does so much harm.

"My book is not meant to be anti-church, but I believe St. Paul has a lot to answer for."

She says for several years before her marriage broke up she worried about how she could earn a living.

"I teach painting at Sheridan College. I got the first job I applied for. And if I hadn't, I would have got the 10th.

"It's a struggle for women to be real, to let out anger. It's so difficult for most people, there is a great pain in saying 'that makes me angry.'

"When Angelica comes down to earth, she struggles with whether she wants to come to life. She feels the numbness. She has to make that decision to turn outward instead of inward.

"I think it's great to be a woman at this time. I'm meeting gutsy women and enjoying it."

Angelica, by Helen Lucas. Kakabeka Publishing Company, $2.50 paperback, $7.95 hardcover.

Successful Living

Other People's Culture

"I do not want my house to be valued. I do not want all my windows to be stuffed. I want the cultures of all lands to be blown about my house as freely as possible.

"But I refuse to be blown off my feet by any. I refuse to live in other people's houses as an interloper, a beggar or a slave."

Dear Doris: I enjoy your column very much and have found it useful. Keep up the fine work.

Could you mail me a copy of your study on "Children With Learning Disabilities," please? Is there a charge? I enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Have been working with three emotionally disturbed boys this past while. Also teach in the elementary school - - mostly in the language-arts area.

Teacher.

Dear Teacher: The leaflet is 25 cents and it is on its way.

But you do understand, don't you, that learning disabilities and emotional disturbances are two different things? There are times when an unhappy environment can be so confusing that a child simply cannot calm down enough to think straight about anything; but learning disabilities can happen in the best of families.

The very first thing you need, if you have any doubts about what you are trying to handle, is to get a diagnosis as to what kind of disability - - or disturbance - - is making learning hard.

It might be something as simple as poor eyesight, or as damaging as an insecure home.

Confidential to Down With Alcohol: Doubtless you have been covering up for your alcoholic husband for years; making excuses for him when he is off on a binge or recovering from one and away from work.

Even now, when he admits an affair (still going on), he continues to count on you to be a strong, steady rock for his support. Then his guilty conscience gives him desperadoes. He is in the grip of assorted emotions without enough discipline to control them.

Better have a personal talk with a trained social worker.

OTTAWA (CP) — Beware of work-at-home schemes that promise large profits for little work, warns the Consumers' Association of Canada. First check on the company and ask for the names of others who have been employed in the scheme to learn from their experiences. Be especially wary of ads which require an advance payment.

Deception Bared

BIRMINGHAM, England (CP) — The management of the Birmingham Hippodrome was fined £5 (£12.50) for a breach of the Trade Descriptions Act when an inspector of weights and measures found three naked girls advertised as members of the London company of Pyjama Toys were not, in fact, from that production.

Births Decline

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia (AP) — The government news agency CTK said if the present birth rate continues, Prague's population will drop from its current 1,078,000 residents to 930,000 by 1985. CTK did not say what the birth rate was.

Top Attraction

SYDNEY, Australia (AP) — Coffs Harbor, 330 miles north of Sydney, apparently hasn't been growing too many tourists with its fame as a banana-growing town—so it's turning to topless women. The town plans to have the first beach in Australia where women legally can wear topless swimsuits.

English Nurses Leave

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — Some of the English nurses brought to Newfoundland this summer to help alleviate staff shortages in the province's hospitals have returned home.

Twenty-three of the 32 British girls who had three-month contracts with St. John's hospitals have gone back and three more will be leaving at the end of December.

The remaining six have decided to remain in the province for at least another year. They have been accepted in the Registered Nurses Association of Newfoundland and are working in hospitals in St. John's.

A spokesman for the nurses association said: "The project, designed to fill vacancies left by local nurses leaving their jobs for long maternity vacations, to get married and other reasons, proved successful and helped keep all hospital beds open. If they had not come to help us out we would have had to close beds and limit emergency patients."

The spokesman said, "All persons concerned are satisfied with the rules played by the British nurses, but most hospitals are now fully staffed and any repetition of the importing project next spring and summer will depend on our position at that time."

Staffing the institutions during the fall and winter is a minor problem, but when spring breaks many Newfoundland nurses seek a change of scenery.

Meantime, registered nurses across the province recently voted almost 100 per cent in favor of a new two-year contract offer from the provincial government. Beginning nurses who received $6,000 annually will receive $6,900 under the new contract and salaries now range from the low of $6,900 to as high as $10,000.

Elizabeth Witton, president of the registered nurses association said, "The main reasons, for the shortage of nurses in the province was the low salaries paid."

She said, "Out of 23 nurses graduated from Montreal University school of nursing this year with a bachelor of nursing degree only two stayed Health Minister Dr. A. T. Rowe has expressed interest in short-term courses that have been recommended by the Canadian Medical Association and the Canadian Nurses Association, to expand nurses training, and fit them for service in the field of family practice.

Dr. Rowe said: "The nurses would first work in cottage hospitals in the outports, later with a district medical officer and eventually alone in districts. The nurses could release doctors from home visits, early diagnosis and teaching health habits."

Ontario Snowmobile Safety Campaign Begins in Earnest

TORONTO (CP) — Alarmed by the increasing number of deaths and injuries caused by snowmobiles, the Ontario Safety League (OSL) and the Ontario Provincial Police (OPP) are conducting extensive safety campaigns.

"It's the nuts who get killed or injured," Ernest Taylor, manager of the OSL's outdoor recreation department, said in an interview.

"Most snowmobilers know they have a dangerous, highly-powered machine and they treat it with respect. But something has to be done to stop that minority from killing or maiming themselves."

In the 1972-73 September-to-May season, 53 persons died in snowmobile accidents in Ontario, more than double the 25 deaths the previous year. So far this season at least nine snowmobilers have died in the province.

Mr. Taylor and Chief Inspector Fred Blucher, OPP director of safety and information, favor handing snowmobiles from public thoroughfares.

Last summer the legislature's select committee on snowmobiles recommended the banning of the machines from all provincial roads by 1975 and restricting their use to special public trails and private property.

The OPP estimates about half the snowmobile deaths and injuries last year happened on public roads.

But under present Ontario law, each municipality must pass laws governing use of the machines in its area and so far only a few have imposed any type of ban.

In 1968, Ontario registered about 100,000 snowmobiles and this year the total is expected to reach almost 440,000.

"We've got to get the message out that these machines are not toys," said OPP Insp. Blucher. "They're as powerful as a car or motorcycle, they're harder to control and they offer you absolutely no protection in a collision."

To get the message across, the OPP has 93 officers conducting safety programs throughout the province.

The OPP also has 83 snowmobiles patrolling the prime recreation areas extending from Lake Simcoe north to the Manitoulins.

"Both Insp. Blucher and Mr. Taylor own and enjoy snowmobiles and Mr. Taylor said snowmobiles are here to stay.

"All we have to do now is learn how to survive with them."

Inflation, Oil Cuts To Hurt Our Trade

OTTAWA (CP) — International inflation and cuts in Middle East oil supplies likely will reduce Canada's trade surplus next year from the estimated $1.75 billion posted in 1973, says Trade Minister Alastair Gillespie.

In his annual economic review and outlook for the coming year, the minister said Friday that even before the curtailment of Arab oil production in October the latter part of 1973 saw "a marked slowing in the pace of advance of most industrial economies."

As other governments took steps to control inflation, demand for Canadian exports likewise tended to decline.

Reduction of Arab oil shipments "will influence the demand for and price of some important industrial materials," his statement said.

"Further alignments of major currencies are a distinct possibility."

"In these circumstances the demand for Canadian exports in 1974 may conclude less to expansion than it has in the past year. A relatively stronger pattern in imports is expected to persist in the coming year."

Mr. Gillespie said increasing demand for capital equipment for industries maintaining an expansion trend' begun in 1972 will be the major factor in rising imports.

"In summary, . . . in the light of uncertainties in international markets in 1974, some decline from the level of the substantial trade surplus in 1973 seems likely."

In 1973 the gross national product will have increased about 14 per cent—seven per cent after discounting price inflation—to about $117 billion. That would be the greatest yearly expansion since the mid-1950s.

Employment has risen about five per cent in 1973, to about 8.7 million. The average unemployment rate fell to about 5.7 per cent in 1973 from 6.3 per cent in 1972.

"But a less encouraging piece of 1973 was the increased momentum of price increases," the minister said.

"The expansion of capital spending for new industrial capacity in Canada may be one of the most important means at hand for ultimately securing an abatement in the rate of price increases."

Liquor Money Could Save Lives

TORONTO (CP) — The Christmas and New Year's spending of an affluent Canada demands that Canadians realistically face up to the plight of political prisoners and famine around the world, Rt. Rev. N. Bruce McLeod, moderator of the United Church of Canada, said Friday.

He named four critical concerns of the season in an open letter to Canadians. They are the refusal of Syria to give information about Israeli prisoners in their hands; the detention of political prisoners in South Vietnam; the deadline for 1,500 refugees now competing to leave Chile; and famine in West Africa.

"So much violence and hurt has come to us through our newspaper pages and our television screens that it is easy to become numb and turn to comics or switch channels," he said in his letter.

"No one's head is big enough to care about the whole world at once," he said. "The comparables are too much and partisan voices too shrill," but "some situations stand out unambiguously and our humanity is diminished if we do not respond."

Dr. McLeod's message urged Canadians to care about at least one of these international situations, address their comments to government, organize local auction groups and "match the money you spend at the liquor store the last two weeks and send it away."

Crooked Tower Tumbled

The stack was found to be 13 inches out of line at the 220-foot mark and construction was stopped; it later was decided to destroy the stack and rebuild it.

The reinforced concrete structure was brought down by the Canadian Kellogg Co., the contractors who built it. There has been no word when construction will begin on the new stack.

When it is finished, the stack will be approximately 600 feet high.

John Goddard, resident power commission engineer at the site, said no damage was done to surrounding buildings when the stack was brought down.

A 10-foot-deep bed of sand and gravel was prepared at the site of the chimney which "landed dead centre in it," he said.

Power commission chairman J. Stewart Brooks said there would be no extra cost to the commission as a result of the demolition and reconstruction of the stack.

Ticket Problems

Olympic Lottery Stubs Toe

MONTREAL (CP) — The offices of Olympic Lottery Canada, already clogged by thousands of mailed applications for tickets on the first of six $1-million first-prize draws, have an other problem.

It appears that, thousands of people who have spent $10 for a ticket are mailing in the identification portion of their stubs fearing that if they don't their ticket will not be included in the draw.

The purchaser's portion of the ticket has a space on the back for the buyer's name and address. So, in case of the loss or of a whole ticket, the prize will not go to the finder by mistake.

The seemingly needless fear arises from the fact that people outside Quebec think the stubs will be placed in a barrel and the winning tickets drawn," Jean Cote, vice-president and general manager of the lottery said Friday.

"We're receiving thousands of stubs by registered mail, because a number of banks in various provinces apparently have wrongly advised purchasers," he said.

A spokesman said that when a block of tickets is purchased by a dealer the numbers are immediately fed into a computer.

"We emphasized in our original announcement that the system chosen for the draw is a computer operation based largely on the Loto-Quebec system, but it would seem that this information escaped many people," Cote said.

Instructions on the back of the purchaser's portion of the ticket says that if the buyer's number is selected by the computer for the April 15 draw, the name and address portion of the ticket should be sent by registered mail to the lottery office here.

But Cote said the lottery office has had to obtain a special vault to store the stubs sent in prematurely and in this way "protect the investment of the purchaser."

"But it is essential that purchasers immediately stop sending us the stubs because they belong with the purchaser," he said.

"As for the stubs already received, the purchasers may be secure in the thought that we will look after them as if they were our own property."

Deer Moved

CHATHAM, Ont. (CP) — The first of an estimated 250 deer was removed from Rondeau Provincial Park Friday in an operation to reduce the size of the park's herd.

Overpopulation of the herd is resulting in destruction of natural growth and vegetation in the park, located 15 miles east of here on the shores of Lake Erie.

Nuclear Safety Stiffer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States Atomic Energy Commission set stiffer safety rules Friday for all nuclear power plants.

The action, officials conceded, was partly in response to criticism over the last two years by environmentalist groups and scientists concerning the reliability of AEC-approved emergency core cooling systems. The systems are used in all but two of the country's existing nuclear power reactors.

The new rules are designed to further assure their reliability. The emergency core cooling systems are backup safety systems designed to supply emergency cooling—either by spraying or flooding with water, or both—in the reactor fuel cores if the primary system should rupture or break.

Critics contend that if the primary cooling system of a reactor fuel core ruptured and the backup system failed to work, the core would melt, burn through its container and shield and allow radioactive gases and materials into the atmosphere.

World in Brief

DROP LAW SUIT

NEW YORK (AP) — Lawyers for Jacqueline Onassis said Friday they have dropped a lawsuit against her husband Aristotle for non-payment of legal fees. The fees were for a suit Mrs. Onassis brought against a free-lance photographer in 1972. The firm declined to comment on reports that the suit was dropped after Mrs. Onassis paid $235,000 from her own funds to settle the case.

FIRST TO SIGN

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — The United States Friday became the first country to sign a new UN treaty designed to protect diplomats and high government officials against terrorist attack. U.S. Ambassador William Scranton said the U.S. hopes other countries will act "with a similar sense of urgency."

SERIAL WRITER DIES

CHICAGO (AP) — Irma Phillips, 73, the queen of the television soap opera writers and creator of As the World Turns, has died. Miss Phillips's career as a radio serial writer began in 1930. She wrote Today's Children, Woman in White, Road of Life, Guiding Light, Right to Happiness, Lonely Women, Young Doctor Malone, and The Brighter Day.

MISSION FAILED

ATHENS (AP) — Three West European socialists flew home Friday after the Greek government refused to let them investigate the political situation in Greece. The three—a member of the Dutch Senate; a member of the Italian Chamber of Deputies; secretary of the British Transport and General Workers Union—were representatives of the Socialist International.

COP REFUSES GAS

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Ambassador Medoune Fall of Senegal has complained that he was laid to a meeting at the United Nations because a police commander at a gasoline station not in service his car. He told the committee on United Nations relations that the policeman told his chauffeur: "African countries should go to the Arab countries to get theirgas."

URGES IMPEACHMENT

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Chesterfield Smith, president of the American Bar Association, says President Nixon should be impeached to end "the political never-never land where citizens suspect the motives of the president." Smith said Friday impeachment would provide "the only due process forum in which the issue can be concluded."

1973 Was an Eventful Year in Quinte District

By JIM SMELLIE
Staff Reporter

With 1974 just a few hours away, this is traditionally the time for looking back at the year just ending.

The year 1973 in Belleville and the Quinte area was a fairly busy one. It was a year of fires, strikes and a royal couple passing through.

The year began for Bellevillians with a recently elected mayor, Robin Jeffery, whose election on December 4, 1972 made her the second woman ever to serve as at the city's highest official.

It was the year when the city made news throughout the province because of a major fire downtown in which 11 people were evacuated from a burning apartment the night of November 28. This fire was one of three major fires in the Quinte Area in November.

Police constable Bob McAlpine aided in the rescue of a mother and her two young children from the fire which caused an estimated $300,000 damage to the upstairs apartments and a pizzeria and Brinks' office below.

There was also a major fire which destroyed the Wayside Inn in Shannonville on November 7 causing an estimated $500,000 damage.

Two weeks to the day following that blaze, a fire swept through the Mel-O-Dee Restaurant destroying it.

1973 was also a year of labor unrest marked by the ten-week strike by the Northern Electric employees which began on May 7 when 1,900 employees walked off their jobs.

It wasn't until July 15 when agreement was reached between the union and company permitting the plant to resume work which started following a two-week summer vacation period.

And almost as soon as the Northern Electric workers settled their differences, the city's railway non-operating workers took to the picket lines, leaving their jobs July 31.

The form of protest taken by the city's 400 striking non-ops, members of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway Transport and General Workers, was a series of rotating strikes.

This system was used until a nation-wide work stoppage stopped all rail traffic in late August.

With negotiations broken down, a group of local railway non-operating workers, under president of CBRT Local 126, Jack Thorner, took their protest to Parliament Hill in Ottawa on a hot sticky August 31.

The workers were recalled to work by Parliament a few days later and settlement was reached in early September.

1973 was also the year that saw many prominent people pay a visit to Belleville and area. Robert Stanfield visited the Quinte Exhibition in early August, Stephen Lewis appeared on a radio talk show in the fall and Senator Keith Davey was at a Liberal party meeting at the Four Seasons Hotel.

Also at the Four Seasons but only briefly and then only in and out was the Happy Hooker, Xaveria Hollander. Miss Hollander had left before anyone even knew she was here.

But it was the passing through the city on a late June day of two people on a train that stirred the most reaction among the local residents.

On June 27, the train carrying Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip passed through Belleville and Trenton while en route from Cobourg to Kingston.

The thousands of people, estimated to be 8,000 in the two cities, had to contest with just a fleeting glimpse of the royal couple.

The year 1973 was a busy one for industry with the city welcoming many new businesses and companies to its already growing list. Even with a shortage of building materials in the fall, construction continued to boom in the city.

Among the new industries to call Belleville home in 1973 were the Standard Paper Box Company and Demellier Durable, both in the city's thriving northeast industrial park.

Construction was also started this year on the Bank of Nova Scotia on the corner of Front and Victoria streets. And work was completed this year on a self-serve service station and car wash on North Front and College.

Also new to the city was the Shop-Rite Delicatessen Store on Dundas and Front streets. And day of two people on a train that stirred the most reaction among the local residents.

On June 27, the train carrying Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip passed through Belleville and Trenton while en route from Cobourg to Kingston.

The thousands of people, estimated to be 8,000 in the two cities, had to contest with just a fleeting glimpse of the royal couple.

Education also made news in the city. It was on December 18 that teachers in the city's schools, in an unprecedented move, stayed away from classes to protest government legislation attempting to infringe upon their right to resign.

Also in the news was the dispute over the granting of a liquor licence to Loyalist College for its pub nights. The dispute arose after it was discovered the college was located in the City's Sidney Township.

Front page news was made in most of Ontario over the sinking of a Canadian Coast Guard cutter and the drowning of two crew members.

Eric Breau of Stirling and Manny Powers of Trenton drowned when the cutter sank in Athol Bay off Outlet Provincial Park the night of September 6.

Cozswain Ken Campbell of Carrying Place survived after being in the cold waters for four hours.

In April, two Belleville constables, Gerry Bull and Jack O'Donnell narrowly missed death when fired upon with a rifle by 17-year-old Richard Blake Boomhower, of Belleville.

The two constables were called to investigate a disturbance on Carrollton Road.

Boomhower was later convicted of two counts of discharging a firearm with intent to endanger life and sentenced to seven years in prison by Mr. Justice E. I. Haines of the Ontario Supreme Court.

Boomhower was committed to the Ontario Mental Health Centre at Penetanguishene for extensive psychiatric treatments. During his trial, Boomhower admitted firing six shots with a 30-30 rifle at constables Bull and O'Donnell.

In another trial in county court from November 26 to 30, Barbara Hinze was charged and convicted of having stolen $600 worth of guaranteed investment certificates from a Madoc woman while serving as the guaranteed investment certificate supervisor at Victoria and Grey Trust Company in Belleville.

Judge R.C. Honey presided over the jury trial, for the 28 year-old woman from Plainfield. She received a suspended sentence and was placed on a year's probation.

There was also a case of arson in the Belleville courts. Thirty-year-old John Howard Tame was convicted of three counts of arson and sentenced on November 14 to two years probation by provincial judge J.L. Dendenning.

Tame had been convicted of setting fire to the porches of several East Hill homes and to a garage the night of August 17.

Belleville police investigated a rash of dog poisonings in the city's east end in mid-November. They said that someone was poisoning the animals with strychnine after two dogs died.

Police also investigated the case of a 15-year-old girl who was attacked while walking along Victoria Avenue near Chatham Street on October 12. It was said she was jumped by a man described as being about 30 years old wearing a blue shirt. No one has been arrested.

On April 3 a coroner's jury made a decision during an inquest held into the death of a 13-year-old Belleville boy, David John Brewster who died February 28 after inhaling glue fumes. His mother found him with a plastic bag over his head.

The jury recommended that glue manufacturers add an extra ingredient to glue to induce nausea when inhaled. It also suggested that signatures be required for buying glue and that the subject be dealt with at length in school drug education classes.

Turning to the political scene in the Quinte area in 1973, there were a few changes in the councils of Trenton and Belleville.

In Trenton, Mayor Duncan McDonald resigned his seat in November after three years as the town's mayor. He said his recent transfer to the travel department of Canadian Pacific in Ottawa would not allow him enough time for that job as well as civic affairs.

In Belleville, Alderman Arnold Orr resigned for health reasons and was replaced by George Zegouras.

The year 1973 wasn't exactly a good year for walkathons in the Quinte Area. Two were held, one by the Belleville Kiwanis club on May 26 and one on Sept. 29 by the Quinte Kiwanis Club.

Both were 20 miles long with money raised by the spring one going for park development and the fall one raising money for the Quinte Kiwanis Club's swim program.

Both walkathon's were hurt by poor weather that cut down the number of walkers although the spirit was certainly there. Although the fall walkathon was cancelled after the first six miles because of steady rain, five participants made it to the finish.

A skatathon was held by the Rotary Club for two days in November which fared a little better, since weather didn't play a part in participation in it. Part of the money raised from this event went towards helping the various organizations taking part in it such as minor sports and scouts.

If 1973 wasn't the best of years for walkathons, it was a good year for official openings in Belleville and area. On July 7, Glanmore house was officially opened while also in July, the Prince Edward County Museum was opened in Picton.

On September 30, the Delaney Wing of Corby Public Library was officially opened, making available to residents a new reading room, art display area and film showing room.

This then was the year 1973 in Belleville and the area. A busy year in more ways than one. A year which now gives way to 1974, bringing with it its own character and changes.

North Stars Gain Ground

Minnesota North Stars have been waging a losing battle to become a playoff contender in the West Division of the National Hockey League this season, but they gained a little headway Friday night.

The North Stars' chances weren't enhanced by the suspension of their leading scorer, Bill Goldsworthy, but the team persisted and succeeded in defeating Vancouver Canucks 5-3.

Lou Nanne converted Dennis Hextall's pass to score the winner at 14:37 of the final period and Tony Featherstone scored late an empty Vancouver net for the clincher in the waning minutes of the game.

In other games Friday, St. Louis Blues defeated Pittsburgh Penguins 3-1 and California Golden Seals played to a 4-4 tie with New York Islanders.

The victory left North Stars in fifth place in their division, eight points behind the Blues and Atlanta Flames, tied with 26 points each.

Minnesota lost Goldsworthy for three games under the suspension imposed by Clarence Campbell, NHL president.

Campbell said Goldsworthy was barred for kicking forward Bill Lesuk of Los Angeles Kings during a fight in a game against the Kings in Los Angeles, Dec. 22.

"This was the first kicking incident in the league in several years," Campbell said, "and it is universally recognized by all players to be the most heinous offence of the game."

Minnesota Canadiens, hosted the Toronto Maple Leafs, have called up John Van Boxmeer from Nova Scotia Voyageurs of the American Hockey League to bolster their defence.

A spokesman for the NHL club said Van Boxmeer was summoned in case Jacques Laperriere could not play against New York Rangers tonight.

Laperriere suffered a bruised side in the game against the Leafs and Serge Savard, who has been nursing a severe groin injury for the past week will not be ready to play against New York.

In other games tonight, Atlanta Flames are at Toronto, New York Islanders visit Vancouver Canucks, Boston Bruins meet Los Angeles Kings in a west coast game, Chicago Black Hawks face Pittsburgh Penguins in Pittsburgh and Philadelphia Flyers visit St. Louis Blues.

Sunday, Toronto is at Chicago, Minnesota visits the Rangers; Boston plays the Golden Seals in California, Atlanta visits Detroit Red Wings and Philadelphia plays the Sabres in Buffalo.

St. Louis 3 Pittsburgh 1

St. Louis Blues rolled to victory over the Penguins on the strength of two goals by Pierre Plante in a four-minute span in the second period. Pittsburgh squandered its chances before Plante got his goals as they had a two-stan advantage for one minute and 31 seconds because of penalties to Don Awrey and Larry Giroux.

It just wasn't Pittsburgh's night. Defenceman Bryan Watson had to leave the ice for examination of a possible head injury after a first-period fight with Blues' Bob Kelly. Watson returned to the game for awhile, but later was taken to hospital when he suffered a dizzy spell.

New York Islanders 4 California 4

The Islanders gained a 4-4 tie with the Golden Seals when Billy Harris scored his ninth goal of the season at 12:40 of the third period. The Islanders had to rally four times to salvage a share of the points. Gary Croteau scored twice for the Seals, who are last in the West Division. The Islanders now are one point ahead of the Canucks in the East.

Cougars Whip Nordiques

Chicago Cougars kept Quebec Nordiques in their place in the World Hockey Association Friday night.

The Cougars, who have been performing inconsistently under player-coach Pat Stapleton, fanned their hopes of getting a playoff berth by defeating the Nordiques 4-2, thereby preventing the Quebec team from taking possession of second place in the East division.

The Nordiques are tied with Toronto Toros at 26 points with 27 games, while the Cougars remained in fifth place, only four points behind the fourth-place Cleveland Crusaders.

The Cougars looked to rookie Francois Lacroix for support Friday and he supplied two goals in his rush and 10th of the season.

It was a wide-open game in which goalies Richard Brodeur of the Nordiques and Rich Costa of the Cougars were bombarded. The Cougars fired 36 shots at Brodeur and the Nordiques had 36 on Costa.

The only other game Friday night New Jersey Knights continued in their campaign to overtake the Eastern Division cellar by defeating Vancouver Blazers 5-3.

In tonight's action, New England Whalers play at Edmonton Oilers, Quebec Nordiques are at Houston Aeros, Winnipeg Jets visit the Nordiques and Knights visit Cleveland Crusaders.

On Sunday, the Whalers visit Vancouver Blazers, Winnipeg plays the Toros in Toronto, Chicago is at Minnesota, Cleveland goes to Cherry Hill to meet the Knights and Los Angeles Sharks entertain Houston Aeros.

Sharks' coach Ted McCaskill said after Thursday's loss to the Whalers that he was not panicking, but admitted that "something drastic has to be done."

"If we don't get things straightened out quickly it's going to be too late," he said after the team's fourth straight defeat.

The Oilers, who have been hit by injuries to several key players including Steve Carlyle, Eddie Joyal and Roger Cote, Friday called up Bob McAnesky from the club's farm team in the Southern Hockey League at Winston Salem, N.C.

ANDRE LACROIX

Carlyle underwent surgery for torn knee ligaments and will be out of action for at least three more weeks.

Joyal is out for six weeks to two months with a broken wrist and Cote is suffering from a charley horse.

New Jersey 5 Vancouver 3

The Knights moved to within six points of fourth place in the Eastern Division with their triumph over the Blazers.

League scoring leader Danny Lawson connected for his 22nd goal of the season for Vancouver, but Andrew Lacroix held the spotlight with a goal and three assists for the winners, elevating him to the ranks of the tp pl0 scorers.

"He's a great player," Knights' player-coach Harry Howell said. "He handles the puck like a magician. I'm glad he's on my side."

Lacroix, the WHA defending scoring champion, came over to the Knights' side in a five-player trade that sent the runner-up scorer, Ron Ward, to Vancouver.

Petes Shade U.S.

LENINGRAD, U.S.S.R. (CP) — Peterborough Petes' Bill Eves scored with eight seconds remaining in the game Friday night to give the Canadians a 5-4 victory over the United States in an international junior hockey tournament.

In another tournament contest, Sweden defeated Finland 9-4.

It was the first game for both North American teams in the six-country tournament. The Petes are the only club team entered, the rest being composed of all-star entries.

Evo beat U.S. goalie Dave Hetts with a short slapshot that gave the Petes their come-from-behind win. The Americans held a 3-2 margin going into the third period and were leading 4-2 before Doug Jarvis's second goal of the game at the 9:01 mark.

Jarvis's third-period score came on a penalty shot when referees ruled a Canadian player had been hauled down by a U.S. defenceman after breaking into the clear.

Gord Duncan and Paul McIntosh were the other Canadian scorers.

Jim Warner, Steve Short, Tom Ulseth and John Shewchuk were the American scorers. Goalie Peterborough goalie was Frank Salive.

Canadians Walloped

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (AP) — Defending-champion Russia, with Konstantin Klimov scoring two goals, walloped Canada 11-3 Friday night in the third annual World Cup hockey tournament.

The Russians got five goals in the first period, one in the second, and five in the final period. Representing Canada were

Finns Drub Regina Pats

HELSINKI (CP) — Helsinki IFK drubbed the junior Regina Pats 9-3 Friday night in a fight-marred hockey game.

Drew Callender and Rob Todor scored for the Pats of the Western Canada Hockey League who were down 4-0 after the first period and trailed 7-1 going into the final 20 minutes.

Rick Dirch of Regina and Heikki Riihirenta of the Helsinki club were given minor penalties for a first-period brawl.

The Pats are the only junior team entered in Sweden's Aberarne Cup tournament where, in Friday's lone game, Djurgaarden of Stockholm defeated London Lions, a pro team comprising Canadian, U.S. and Swedish players, 5-3.

Flin Flon Bombers of the Western Canada Hockey League.

The Russian domination showed in the shot total, 42 against two goalies, while the Canadians fired only 24 at Aleksandr Sidelnikov.

Klimov scored a first-period goal and then got Russia's only second-period tally. Nine other players scored for the Soviet Union.

Defenceman Gennadiy Tsygankov scored one goal and had two assists, while Viacheslav Anisin contributed a goal and two assists.

Tonight the United States, represented by the University of Minnesota team, plays Czechoslovakia. The Russians and the Czechs finish off the three-game series Sunday night before the tourney moves to Colorado Springs, Colo.

Flin Flon lost 5-3 Thursday to the Czechs.

Czechs Come To Life

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Tesla Pardubice of Czechoslovakia whipped Brantford Transport of the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A league 10-4 Friday night to create a three-way tie for first place in an international six-team round-robin tournament.

Cambridge Hornets, also of the OHA senior league, Toronto Marlboros of the OHA major junior A series and the Czechs each have a 1-0 record. Sweden, which lost Thursday to the Marlboros, and the Soviet Union, which hasn't played a game, are winless.

The Czechs were paced by the three-goal performance of Bohuslav Stastny. Seven players shared the other goals for the visiting side, which outshot the home team 42-24.

Dunc Macdonald, John McMillan, Dave Johnson and Bill Gratton scored for the Foresters.

The tournament continues tonight with the Marlboros visiting the Hornets and Russia opposing Sweden in Orillia, Ont.

In an exhibition game at Guelph Friday, Sweden Farjestad indulged in a shooting spree to trounce Guelph Biltmores of the Southern Ontario Junior Hockey League 10-4. Rene Erik Andersson scored twice for Sweden, while Tim Holder led the Biltmores with two goals.

Queen's Title For BCI Squad

The highly acclaimed Queen's University High School Basketball Tournament was held Thursday and Friday as the secondary school meeting the Belleville district, Belleville Collegiate Institute and Vocational School (BCI) fought hopes the grand championship.

Ten teams are allowed into the two day affair, held annually, including teams from Pembroke; Oshawa and Peterborough.

The tournament allows a team to lose twice before they are eliminated from play and BCI was the only team to go through the competition without a loss.

Larry Wilson was top gunner for the BCI squad, tying 18 in the final game, which the local team won 45-18 over Gananoque. Russ Simonds was second during the final, scoring 15 points.

"We really had good defence all the way around," said BCI coach, Jim McKenzie, but our two greatest assets throughout the tournament had to be our guards and our bench strength."

The four BCI guards, Gary Donahue, Dave Van Tassel, Mike Bell and Steve Kirby, were highly complimented by Queen's Athletic Director, Frank Tindall, during the presentation of awards.

"Those guards showed a great degree of poise and discipline," said Tindall, they moved the ball very well."

We had to play five games in the two days," commented coach McKenzie, "I felt there was enough strength throughout our team that I could easily rotate the players and never wear anyone out."

McKenzie's approach to the Tournament was obviously a wise one to take.

BCI played three games Thursday, defeating KCVI 36-34 with Wilson scoring 14 points, Brockville 35-26 with Simonds scoring 13 and Wilson 8, and Frontenac 31-25 with Wilson hopping 18.

Their first game Friday was described by McKenzie, as "our most crucial of the whole competition."

St. Patrick, of Peterborough, was the only other undefeated team until they played BCI. The local team thumped them 33-22 and Larry Wilson was once again high scorer with 23 points, leading his squad to the Queen's Invitational Championship as high scorer in the match against Gananoque.

Corlies Repeats

Jim Corlies, a former pin boy at the Bowl-O-Drome, seems to find his old stomping grounds a great place to bowl himself.

Jim, now a resident of Kingston, captured the second tournament this month where he worked as a youth.

This time it was the Bowl-O-Drome' Holiday Classic that Corlies took top honors in. On the 10th of this month he won the Gold Cup Tournament on the same alleys.

The Classic paid him $100 for his first place finish, he picked up $125 for his earlier victory.

Corlies had to work hard for his earnings, though, as Oscar Weisberg, of Peterborough, was his final round competition.

In the two losses and out tournament, Weisberg had a perfect score while Corlies had lost one. Instead of playing one game against each other, as was done in the other rounds of play, it was necessary for the two finalists to play two games, both of which Corlies took handily.

Weisberg won $25 for second place, and Jack Caraska, of Belleville, was awarded $25 for third.

A two-way tie for fourth spot paid Jim Nicholls and Jack Calnan, both Bellevillians, $20, and a trio of bowlers were given $18 each for their fifth place finish.— Bill Curry, of Belleville, Ron Knapman, Corbyville, and Wayne Tuttle, Cobourg.

There were 34 bowlers in the competition and Nicholls, Knapman, Tuttle and Lee St. Louis also received cash prizes for high singles in each of the four rounds of the tournament.

Trenton Juveniles Win 7-2

Reports filtering back from Finland seem to indicate the Trenton Birt's Handy Stand Juveniles have made an impressive start on their seven-game exhibition series in that country.

Team sponsor Gary Birt telephoned Trenton Friday to relay the information that the team had defeated Lappeenranta 7-2.

Names of the goal scorers were not available. It was reported Tim Mader was in goal for the Trenton squad.

The Trenton team is scheduled for games in Helsinki, Tampere, Jyvaskyea and Vaasa before returning to Canada, January 5.

1300 Fans See Cats Tame Petes

By MIKE BRADSHAW
Sports Staff

The Belleville Bobcats assured over 1300 fans that they were serious about extending their modest winning streak as they defeated the visiting Peterborough Petes 6-3 in Metro Junior B action at the Memorial Arena, last night.

Belleville displayed an impressive degree of team work in the victory, proving that the Cat cohesion was back to stay.

The Lions stated out on the ice in the first period expecting to intimidate the locals into making mistakes, but John Sergeant, Kevin Joudwa and Rob Foster quickly dispelled any dictatorial notions the Lions might have had, with aggressive forechecking that included some intimidating of their own.

"We didn't play that well in the first period," said Cats' coach, Moe Hunter. "The boys weren't skating up to par and the passes weren't clicking."

The locals could be excused for their lack of scoring in the opening 20 minutes, which saw them on the short end of a 2-1 score. Also on the short end of the stick was Peterborough goalie Randy Bryer who had the Peterborough goals in the first.

Belleville got on the scoreboard with just one second remaining in the opening period as Andy Ricketts fired his first of the night.

From that point on, record practices or no, the Bobcats performed as precisely, as possible.

Their offensive was balanced, their passing exact and their defence almost without a task. In the last two periods, the Lions only managed 11 shots at Belleville goalie, Bob Moore, all of which were stopped.

The greatest asset to the locals' attack, however, was their passing. Belleville controlled the game for nearly 30 of the final 40 minutes, constantly passing the puck but never forcing their plays, making the Lions play a Peterborough defender.

Sergeant and Brian Cousins tied the score at 2-2 and Ricketts tallied what proved to be the winner with 14 minutes remaining in the middle period.

On the winner, Ricketts took a pass from Tim Yohn, skated over the Peterborough blue line and around two Lions' players before being sent flying through the air by a third Peterborough Defender.

As the Bobcat player was falling to the ice, he fired a shot into the upper left hand corner of the net for the fourth Belleville Marker. The goal itself was reminiscent of Paul Henderson's series winner during the Canada-Russia hockey games. Second effort such as that says the Juniors are serious about winning.

A pair of goals were potted in the final period, Mike Watt and Jim Richardson finished the scoring off for the Cats, with both goals coming on excellent pass plays.

All-in-all, 20 penalties were handed out, 11 to Peterborough, while the Bobcats bellevile Bobcat Kevin Joudwa aggressively attacked from the rear. Joudwa led a strung forechecking onslaught in last night's Metro Junior B game between the two teams at the Memorial Arena. The Cats won, 6-3.

outshot the visitors 45-23.

Tomorrow night, Belleville has a chance to move back into the league's top spot should they defeat Markham Royals in their 8 o'clock encounter at the Memorial Arena.

Schoolboy Curling Honors for Quinte

The Ontario School Boy Curling Championships completed playoffs in the Belleville Division as Kingston, Trenton, Bayside, Picton, Brighton, Napanee and the host city went to the rinks Thursday and Friday with Quinte Secondary School taking the honors.

The double-round elimination event, at the Quinte Curling Club, was not an easy victory for the Belleville school.

Though they went undefeated in four matches, Quinte was called upon to twice beat the Brighton representative, East Northumberland Secondary School.

Brighton won their first two matches, but when confronted with the Belleville rink went down to defeat. The East Northumberland entry then dropped into the second section of the competition, where they upset Loyalist Secondary, of Kingston, and moved back into the final round of play in the two-day event.

The Quinte rink, consisting of Steve Bennett-skip, Barry Kay-third, Dave Hall-second, and Peter Tummond-lead, managed to hang on to their undefeated record despite the second chance Brighton got.

Belleville representative will now compete in the Kawartha Division championship in late January at the Brighton Curling Club and pending victory in that competition will enter the Ontario Championships in Brampton.

Peewee Teams Make Finals

TRENTON — There's one thing about goal averages — and Danny Rounsefell is as aware of it as Belleville pitcher when it placed both its teams in the finals of the Trenton Silver Puck Tournament's peewee action here Friday.

Thursday, Belleville Towers Food City team members didn't quite qualify when goals for and against were tabulated to decide the finalists from among these teams with identical won-lost records of 3-1.

Yesterday, Belleville peewee teams put the shoe on the other foot.

Dixie Lee minors and the Rollins Construction majors from Belleville will meet Kingston Township squads in tournament finals at the Community Gardens here Sunday.

The Belleville minor peewees didn't score many goals (six) while compiling a record of two wins and a tie Friday but their goalies were just great in holding the opposition to four goals in three games.

Kingston and Ajax duplicated Dixie Lee's won-lost record and the Township's 13 goals for, five against as opposed to the Ajax record of 6-6, put the Kingston skaters in the final with Belleville.

Rollins took the same route to the major section. Tied with Trenton Raiders and Kingston Township with a mark of 2-1 in tournament play, Rollins showed its superiority when it came to the tabulation of goals scored and allowed.

The Belleville majors showed the way, with 13 goals on the plus side and only two against. Kingston was next with a mark of 11-4. Trenton was 5-8, and out.

After an opening game 4-3 win over Trenton Loyalist Coach Lines yesterday, Dixie Lee was shaded 2-1 by Ajax in its second start. But the Belleville minors bounced back on Hughie Northey's shout-out goal-tending and a solid team effort to nip Kingston Township 1-0 in Game 3.

Tim Jaques supplied the only goal Dixie Lee needed, teaming up with Joe LaBarge and Danny Rounsefell, with fewer than six minutes remaining in regulation time.

It was Danny Haslewood's turn to shine between the pipes for Dixie Lee in the exciting 2-1 loss to Ajax. The winners' Alan Duncan got the nod in the tight goaltenders' duel.

Tony Parks took care of Belleville's goal on an unassisted effort. Glen Upton and Craig Reid supplied the Ajax counters.

Other games in the minor division produced the following results: Kingston 5, Ajax 1; Kingston 7, Trenton 3; Ajax 5, Trenton 2.

Donny Cook and Hobby Hedge made it a complete day for Belleville goalie combinations, supplying solid efforts for Rollins in posting shutouts in the team advanced to the major final.

Cook was in goal for an opening game 2-1 loss to Trenton; Hedge faced Lindsay in a 6-1 Rollins win and Cook returned to the nets for the club's 6-2 defeat of Kingston in the tourney's 13th and final peewee game of the day.

Mark Crawford was the lone Belleville marksman in the loss to Trenton. Scoring for the winners was handled by Brad Hutton and Curtis Smith.

Meagher sparked the win over Kingston with three goals. Steve Murphy, Steve Molina and Brocksema had the others. Crawford drew three assists.

In the other games, it was Kingston 6, Lindsay 3; Kingston 5, Trenton 0; Trenton 4, Lindsay 3.

Sunday's peewee finals are scheduled for 5:30 p.m. (major) and 6:30 (minor).

It's Bantams Today

TRENTON — The bantam section of the Silver Puck Tournament being staged here this week got off to an earlier start than was planned when Peterborough shaded Trenton Kiwanis 2-1 in overtime Friday night. Trenton nursed a 1-0 lead into the final three minutes of regulation time in the minor bantam contest but couldn't make the lead stand up.

Bantam teams were not scheduled for play until today but tournament officials arranged for last night's game when Peterborough reported a previous commitment with the Ontario Minor Hockey Association would make it impossible for the squad to play its three tournament games Saturday.

Belleville is represented in the bantam division by the Kinsmen majors and Mclaney-Maines minors.

Belleville's minor entry plays again at 3 p.m. against Peterborough and meets Kingston Township at 6 p.m.

Kinsmen majors got their first taste of tourney action at 11:30 this morning with Trenton supplying the opposition.

Kinsmen make their second start at 5:30 p.m. against Peterborough and face Kingston Township at 8:30.

He's Coming Through

Referee Mike Lawrence appears set to jump for the safety of the seating area at Trenton Community Gardens as Belleville Rollins Construction team captain Shawn Mulrooney speeds down the wing during Friday's Silver Puck Tournament peewee action. Rollins qualified for the major finals and Belleville Dixie Lee made it to the minor section championship game on the strength of solid efforts Friday.

Marshall Agrees To Terms

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Relief pitcher Mike Marshall, acquired from Montreal Expos in a trade for centre fielder Willie Davis, agreed to contract terms Friday with Los Angeles Dodgers.

Marshall, 30, who pitched in a record 91 games for Montreal in the 1973 National League baseball season, flew to Los Angeles to discuss terms which were not announced.

He did not sign a contract, deciding to study the document first, but he said, "I'm 98.9-percent sure I will be playing next year with the Dodgers. If the season started today, I'd be pitching."

Marshall earlier had said he was undecided whether to report or continue with a teaching career. He is working on a doctorate at Michigan State University and teaches during the off-season.

He led the National League in games with 92 last season and compiled a 14-07 record with an earned-run average of 2.68. In pitching 179 innings.

He had a hand in 48 of Montreal's 79 victories and 15 of the voting for the Cy Young Award he finished second to New York Mets' Tom Seaver.

Anderson Turned Down Offer from As

CINCINNATI (AP) — Sparky Anderson, manager of Cincinnati Reds, says he turned down an offer by Oakland As owner Charles Finley because "I owe the Reds so much."

Anderson said Finley approached him when the World Series ended.

"I remember the call because I thought it was a joke. I figured just two days after the Series I'd be up on the golf course with my neighbors joking, but it was him," Anderson said Thursday in a telephone interview from his California home.

The offer came after As manager Dick Williams indicated he was leaving Oakland. Finley has since knocked Williams' signing with New York Yankees while still under contract with the As.

American League President Joe Cronin ruled in Finley's favor.

Goalie Moore Gets Revenge

BY THE CANADI NEWSMEN

Lou Moore didn't waste any time seeking revenge on the club that released him of his goaltending duties early in the current Ontario Hockey Association Major-Junior A season.

Friday afternoon, Moore signed with Sault Ste. Marie Greyhounds after playing most of this season with Hastings Mohawks of the Southern Ontario Junior Hockey League.

Friday night, Oshawa Generals, the team responsible for Moore's release, just happened to be available for instant revenge.

He stopped 39 shots and held Oshawa scoreless until the final six minutes to help his new team beat the Generals 6-1 before 2,786 fans in Sault Ste. Marie.

Brian Kilrea is spoiled Moore's shutout bid.

The Greyhounds outshot Oshawa 41-40.

In other league games Friday, Ottawa 67s beat St. Catharines Black Hawks 7-3, Hamilton Red Wings and Sudbury Wolves played to a 4-4 tie, London Knights edged Toronto Marlboros 4-3 and Kingston Canadiens beat Kitchener Rangers 4-3.

67s 7 Black Hawks 3

Dave Steffen and Derek Smith each scored two goals to lead Ottawa to victory.

Steffen's second two goals came 5:07 of the final period.

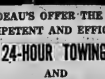
The Kings, last in the North with 19 points, had 31 shots on goalie Lyle Carter.

Attendance was 4,023 in New Haven.

Providence 6 Baltimore 1

Middleton, the No. 1 choice of the New York Rangers of the National Hockey League in last summer's amateur draft, scored both his goals in the first period.

The Reds held a 3-0 lead after the first 20 minutes, enabling them to pick up their 19th win in 37 games.



Pierre Lagacienc, Doug Hobbs, Jerry Butler and Norm Gerol Hockey League in last Dupont scored the other Providence goals before 3,186 home town fans.

Bob Cook spoiled Curt Ridley's shutout when he scored at 9:39 of the third period.

Tonights schedule has Rhbmond at Baltimore, Rochester at Cincinnati, Jacksonville at Hershey and Boston at Virginia.

Sunday's schedule has Boston at Jacksonville, New Haven at Hershey, Providence at Rochester and Virginia at Springfield.

They'll Be Guiding Teams Sunday

Minnesota Viking quarterback Fran Tarkenton (left) and Dallas Cowboys' quarterback Roger Staubach, shown in recent games, will be facing each other in Dallas, Sunday. The game will decide who will represent the National Football Conference against the best in the American Football Conference, in the Super Bowl, January 13 in Houston.

Grant Looks for High Scoring Game

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Minnesota coach Bud Grant says he doesn't "look for defences to dominate the game" when his Vikings meet Dallas Cowboys Sunday for the right to represent the National Football Conference in Super Bowl VIII.

There could be a "considerable amount of scoring," Grant said, pointing because of both quarterbacks Fran Tarkenton of the Vikings and the Cowboys' Roger Staubach. Both can confuse linemen with their scrambling tactics.

The two perennial NFC powers have not met since 1971 when Dallas took a 20-12 NFC Divisional playoff victory. The Cowboys are favored by many oddsmakers to repeat Sunday — but by a narrower margin despite the absence of injured running back Calvin Hill.

The Vikings have been practicing at Tulsa's Skelly Stadium to prepare for the meeting on Texas Stadium's artificial surface, and Grant was eager to get his team on the playing site today. The Vikings' home stadium has a grass surface.

"We won't have any trouble with the footing and should adjust to the surroundings easily," said Tarkenton, who has played in the stadium numerous times when he was with the New York Giants.

Drew Pearson will start at flanker and is expected to help offset a Cowboys' defence weakened by the loss of Hill.

"Drew has established himself as a top receiver," said Dallas Coach Tom Landry.

"Staubach feels he can hit him at any time, the same way he felt about Otto Stowe before he got hurt.

The Vikings still are concerned over the health of linebacker Roy Winston, who sustained a back injury in last week's 27-20 playoff victory over Washington.

Winston missed part of Thursday's practice and Grant said he is "questionable for the game. His back gets stiff."

In Miami, Mercury Morris says Miami Dolphins owe a debt of gratitude to Oakland, a debt he hopes can be paid off with a Miami Victory over the Raiders in Sunday's American Football Conference title game here.

"We're kind of grateful to them," said Morris of the Raiders' 12-7 victory over the Dolphins in the second game of the season. "It shook us back to life."

The Dolphins had won 18 straight games, 16 in regular season, before the loss to Oakland.

Defensive tackle Manny Fernandez, who has missed the last two games with a torn hamstring muscle and may not start against the Raiders, said, "we don't need revenge as an incentive or motive for winning this one. The game itself is enough to get anybody up."

A stake for the Dolphins is a chance at a third straight visit to the Super Bowl, a second straight championship and almost $25,000 in playoff money.

Oakland plays its home games on grass, while the Dolphins play on artificial turf. Miami takes a record of 22 straight home victories into the game.

Steve Rexe Sparkles for Kings

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Goalie Steve Rexe of Springfield Kings and right winger Rick Middleton of Providence Reds featured in American Hockey League action Friday night.

Rexe stopped 43 shots—including 25 in the first period and 23 in the second—to help the Kings tie New Haven Nighthawks 2-2.

Middleton, former member of Oshawa Generals in the Ontario Hockey Association Major Junior A series, scored two goals to lead the Reds to a 6-1 triumph over Baltimore Clippers.

The tie reduced New Haven's lead in the North Division to five points over Providence. Nova Scotia Voyageurs are third with 38 points, three behind the Reds.

Hershey Bears lead the South Division with 44 points, four more than Cincinnati Swords. Baltimore is third with 37 points.

Springfield 2 New Haven 2

The Kings held a 2-0 lead in the first period on goals by Norm Dube and Gordon Smith. Terry Holbrook reduced the deficit at 18:26 of the first period after taking a pass from Bill Plager.

New Haven tied the score when Steve West beat Rexe at 5:07 of the final period.

Hawks Humble Sagueneens

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

The surprising thing about Saturday night's Quebec Major Junior A Hockey League game in Sorel was the fact Chicoutimi Sagueneens got two goals.

The Sagueneens managed those two goals en only 19 shots while Sorel Black Hawks bombarded the Chicoutimi net with 62 shots—47 of them in the final period—as they humiliated the Sagueneens 10-2.

In other action, Montreal Juniors thrashed Laval Nationals 9-1, Shawinigan Dynamos came from behind to edge Quebec Remparts 6-5, Drummondville Rangers nipped Sherbrooke Beavers 3-2 and Hull Festivals Whitewashed Trois-Rivieres Draveurs 5-0.

Sorel Black Hawks, who hammered Chicoutimi 13-2 in Chicoutimi last Sunday, jumped to a 6-1 lead in the first period and led 12-2 going into the third. While the Hawks were pepperring the Sagueneens' goal, Chicoutimi managed 19 shots, three in the final 20 minutes.

Friday night was the second consecutive night that the Hawks had pumped 18 goals past opposition goaltenders. Thursday they hammered Laval 18-6.

Serge Gamelin, Michel Bergeron and Pierre Lacroix led the Hawks against Chicoutimi with three goals each while Denis Deslel, Robert Ritchie and Jacques Cossette got two each.

Pierre Mondou, Pierre Boyer and Yves Plouffe added single goals for Sorel with Yves Fortin and Yvon Verreault scoring for Chicoutimi.

Normand Lupien, Allan Pilon and Denis Daigle each scored twice as Montreal smashed Laval. Blair Mackasey, Jean-Luc Phaneuf, Bernard Rochefort and Martin Trevisani scored the other Montreal goals.

With Terry Paluso scoring for the Nationals with 21 seconds remaining in the third period.

A goal by Guil Leclerc at 8:13 of the third period capped a three-goal rally that gave Shawinigan its win over Quebec.

Bernard Cossette, Claude Arvisais and Daniel Lessard got the other goals for the Dynamos, who trailed 3-1 in the second period.

James Bateman, Daniel Beaulieu and Richard Nantais scored for the Remparts, who suffered their fourth consecutive loss and dropped four points behind Sorel in the battle for first place in the league's East Division.

Cambridge Hornets Nip Barrie

BARRIE, Ont. (CP) — Cambridge Hornets edged Barrie Flyers 3-2 in overtime Friday in Ontario Hockey Association Senior A play before 1,200 fans.

It was the only scheduled league game.

Barrie replied with goals from Dave Nicholishen and Bob Baird.

The Flyers outshot Cambridge 36-25.

Double Labels Trouble

TORONTO (CP) — Leslie Mykiawcez, acting manager of a Shoppers Drug Mart store, in response to criticism of double labelling at the store, said Thursday that such acts are only isolated incidents.

Mrs. Mykiawcez was responding to criticism by Toronto resident Judy Westzeil, who said she bought a two-roll package of toilet tissue for 41¢ as a result.

Mrs. Westzeil said that when she removed the sticker marked "new everyday low price," she found another sticker marked 37 cents.

Mrs. Mykiawcez and Philip Goldman, president of the Shoppers Drug Mart group, blamed a stock boy for the labelling and said he would be dismissed for the incident.

Hunt to Be Released

Watergate Appealed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two principal figures in the Watergate break-in, Howard Hunt and Bernard Barker, will be released from prison next week to await the outcome of their appeals.

The U.S. Court of Appeals ordered their release Friday and said it was withholding a decision in the case of three other Watergate conspirators pending the outcome of a petition hearing Jan. 7.

"I've been waiting a year and the next few days will seem so very long," Barker's wife, Clara, said of her home in Miami, Fla.

In another action, the appeals court ordered Judge John Sirica to rehear a case in which he refused to back the Senate Watergate committee's subpoenas for five White House tapes and other documents.

Sirica said he lacked jurisdiction and the Congress responded by voting him dual authority. The measure went into law without President Nixon's signature. The appeals court demanded the case to the district judge in light of the new law.

In San Clemente, Calif., meanwhile, there were indications that Nixon has decided to limit future "Operation Candor" disclosures.

Deputy Press Secretary Gerald Warren confirmed Friday that Nixon would not be releasing public dealing with Nixon's role in the ITT antitrust case and political contributions by milk producers. But he refused to repeat an earlier pledge that there would be disclosures concerning the Watergate cover-up and the work of Nixon's special investigations unit known as the plumbers.

A Warren acknowledged that Nixon at one point decided to release summaries of at least seven taped conversations relating to Watergate and the cover-up.

However, he said the White House now is "re-evaluating the question" because of the Senate Watergate committee's subpoenas for what he termed nine private moments of tapes and documents and by the playing at a recent Washington cocktail party of part of a tape provided by the White House for use in a court case.

Different people might draw different meanings from the content of the tapes, and any piecemeal disclosure "could lead to confusion in the mind of the American public and further distortion of the facts of the case," he said.

The five Watergate burglars have appealed on grounds that Sirica erred in denying their applications to withdraw pleas of guilty to charges of conspiracy, burglary and wiretapping.

Sirica had sentenced the five men, along with James McCord, Nov. 8. Hunt, a 56-year-old former CIA agent, received a minimum 1½ years and a $10,000 fine. Barker, recruited by Hunt for the Democratic party headquarters break-in, was sentenced to a minimum 18 months.

In mid-September, as their final sentencing day approach, the five filed motions to withdraw their guilty pleas. Hunt asked dismissal of all charges and the four others asked a new trial, with a jury.

Sirica denied the motions and imposed sentences.

In his appeal, Hunt said the government had instigated the crime, that he only did what he was told and therefore was not liable for criminal prosecution. His lawyer said that evidence brought out in the Senate hearings and elsewhere during the summer showed that he had only an instrument of high governmental officials.

A similar claim was made for the Miami men that they lacked criminal intent.

McCord and Gordon Liddy, tried and convicted by a jury, have also appealed on different grounds.

Change Cause

TORONTO (CP) — A Toronto man who was reported to have been hacked to death early Friday actually died of asphyxiation, Metropolitan Toronto police said.

A police spokesman said Agustin Romero, 63, was found dead in the basement of a Toronto home. He had some cuts on his throat.

Earlier reports of the use of a machete in the deaths were groundless, police said.

Global TV Counts Down to January 6

TORONTO (CP) — Global Television, programming at a $1 million-a-month clip, has fingers firmly crossed as 1973 rushes up.

Two things important to it around the million worth of investment—Canada's newest network—will occur on that date:

Global launches itself upon Ontario viewers—with hopes of eventually reaching out across Canada.

And the United States goes on daylight time, a move that has a significant effect on Canadian broadcasting, tied as it is to many U.S shows that will jump into new time slots.

For a new network, scrounging for a competitive footing against two established ones, the climactic takes on a cliffhanger aspect as the Ontario government-owned station gets under whether to follow the U.S.

With an eye on this uncertain clock, Global has been working on two sets of program schedules—and one provides more than enough complications. The one used will depend on how Ontario goes.

"In any event, Global president Al Bruner says, "We'll program to the living and sleeping habits of Ontario as they are when we operate."

"All our programming is in place for our start on Jan. 6 in an interview. "It's all there and in better shape than I ever dreamed possible."

Bagsey Mr. Bruner, a 50-year-old career singer who started in radio with a one-horse station 18 years ago in his native Saskatchewan, has come up with a fistful of ideas and personalities for the dream he has been working to realize for the last seven years.

Instead of a string of TV stations, he has a single $5 million "Global Centre" here (plus a capital news office in Ottawa) and a set of automated transmitters draped across the east, west and "flanking" provinces from Ottawa to the Windsor corridor, which will within reach of 7.3 million on-air viewers and the signal will reach almost all the 500, 000 cable TV sets in Ontario.

Global's organization is that most of the broadcasting will be done in prime time, starting at 5 p.m. and running until 11.30 p.m. or later. The shortened hours make for better-than-average quality, Mr. Bruner says.

However, he notes that at the outset Global will be showing 16 hours in local studio programs per week than it provided the Canadian Radio-Television Commission when it obtained its licence in 1972.

To fill out the hours, Global has enticed some top talent from the existing network in a historical dramatization program called "Witness to Confederation" and other figures of the ages are "interviewed."

Watson also directs a five-a-week show in afternoon soap opera time named This Program Is About Sex and described in the news lights as frank but non-sensational, family-oriented, humorous, entertaining and informative, not to mention both responsible and relevant to the immediate society.

Vancouver's Dennis Braden, who made it to the top of the British ratings with an on-camera-cum-commentary show on the BBC, has transferred the format to Global for a series of 39 weekly one-hour programs. Braden and's crew of interviewers will also do consumer problems with a fight team on the air, while a straight consumer-guidance show called Beware also will run once a week.

Pierre Berton conducts two weekly programs: One is The Great Debate, in which prominent antagonists argue controversial issues. He also takes of Canada's past in My Country.

Stanley Burke, a former top CBC new correspondent and newscaster who has been teaching in Vancouver, returns to a weekly newscast in the fall.

Global has invested heavily in money, talent and ideas for its new operation and has underlined its stake in the budding news boss Bill Cunningham—a former boss of the CTV news and company vice-president.

Peter Trueman, 38, a former head of CBC national TV's daily news and documentary programs, will be one of two anchor men on the evening news. Working with him will be joined from Ottawa by Fraser Kelly, 38, who was the Ottawa editor of Toronto Star. They also are among a group of news-and-public-affairs who will contribute to weekly background documentaries under the title of Global News Journal.

At half-dozen other correspondents will be based in Toronto but prepared to head afield for major stories. In what Global calls its "action" sports department, Lou Sleeth will also will have about 40 part-time contributors scattered through the province to provide tips on big breaks or on-the-spot coverage.

Sports will be highlighted by home games of Toronto Toros of the World Hockey Association. Global also will broadcast on Tuesday, Jan. 8, the final game of a series among European and Canadian hockey teams.

Among the new faces, Ben Wicks, an acerbic Toronto cartoonist whose work is syndicated in 300 newspapers around the world, will be launched on a weekly interview show also involving people in the cartoonist's life. He travelled 100 miles and filed 13 short views in advance of opening.

Another new face will be a regular feature, Global has bought screening rights on Scotsman-cum-comedian who is financing English dubbing of Fred Quimby's cartoon films.

A major showpiece is a five-a-week, 90-minute variety of entertainment by Bill Gaskey Goss and described as a free-wheeling mix of music, comedy, guest stars and gags. Several established Canadian and American stars have been signed and are supplemented by an impressive list of international names.

Pre-production showings of Everything Goes have resulted in sales of the show to stations in Philadelphia, Houston, Denver, San Diego and Cincinnati. Mr. Bruner said between 35 and 40 sales in the U.S are expected. Types of other programs also have been sold to the other TV stations in various Canadian cities.

Many of Global-produced shows can be a vital item in the company profit-and-loss account. While Mr. Bruner said its original estimate of $1 million in start-up TV operation is going. Mr Bruner said $6 per cent of the program cost will be Canadian, for Global's own productions plus the output of several independents, some of whom the firm is staking to help develop this industry in Canada.

As is customary with a start-up TV operation, Global expects to be in the red for some time Mr Bruner said its original estimate of up to 30 months for getting out of the colours "still seems right."

"Our commercial sales are in pretty good shape," he said. "We seem to be getting the percentage of advertising budgets we'd figure on."

But you never know for sure with a new enterprise. We're not unaware of the state of the U.S. economy, but we're naturally very concerned about that. Obviously, it's an uncertain time."

In the final analysis," he added, "it will be the viewers who decide whether what we're doing is worthwhile."

French Countryman Is Umbrella King

PARIS (Reuter) — The British, with their rainy climate and bowler-hatted regalia, are usually regarded as the lords of the umbrella.

But a one-time Latin teacher from the rural heart of France can claim the title of world's umbrella King.

The British are his biggest clients.

Marcel Sauvagnat, 53, makes and sells more umbrellas from his factory in Aurillac, a backwater town in the central cheese-making region of Cantal, than any other producer in the world.

Sales stand at 2.2 million umbrellas a year in all varieties—big, small, black, multi-colored, plastic, conservative. They go to 30 countries in all five continents netting annual revenues equivalent to $10 million.

How did a Frenchman corner the largest share of a specialized market in which his fellow-countrymen rank as only moderate consumers?

"Common sense, whisperer said luck," says Sauvagnat, "and fortunately it rains here one day in four."

His father, wanting something to occupy him in retirement, bought up a small family umbrella business employing eight workers in 1933. Marcel plunged into his Latin and Greek primers and wanted nothing to do with the firm.

But his father fell gravely ill shortly after the second World War and the scholar was forced out of teaching into business.

"My first inclination was to sell up," he recalls. "But I couldn't find a buyer."

So Marcel, at the age of 25, began to think how he could make a go of the business. His business training to fall back on, intuition told him he must make exports his top priority. First he scouted Europe, then, with confidence, he ventured into Africa and America.

He reached his first big milestone in 1955 when he veered away from the traditional black cotton and made colored nylon his stock-in-trade.

Supplies began to dry up, so he journeyed to Tokyo in 1960, and after long negotiations, signed a contract assuring him of enough nylon to shield the world from rain.

Now Sauvagnat has a large, modern factory employing more than 700 workers.

The Japanese and the Germans are his chief competitors.

The umbrella king's greatest worry is how to spread their bright wings in the wintry streets of Moscow and other Soviet cities. The move into Russia marks his biggest business coup to date, a $2 million contract to build an umbrella factory in Moscow.

Despite gadgetry on new trends is one of Sauvagnat's favorite guidelines. "Umbrellas only sell at the whims of fashion and weather, so fashion must not be a big disaster," he says.

Right now, at the moment his staff confide, is the telescopic model—the small but sturdy umbrella that collapses and fits into the pocket.

West opened the fog of chub to his partner's ace. Then he took the eight of chubs back. The Professor who was declarer turned to the student who was watching him and remarked, "This may be one of the toughest hands of the year to play."

Then he discard his ten of hearts. West was in with the queen of clubs and for want of anything better to do led a third club.

The Professor discarded his jack of hearts on dummy's 10 of clubs and proceeded to cash dummy's nine and queen of trumps. If both opponents had followed he would have played the ace of hearts, discarded his queen of hearts on the jack of clubs and conceded a trick to the ace of diamonds but West showed out on the second trump.

The professor promptly led dummy's king of diamonds. East thought the hand was played low whereupon the Professor led a low diamond. East ducked again and declarer's last hand was a trick. A third diamond knocked out East's ace and there was no way to keep the Professor from discarding his queen of hearts on the last diamond.

As the Professor said at the start, it was a tough hand. Just try and find any simple way to bring home 10 tricks against good defense.

BELEM, Brazil (AP) — Children at the Santa Catarina Roscan Catholic school here are too young to remember Marilyn Monroe, but they see her name every morning at Mass.

The silver chalice, used by the priest, is the Monroe gift engraved "In Memory of Marilyn Monroe."

The chalice was brought here in 1964 by a visiting American priest from Church where the actress was baptized a Roman Catholic and left it there, but other than that they know nothing of its origin.

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) — Actor David Janssen, 43, was free on contempt of court charges Friday after paying his former wife $35,625 in back alimony.

Judge Richard Wells of Superior Court held Janssen in contempt but let after he had failed to make payments since last February.

The judge also reduced payments from $3,750 to $2,200 a month and said all payments should stop Dec. 31, 1978.

The Janssens were married in 1960 and divorced in 1970. They had no children. He starred in the television series The Fugitive.

Your Horoscope

SUNDAY, DEC. 30
By BERNICE REDE OSOL

Aries (March 21-April 19) You will need time to yourself today so you can ponder your thoughts, relax and enjoy uninterrupted solitude.

Taurus (April 20-May 20) Select the company of friends who aren't into fancy today. Highstrung individuals will make you feel uncomfortable. Ick.

Gemini (May 21-June 20) Be helpful toward any who seek you out at this time. You'll gain their gratitude and respect by being compassionate.

Cancer (June 21-July 22) Sooooooo sound, philosophic reasoning will have a favorable influence upon your thinking. Later you'll use these ideas.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 23) A kindness you have done for another will be repaid. This person will do something for you at his own expense.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) This can be a most enjoyable day if you and your mate can get off alone where you can enjoy each other's company.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) Your greatest satisfaction will come from something you'll do for another, knowing this person truly deserves your help.

Scorpio (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You're exceptionally creative today. You'll have to find something to keep mind and hands busy, or else you'll be bored.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Your moods will be greatly influenced by those around you. A pessimist could get you down in the dumps.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Try not to be too sensitive regarding the comments of others. You're likely to read unintended meanings into things.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You're going to be a trifle lackadaisical about possessions today and not take care of them properly. Later you'll wonder why they didn't last.

Pisces (Feb. 20-March 20) Don't let others exert too strong a negative influence on the course you've set. You must continue as you deem best.

Monday, Dec. 31
By BERNICE REDE OSOL

Aries (March 21-April 19) It's important you finish now a project you've left dangling. Once it's out of the way your progress will accelerate greatly.

Taurus (April 20-May 20) A relationship of delicate value will end shortly with no hard feelings on either side. It's the best move for both of you.

Gemini (May 21-June 20) You've been the spotlight regarding a matter that reflected poorly on your image. Relax. Conditions are changing for the better.

Cancer (June 21-July 22) You won't be most active till later in the day. When you start to catch up, don't be hyperambitious. You'll make mistakes.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 23) You'll be secretive today regarding a matter you've involved in. Later, you'll realize it's not worth hiding.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) A shift in conditions will spare you from making a decision you've felt uncomfortable about. Time is on your side—wait it out.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) Some of your work will be left undone today. You won't feel up to putting on the effort required. Tend to important tasks.

Scorpio (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) If you're planning some form of entertainment, schedule things so you can have some fun yourself and not wind up doing all the work.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) What may start out as a routine outing will begin to perk up. By evening, you'll be in full swing.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) It looks like things will get rather active around your house this evening. Be prepared for some drop-ins, just in case.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Mundane affairs will hold small interest for you today. Restlessness will drive you to seek more exciting situations.

Pisces (Feb. 20-March 20) Be on your toes. Something is coming up that will be to your material advantage. If handled poorly it could cost you money instead.

Excess Vitamin A Causes Many Ills

Dear Dr.,Thesiscee: I read your column about vitamin A.

I was having headaches that were unbearable. The doctors of my feet peeled. Skin rolled off my face when I applied cleansing lotion. Sometimes I was dizzy, had spots before my eyes, nothing to say ears and also a bad body odor.

After I read your column I stopped eating anything high in vitamin A. The headaches stopped, and the skin peeling, and in fact everything except the spots before my eyes.

I asked a doctor about it and he didn't say anything except to put me on vitamin A tablets. Is the proper treatment for the vitamin A syndrome just avoidance of this vitamin or is there more to it?—R.M.

You don't mention it, but I gather that you have been taking vitamin A in large quantities in vitamin tablets.

Vitamin A, poisoning occurs often enough so the College of Physicians had a discussion on it at a recent meeting. Prolonged use of this vitamin in amounts of 50,000 units a day or more can cause a variety of symptoms—some of those you experienced, some you may not have. Blood calcium can be elevated, and there can be pain from changes in bone structure. Such changes can be shown up on x-ray. Liver function also can be impaired.

All these possibilities, of course, are why the Food and Drug Administration is clamping down on preparations containing large doses of vitamin A, except on prescription.

Treatment of this poisoning is to stop taking vitamin A in large doses, and the situation gradually corrects itself. That's very why your doctor didn't do anything except tell you to take vitamin mixtures that did not contain any A.

From here on, I would not be inclined to worry about vitamin A in your food—yellow vegetables, milk, butter, fats. The amounts in such foods, while ample for your needs, are not concentrated enough to cause vitamin accumulation.

One thing that should be kept in mind: Children are more readily affected by excess vitamin A than adults are. Sometimes for unexplained.

As to the spots before your eyes—they may not have anything to do with the vitamin A. I'd discuss this with an eye specialist.

Dear Dr. Thesiscee: Can a psychiatrist determine by reading an individual's handwritten personality traits? Is the individual is mentally or emotionally disturbed? I have always considered that handwriting analysis alone cannot be used for this purpose.—F.R.B

You're right—but what the person says in the letters may indicate the answer with considerable validity. Just as what a person says very often can be a significant part of psychiatric diagnosis.

Dear Dr. Thesiscee: My daughter has type O blood. She was told that she could never have a healthy child. Is this true?—Mrs. A.P.

Either there is more to the story than having type O blood, or her informant was talking through his (or her) hat. Type O is the most common of all the blood types, so obviously it is not true that having that type prevents having healthy children.

Dear Dr. Thesiscee: If you were treating a patient with severe arthritis, would you prescribe hot towels, heating pad, hot water bottle, or cold treatments like ice pack, cold wet towels or cold water bottle?—P.H.

I'd prescribe heat in any form but would not prescribe cold of any kind.

New Year greetings

President, Armin Quickert, P.Eng.

Dear Friends and Customers:

We are all too well aware of the world-wide shortage of energy. Coupled with this, we have also exoerienced shortages of petroleum related products such as polyethylene film. I have been assured by our suppliers that they can meet our needs with regard to our 3 quart bag package.

A milk shortage has never occurred in this country because of the untiring efforts of our milk producers who make it possible for Reids-Riverside Dairy to provide you with Farm Fresh Dairy products now and in the future. I am sure that you will agree with me that we are indebted to our milk producers for a steady supply of milk.

Reid-Riverside Dairy is the only dairy plant in the Quinte District and one of a handful of Canadian owned dairies in Ontario.

I WISH YOU ALL A HAPPY AND PROSPEROUS NEW YEAR

Israel Holds Election

Voting Will Decide Peace Table Stance

TEL AVIV — (CP) — With the armed forces on a special alert, Israelis voted today in the most crucial election in the 25-year history of the Jewish state.

TEL AVIV (CP) — With the armed forces on a special alert, Israelis voted today in the most crucial election in the 25-year history of the Jewish state.

After being in power since the founding of the modern Jewish state, the Labor party is threatened by a right-wing coalition called Likud (Unity) in today's voting for the Knesset (parliament).

Whether Premier Golda Meir's Labor coalition will be able to hang on to power is not expected to be known for several days. First results in the election are not expected until Tuesday morning.

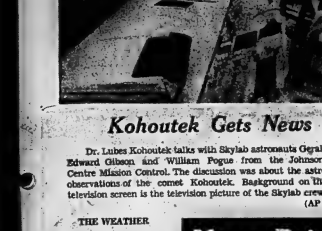
Israeli setbacks during the early days of the October war with the Arabs has overshadowed domestic issues in the election campaign. Another major issue is how much of the Arab territory Israel captured in the 1967 war will be relinquished at the Geneva peace negotiations.

The armed forces were on full alert against any possible flareup of violence along the ceasefire lines in Suez in the south and Syria in the north. Police throughout the country also were on standby to guard against internal incidents.

Four Israeli soldiers were wounded by light weapons fire on the Suez canal front Sunday, an army spokesman said.

Mrs. Meir's Labor party and its allies in the Marxist Rapam faction have promised to be "generous" in returning occupied territory. Likud campaigned on a slogan of "Keeping the Land of Israel Whole," indicating it would make few territorial concessions.

The Labor coalition say its stand could bring peace while the Likud's would create more war. The right-wingers say return of the occupied territories would make Israel vulnerable to attack.



The election finds the Israeli voter more dissatisfied with Labor than at any time since 1948. Because of the unpreparedness at the outset of the war and the heavy losses in men and equipment, many people feel that 75-year-old Mrs. Meir and her colleagues are too old and their reflexes too slow to mount an adequate guard against future Arab attacks.

Likud, headed by the pro-independence underground leader Menachem Begin, presents a younger, more dynamic leadership. But many Israelis find Begin too hawkish.

Mrs. Meir and most of the other big guns of the cabinet — Defence Minister Moshe Dayan, Foreign Minister Abba Eban, Deputy Premier Yigal Allon — have repeatedly acknowledged the errors," notably in Israel's costly setbacks at the start of the October war.

But they contend they have the experience needed to negotiate from the current cease-fire, broken daily by exchanges of fire along the Suez canal that add steadily to the country's casualty lists.

"Don't bring the darkness down upon us by voting for Likud," Eban warned this weekend.

Davis Says Ontario Will Grow

TORONTO (CP) — Premier William Davis said today in his New Year's message he is optimistic about Ontario's prospects for 1974.

"According to the best information we can look forward in 1974 to healthy growth in investment, consumer spending, and the key areas of construction and capital expenditure."

The premier, spending the holiday in Florida, said in the statement issued from his office that if Ontario residents are careful the current energy crisis would not greatly affect the provincial economy.

Ontario had a relatively secure supply of energy which means that "our manufacturers and other producers stand an excellent chance of competing with foreign suppliers in terms of price and availability of goods."

Mr. Davis said Ontario's good fortune in being able to cope with the energy crisis can be attributed "to the wisdom of the heads of governments and industries in earlier times."

Britain Today Begins Three-day Work Weeks

LONDON (AP) — With confusion and foreboding, Britain began a three-day work week today to conserve its electric power plants reduced coal supply.

The cut, which the government blames on the coal miners' refusal to work overtime, will affect about 15 million Britons out of a labor force of 24 million, economists estimated.

Non-essential businesses and industry will be supplied electricity only three days a week, either from Monday through Wednesday or Thursday through Saturday. They can stay open other days only if they operate without electricity.

Many firms have not announced their shortened schedule and many Britons reported for work today not knowing whether they should be there or whether they will receive a full week's pay at the end of the week.

Critical industries that are exempt include public utilities, food processors and distributors, hospitals, communications media and restaurants. Such "continuous process" plants as the steel mills, where the product would be ruined by a break in operation, can continue to operate around the clock, but they must cut electricity consumption 35 per cent. Shops may stay open six days a week but can use only three hours of electricity a day.

Prime Minister Edward Heath ordered the shortened work week after the miners' slowdown reduced coal production 30 per cent. Union leaders said that his action amounts to a national lockout and that he is trying to make the miners the scapegoat for his "disastrous management of the nation's economy."

But James Prior, the Conservative government's leader in the House of Commons, warned that the country faces disastrous without the restriction of electricity. He said if industry continued to operate full time, there wouldn't be enough power to maintain the water supply and the streets of London and other cities would be "awash with sewage."

Norman Lancaster, chairman of the Wolseley-Hughes engineering group, predicted a rash of bankruptcies. "Export orders worth millions of pounds will be lost," he said.

The British Steel Corp. said its output was already cut by half. Courtaulds, the textile corporation that employs 120,000 workers, told most of its junior clerical staff they will have to remain without severance pay or work a short week for less pay.

The government opened an office around the clock to interpret the regulations for businessmen and industrialists.

"Can you put half a factory on a three-day week and the other go a five-day week when the plant is producing both weans for the food industry and for aerosol sprays?" asked the Metal Box Co. The company said it is waiting for the government's decision.

The miners are demanding pay increases ranging from $18 to $28 a week, which the government says is above its anti-inflation wage increase ceilings. The government claims miners' earnings average about $98 a week and this would rise to $112.80 if the guidelines are observed.

The miners' leaders and the National Coal Board resume negotiations Wednesday. There is talk of giving the men more money without raising their base pay by paying them portal to portal, for the time they take getting to and from the coalface and washing up after work.

Rescue Attempt Fails

KEYSTONE, W. Va. (AP) — Five children and a teen-age marine who attempted to rescue them died when fire swept through a home here Sunday. Five of the victims were the children of Jeannette Woody, 30, who escaped from the burning home when she jumped through a window. The sixth victim was Rodney Carter Robbitt, 18, of Keystone, a marine on a 10-day leave, who was walking past the home when he spotted the fire.

Gasoline Scarce

NEW YORK (AP) — Motorists in many areas of the United States found gasoline supplies skimpy today. A year-total shutdown of gas stations loomed for New Year's Day. In New York City, the gasoline shortage prompted police to reduce by 30 to 80 per cent the number of radio cars cruising the streets.

Policeman's Death Enrages Protestants

BELFAST (AP) — Mobs of Protestant demonstrators angered by the ambush death of a Protestant policeman here attacked a police station, bombed a convent, burned vehicles and fired at a British army patrol in violence that ended early Sunday.

A 12-year-old boy was hurt in a damaged bus, but there were no other injuries.

Protestant feeling in the Northern Ireland capital boiled over Saturday night when Constable Michael Logue, 21, was shot in death by a police car after being summoned to the scene of a supposed robbery in the Belfast area. The officer with Logue was wounded.

Logue was the 180th policeman to die in guerrilla attacks this year and the 46th since the outbreak of civil unrest in 1968.

Protestant leaders earlier had demanded a public inquiry into the death of Alexander Elsewell, a 33-year-old father of four who was shot by a British soldier outside a tavern in the Protestant Shankill Road section Friday.

In the mob attack on Donegall Pass police station in downtown Belfast, a number of high-velocity shots were fired at the building, officers said.

Palestinians Claim They Shot Briton

BEIRUT, Lebanon (Reuter) — The Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine announced today responsibility for the shooting of Joseph Sieff, the prominent British Jewish leader who was seriously wounded at his London home Sunday night.

Sieff, 68-year-old president of the Marks and Spencer retail store chain, was shot in the jaw by a masked intruder who broke into his northwest London home.

Today's Beirut statement came as London police confirmed a hunt for the gunman.

The police had suspected the shooting was politically inspired but had not specifically pinned the blame on Arab guerrillas.

Indonesia Boosts Price

JAKARTA (Reuter) — Indonesian oil will cost 80 per cent more from Tuesday, a spokesman of the state-run Pertamina Oil Co. said today.

The spokesman announced that from Jan. 1 Indonesian crude will cost $10.80 a barrel instead of the current $6.

Indonesia is producing about 1.4 million barrels of oil a day and hopes to double this by 1978.

More than 70 per cent of Indonesia's exports go to Japan and about 11 per cent is sent to the United States.

New Features Starting Today

With the coming of the New Year, Intelligencer readers today see some new faces and features in the course of reading their daily newspaper.

Some new comic strip characters, for example, will be offered for our readers' enjoyment. But while subscribers get their first glimpse at such zany types as the Old Boarding House Gang, they will still be reading the antics of Peanuts and B.C., two proven comic page successes.

Current fascination in so-called occult phenomena will be catered to in a weekly column by Allan Spraggett entitled "The Unexplained." Readers will be lured by such topics as "The Girl Who Dreamed Her Death" and "Atlantis Revisited," and hear related the tale of the man who bucks plants up to lie detectors to see if they have emotions.

For those who prefer more down-to-earth puzzles, a new crossword makes its appearance today, with answers each day often relating to a central theme, such as South America, or testing the reader's knowledge of fish or weeds.

Sports page scanners will get a weekly lesson in hockey from the game's most accomplished player, Boston Bruins' Bobby Orr. In fairer weather, George Knudson will offer the tips that have made him this country's most successful professional golfer.

Tradeau Feels Canada's Economic Prospects Good

OTTAWA (CP) — Seeming's secure after more than a year of tension-filled minority government, Prime Minister Trudeau says he is optimistic about Canada's economic prospects.

He covered these and other issues in a CTV interview taped for Sunday night, making it clear he believes many of the country's economic woes result primarily from world conditions.

Inflation, he said, was caused mainly by world shortages of petroleum and food.

"If a government can't cope with self-induced inflation, it deserves to be thrown out.

"But when inflation, as it does, now, comes mainly because there are world shortages . . . the first thing we should do is compensate the people who are caught in till.

"It's not their fault that the petroleum, heating prices have gone up. It's not their fault that the cost of food traded on the world market have gone up. They can't protect themselves by demanding higher wages and so on."

He said the government already had taken steps to ease the squeeze, such as removing the annual two-per-cent ceiling on pension increases.

World shortages could not be controlled at the domestic level but when there are shortages, prices go up and we can't hold them down."

The prime minister restated his objections to wage and price controls, saying they have not worked in either Britain or the United States.

"The shortages . . . were worse than before the wage and price controls. I think it's a bad political and economic approach."

On the energy situation, he admitted Canada was "caught short" by the Arab oil embargo that followed the most recent outbreak of fighting with Israel.

An oil policy analysis was announced by Energy Minister Donald Macdonald in June, the result of nearly a year's work by his department.

"Now," said Mr. Trudeau, "you might say: 'All right, you had the analysis in June, why didn't you have the policy ready for September?'

"Well, maybe I could, but it takes time to put a policy together and our timing was to have it for this coming winter.

"Because of the Middle East war, which neither you nor I caused . . . the thing came on us three months, four months earlier than we had been ready for."

Prime Minister Trudeau repeated his stand that the best solution is a one Canada oil policy, rather than the present system that permits lower prices in the West.

"We're going to have a policy for all Canada. Timing is of the essence: Once again, we couldn't time the Middle East war. We brought in our freeze to fight inflation and now we are prolonging it to ensure security of supply and one market for Canada."

This freeze, a voluntary restraint at the producer level, has been a critical issue in the political arena. It was to have been removed at the end of January and there were howls of outrage when the government announced the extension.

On the economy in general, Canada came through 1973 "rather beautifully, partly through government foresight."

Mr. Trudeau said he bases his optimism about economic prospects for 1974 on a report by the Organization for Economic Co-operation and Development, of which Canada is a member.

"It says that Canada will be one of those to come out of it probably unscathed in terms of unemployment, in terms of investment, and so on—even in terms of the energy crisis."

Snow, Drifting, For New Year's

It's New Year's Eve — and this year, all Quinte residents can expect to be under the weather.

Forecasters at Canadian Forces Base Trenton say they expect more than four inches of snow to fall in Prince Edward County and the southern townships of Hastings County before 6 p.m. Residents in northern sections of the county are expected to get only two inches of snow.

The snow which started falling around 7:30 a.m. will continue until 7 or 8 this evening, when temperatures will fall to 15 degrees above zero. Later tonight, winds gusting up to 25 miles an hour from the north will cause drifting. Driving may be hazardous.

Provincial police in Belleville already started receiving directives this morning informing them that road conditions throughout southern, central and eastern Ontario were poor. Most roads were snowcovered and slippery.

The fresh snowfall has Quinte-area police a little worried. But they expect holiday travellers to exercise more care than usual as a result of tricky driving conditions.

It is hard to say what might happen," said one officer at the city's OPP detachment. "New Year's is always a difficult time with drivers coming home from parties and everything. But when the weather acts up you can always expect things to be a little worse."

City police, like the OPP, have shuffled their work schedules around and will be on the lookout for drivers who have had a little too much of the holiday spirit. Stopping cars for mechanical fitness checks, the police expect to snare a share of impaired drivers. However, they still hope some drivers will listen to the customary plea to pass up driving if drinking.

Belleville's two cab companies will be trying to run all vehicles this evening. They warn prospective passengers to expect a waiting period of between 15 and 20 minutes between the time they call for a cab and its arrival.

If a cab-owning partygoer decides to walk or take a cab home, Belleville police will give examination to park overnight on the street. All that's required is a phone call to police informing them of cars left parked.

Bad weather which swept into the area last night will linger through today — just like a hangover. The weatherman is calling for cold temperatures, variable cloudiness and the occasional snowflurry between Wednesday and Friday.

JOHN N. BROWN

Bancroft Man On EODC

BANCROFT — A prominent Hastings County businessman has been appointed a director of one of Ontario's three development corporations.

The appointment of John N. Brown, Bancroft lumber company president and a former county warden, to the Eastern Ontario Development Corporation (EODC) was announced by Premier William Davis.

The three bodies — which also include the Ontario Development Corporation and the Northern Ontario Development Corporation — provide financial and advisory services to business and industry.

Mr. Brown has served a number of terms as reeve of Bancroft and is well-known throughout the county. He was warden of Hastings County council when it took the move to build a new county administration centre on the site of the first courthouse.

Snow Deepens In the Bush

Snow ground depths in inches reported early Monday morning were: Tweed — 10.8; White Lake, 11.5; Plevna, 11.1; Bon Echo, 10-12.

Happy Birthday!

Robert Peacock (right) of Canniffton monagnenarian, receives 90th birthday best wishes from his older brother Thomas, now in his 96th year. The Thurlow township brothers got together Saturday, recalling early days in North Hastings before they bought farms north of Belleville. Bob gave up farming in the early 1940s and went to work at Corby's Distilleries Ltd., retiring in 1948 when he reached 65. Thomas still keeps busy doing chores on his 4th concession family farm.

Tyendinaga Gets First Library

SHANNONVILLE — This area will soon be served by a library in a building once used as an elementary school.

Tyendinaga township council has now passed an enabling bylaw to get the library doors open to the public. The request for the measure came from the Tyendinaga Community Association which presently leases the former school premises with a purchase option — from the Hastings County school board.

On the new library board are township reeve Leonard Walsh, Hastings County registrar Stephen Genaja, Angus York, Jean Rump and Gail Payette.

Roger Love, account manager, Bank of Montreal's Tweed branch since July of 1972, has been transferred to the London, Ont. branch where he will be placed in charge of farm lending.

H. H. Woods, administration manager at the Tweed branch has been promoted to account manager. Joseph J. Petinga, Ottawa, has assumed position of administration manager.

Woman Robs Stores At Knifepoint

TORONTO (CP) — A woman described as being about five feet, two inches tall, has robbed two stores in three nights, each time waving a knife.

Saturday night, the woman believed in her early 40s, pretended to buy a hairbrush in a west-end store. As the sale was rung up by manager Mac Osher, she demanded his money and brandished the knife.

When he was slow in passing over $250, the woman hit Mr. Osher on the head.

Police believe she is the same woman who robbed a west-end milk store Thursday night, getting $300.

County Manpower Manager Retires

H.W. (Pete) Karn, manager of Belleville's Canada Manpower Centre for the past seven years, has retired.

His successor has yet to be announced by the federal government.

Mr. Kalrn headed the Belleville administration centre — which services Hastings County and Ameliasburgh township — during a period of transition.

However, change was nothing new to the veteran civil servant who had been with the department through major transformations in nearly three decades.

He joined the civil service after recovering from wounds suffered in Italy during World War II.

His first posting was with the internal revenue department. Some 18 months later he transferred to their international employment service, as an employment officer in its Toronto office. He was shortly promoted employment supervisor and sent to Weston.

Promoted to manager, he directed employment centres in Napanee, Brockville and Woodstock before being posted to Belleville — a period during which the service had evolved through various reorganizations into today's, Manpower structure.

Some 12 members of the department applied for the Belleville vacancy and a new manager is believed to have been selected.

Alarm Box

Saturday; Dec. 29, truck fire, short in battery ignited gas, in front of 173 Station St., 1 p.m., slight damage.

Sunday Dec. 30, fire in mattress, children playing with matches, flare out on arrival, slight damage, 67 Byron St., 10:18 p.m.

Madoc Area Blaze

Weather Saves Herd As Barn Is Gutted

MADOC — Warm weather may have saved a small herd of cattle when fire destroyed a barn near here early Sunday.

Scene of the blaze was the Cooper Rd. farm of Ronald Devolin about 1.5 miles northeast of here.

Mr. Devolin was away from home at the time and the fire was spotted by a neighbor, Terry Chapman, who turned in the alarm.

Some 13 head of cattle, which normally would have been housed in the barn, had been permitted to run at large on the farm because of recent mild weather.

The burning building was located about 400 feet from the farmhouse, said Madoc volunteer firefighters, the wind was blowing from an opposite direction and kept sparks from alighting on the house during the blaze.

A large quantity of hay and a seed drill were lost with the building, which was partially insured. Estimate of the total loss was not known.

Reserve Fire, Six Die

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Six persons who died in a house fire on the Obedjiwan Indian reserve in northern Quebec were among at least 19 Canadians killed accidentally in Canada during the weekend.

The six, believed to be members of the same family, were killed Saturday on the reserve about 200 miles north of Val d'Or.

A survey by The Canadian Press from 6 p.m. local times Friday to midnight Sunday night showed seven died in traffic, seven in fires, three on snowmobiles and one when a toboggan crashed into a park bench. One person died in what police said was an accidental shooting.

The weekend traffic toll, combined with at least 36 during the period, increased the unofficial count to 3,883 persons killed this year in traffic.

The three who died on snowmobiles during the weekend and the eight during the week brought to 30 this season's unofficial snowmobile toll.

$30,000 For Madoc Conservation

A $30,000 provincial government grant to the Moira Conservation Authority has been approved for purchase of floodplain land on Deer Creek in Madoc.

The land has been acquired for flood protection and eventual public use as open space and parkland.

Madoc village has been designated as the main benefitting municipality. It will be levied the major portion of the Authority's share of the cost.

The announcement was made by Charles T. Rollins, MPP Hastings.

A Thought for 1974

Canadian Indian youngsters are very much aware of their heritage, as a delightful selection of poems and cartoons in The Indian News indicates.

One of these, from a recent issue, shows an excellent likeness of Abraham Lincoln by 12-year-old Russell Mitchell, a Grade 8 student in St. Regis, Quebec.

Accompanying the sketch are these words, presumably a quote from the great American statesman himself: "I don't think much of a man who is not wiser today than he was yesterday."

On the eve of a new year, what better thought is there than that.

Millionaire Plus

Bob Keen of Fort Nelson, B.C. is in the earth moving business and he owns a fleet of planes and trucks together with a bundle of companies doing business here and abroad which gross around $25 million a year.

Handsome and quiet spoken, the former bush pilot rather belied the tough businessman underneath, observing him in a National Film Board production carried by the CBC in its West series recently on television.

The record however is there. The men surrounding him seem hewn in the same rock-like tradition of the Western Canadian; and not overlooking the more typical of Canadians generally as physically in poor shape.

That aside, Bob Keen had an interesting observation about the new generation of Canadians and the lack of challenge in our modern way of life.

Occasionally ungrammatical in speech, Keen acknowledged today's kids may be better educated than those of his day (which not forgetting there are plenty of youngsters around who are quite unacquainted with the three Rs), but added that they "spend more and more time finding out ways not to work . . . and they do it quite successfully."

Another thing Mr. Keen had to say about the business world generally — and we have heard it before — is that Canadian bankers are "too cautious." Thus, when he needed capital he got it from the British, of all people (again, let's not forget that despite their economic problems the British have huge reserves of capital), and of course the Americans.

There is a moral or two here, and they are not difficult to detect.

Shah's Warning

The Shah of Iran, undoubtedly thinking of his own oil, and future relations with Arab neighbors, has been warning western industrial nations, with whom he has always been on good terms, that they will have to "tighten their belts."

For a man of such unlimited wealth as the Shah it is strange to contemplate this sort of observation: "The industrial world will have to realize that the era of cheap fertilizer, pesticides and even more terrific income based on wealth and cheap income is finished. . . They will have to find new sources of energy . . . If you want to live as well as now, you will have to work for it. . . Even all the children of well-to-do parents who have plenty to eat, have cars, and are running around as terrorists throwing bombs here and there . . . will have to work, too."

We would certainly like to see a lot of these types put to work, but who ever heard of terrorists coming from among the well-to-do. There may be a few kinds of such adventurers, but for the most part they are from among the disadvantaged who are trying to stir up world action on their behalf, but in fact are succeeding only in alienating people and governments everywhere.

One observation we have heard in recent days is that if a recession results from the current fuel shortage cutbacks, it will not sit easily with the younger generation.

Acupuncture

The report about North York mayor Mel Lastman being cured of long-standing headaches following acupuncture is very interesting. Lastman was better after three treatments, as we recall, is the same number Metropolitan opera star Anna Moffo received for successful treatment of severe back trouble.

Acupuncture would appear to be remarkable in its capacities as an anesthetic and as a pain killer. We understand Canada eventually will have a number of doctors trained in its use. But how long a period will elapse before it is in widespread use is another matter.

Ross Whicher Roasts Ottawa for Spending Beyond Means

Toward a 50-cent Dollar?

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — Add to the growing list of frustrated and disillusioned Liberals Ross M. Whicher, MP for Ontario's constituency of Bruce, an old political pro, World War Two veteran, former mayor of his town of Wiarton, ex-member of the provincial legislature and for the last six years a member of the Commons.

He has been a Liberal all his life, and so it must take a lot to brown him off, as browned off he says he is, with the browning going so deep and dyed so dark that he is mocking it off before the next election.

He's not creating quite the upheaval in the Liberal lodge that former Grits Paul Hellyer, once Pierre Trudeau's top cabinet deputy, or Thomas Cossitt, leading party figure in Eastern Ontario's Leeds riding, did when they deserted the ranks.

For he has lost gone as far as they went and joined the enemy Conservatives.

But he is creating quite a stir, by denouncing the deficit budget as saying some things the Liberals find disturbing.

Such as the basic home truth that if you are going to remain solvent you can't go on forever spending more than you take in.

But he is wrong.

The Liberals can do it.

Because while they spend more and more, month by month, and year by year, they take in ever more.

They raise taxes. Only they don't call them taxes. Instead they call them increased unemployment insurance deductions and — they insist on collecting them from thousands of Canadians who likely never will be unemployed.

And they call them export imposts and import charges and they go and forever fiddling them to increase both federal revenues and consumer costs.

Finally, they retain the taxpayer with inflation, collecting more in taxes on the money they deliberately depreciate, printing increasing amounts of it all the time and deadly eroding its value.

The process has been carried to the point that this year respectable investment dealers and companies counselled investors that the percentages of interest Finance Minister Turner was paying on his new issue of Canada Savings Bonds, because of the Government's inflation-creating, made the investor the loser.

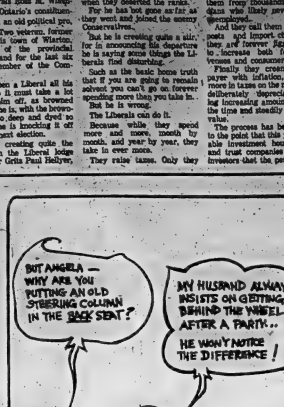
Ross Whicher, who has faulted the Opportunities for Youth Program, the Local Initiatives Program and other government "make-work" schemes as wasteful, has refused to let his constituents to tell them he has had enough of the Ottawa nonsense.

In his letter he states: "I must add that while the Liberals form the Government, New Democratic Leader David Lewis rules the country.

"Minority government as he (Mr. Lewis) says may be good for the people," he writes, "I can only add that they are very expensive."

And he worries that minority governments in the years ahead could become permanent, for he suggests that the American system of elections, at set periods, likes every four years, makes better sense.

"Only by doing this can we save future governments from being blackmailed into doing things that are not necessarily to the best for the country as a whole," he explains.



Admitting that at 56 his views could may be seen as those of a fresh, he concludes that while the Government can afford its 220 of step with today's modern world. "I still believe that no one, including governments, should spend more than they take in.

"Furthermore, I believe that even such good social legislation as family allowances, old age pensions and medical insurance should be based on what the country can afford and not on political expediency.

"In the long run, we as citizens can afford only what we as taxpayers can afford."

In his letter — and few MPs sell it the way Ross Whicher does, which happens to be the way it is — he has put his finger on the ugly rumor rushing the parliamentary rounds. And that is, if the Liberals win the next election they will make sure the Government can afford its $20 billions of spending by raising taxes — especially those on income — high enough to bring in those $20 billions.

It could mean that 50 cents of every dollar you earn will be taxed away.

Education Minister Wells Makes His Mark

By DON O'HEARN
Queen's Park Bureau

TORONTO — When Tom Wells entered the house in 1963 as the PC member for Scarborough North, most independent observers didn't expect too much from him.

He was then 33 years old and an advertising salesman.

He had charm, but it was a boyish charm that reflected more an enthusiastic boy scout leader rather than a professional politician.

He wasn't a representative for whom one predicted a particularly bright political future.

In 1966 when he was taken into the cabinet as minister without portfolio by John Robarts it was generally felt that this was a gesture to the youth vote.

For this quite handsome young man still had his boyish charm.

But it was hard to see him ever having the toughness that is called for in the leader of a full-time ministry.

His appointment was looked on as a token.

When subsequently he was made minister of health there was some surprise.

And he appeared to confirm the earlier expectations for the department was in almost continual trouble.

This also was borne out when he headed the ministry of community and social services.

The impression he left was one of fumbling.

It was therefore startling to see Premier Davis name him to the senior portfolio or minister of education two years ago.

But it slowly became apparent, and particularly in the last few weeks, that Mr. Davis had a strong insight.

For Wells has shown a maturity, and particularly a toughness, that was not to be expected of him.

As spokesman for government policy on education (And this definitely is governmental rather than ministerial policy) he has had perhaps the hardest political job in the administration.

He has had to take on the teaching fraternity and many school boards.

And he has done this consistently with courage.

There are certainly many still who criticize him.

But there would be even more who have gained a new respect for him.

"This is the day which the Lord hath made; we will rejoice and be glad in it." Psalms 118:24.

We have a tendency to judge a day by a climatic rather than by its creator. We should give the Lord credit for every day He is doing and do our best to be a part of it. "All things work together for good to them that love the Lord."

Canadian Books Are Gaining Status

CANADA COURIER
(Dept. of Industry Trade and Commerce)

The move to acquaint the rest of the world with Canadian books has begun. The first New York showroom in display only Canadian books—Books Canada Inc., opened last month.

The first Canadian book showroom in Paris and the first Canadian bookstore in London both opened in October.

The books cover such varied fields as the legal sciences, physic. history, architecture and business. Novels by contemporary Canadian writers, collections of poetry, dictionaries, encyclopedias, paperbacks and elementary school books, general trade books, paperbacks, maps and charts will also be available.

The store will carry books authored or translated by Canadian citizens or landed immigrants and published and printed in Canada. However, in order to include all good Canadian printing, the store will also carry books written by Canadians but published and printed outside the country.

About 30 publishers, including all major publishers of English Canadian books, are represented in the 1,500 titles being displayed in New York. The number of publishers may grow as the publishing concept need not be Canadian, as long as it is carrying out a publishing program in Canada.

The primary purpose of the showroom is to give American book retailers and librarians the opportunity to become familiar with — and order! —Canadian books. Individuals, of course, are also able to peruse the list. (A warehouse has been set up at 33 East Tupper St., Buffalo, to fill orders for U.S. purchasers.)

The project really started when the Province of Ontario set up a Royal Commission on Publishing with recommended assistance for the more Canadian of truthful Canadian-owned publishers; the federal government then held a "consultation" on publishing, which was followed by the subsequent announcement of a three-year $500,000-a-year grant for a book export (first year) to be administered by the Department of Industry, Trade and Commerce, is tied to publishers' self help — book centers are to be set up, owned and operated by a consortium of Canadian book publishers and only when the centers are established will the federal money be made available. About one in three per cent of sales will go into a fund for the development of additional export markets.

School Report VIA Computer

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

The other morning two impossible envelopes arrived at my home. I could tell immediately they were no ordinary, unsolicited mail. To say the least of it, they had an impressive air of intimidation about them.

I dispensed with the usual corner-tearing method of opening. This obviously called for the family paper knife. With respectful surgical delicacy I extracted the two sheets of 8½ x 12 paper, tantalizingly decorated with lines, squares, figures and typewritten comments.

I was sure it was an official deportation order calling upon me to leave Belleville forever.

I spread my two pieces of paper out on the desk before me for contemplation. I was frightened to read that it was only my son's school report ... all two pages of it. Even so I felt that such largesse was the harbinger of bad news.

In point of fact it was one of the better efforts, this time having been accomplished as food for Loyalist Computer. I wondered what happened to the days, not so long ago, when boy or girl brought the dreaded document home by hand. Are we no longer teaching them such little responsibilities? Maybe the powers that be felt too often these playschool experiences are a traumatic blow to the student and should be avoided.

Whatever the reasoning behind it all the authorities, in one fell blow, are now devoid of any blame, criticism or fault. Now they can be blamed on the scholastic demons of Loyalist College — the computer.

Thomas Edison first demonstrated the incandescent electric lamp 94 years ago Monday—in 1879—when he was 32. It was one of 1,000 inventions Edison patented before his death in 1931. They ranged from conceptions as simple as the megaphone to those as complex as the telegrapher. Edison also invented the phonograph and experimented with talking and silent movies.

Belleville Visit
Chinese-Peruvian Girl Studying Bell Operations

Bell News

TORONTO — A demure, soft-spoken, young Chinese visitor from Peru has just finished spending three months studying Bell Canada operations to better equip her for her demanding job in South America.

Lucy Lou-Kung, at the relatively tender age of 22, is chief of the architectural department of the National Telecommunications Co. of Peru and has 15 men and women reporting to her.

Her prime concern during her Canadian stay was to acquaint herself with the SP-1 switching station which she will be designing in the near future, for her own country. She went to London to see the SP-1 station there in operation. (The other one in Ontario is in Scotboro.

Headquarters for Lucy during much of her stay was in the Real Estate department on the fourth floor at 100 Wynford Drive.

However, she did get around to a great extent, spending a week in Montreal, a week at Barrie (decision making course), visits to Northern Electric in Brampton and several Bell buildings in Toronto.

"All the Bell people have been very, very friendly to me and very nice," Lucy told Bell News shortly before going home. My English is not so good but they tried very hard to understand me. I would like to thank them all for the wonderful time I spent with them."

The Peruvian company, taken over by the government two years ago from IT and T, is in charge of all communications: telephone, telegraph, radio, television.

There are about 700 employees but the total is expected to double. Only 10 people in 100 have telephones so there is a big demand for expansion. Lima, where the company is located, has a population of 3½ million Peru has about 10 million people.

A telephone costs about $10 a month. Lucy said, and for those who don't have one the waiting period is from one month to a year. It's not the shortage of phones and wires that is acute but the switching equipment to handle calls.

Lucy's expenses here were paid by Bell and the Canadian International Development Agency which has headquarters in Ottawa. Her acquaintance from Peru also spent time in Canada with Bell, and Bell "sent some people to Peru to help us there," Lucy said.

Miss Lou-King was born in Peru after her parents emigrated there from China. She has three sisters and a brother.

After graduating from the university in Lima, Lucy worked for a year with the government housing ministry before taking her present job. Her only complaint is "cold cold: so many people say you look so young" to be in such a job.

Char produced from brown coal is highly efficient in absorbing pollutants from polluted water, according to Australian Geoffrey Cullen, leader of a research group from the University of Melbourne responsible for this discovery, claims that water polluted with up to 10,000,000 E. coli per litre loses 99.6 per cent of its bacteria when passed through a filter bed of the coal char for five minutes. The char works like activated carbon by absorbing the bacteria as well as many chemical pollutants on its porous surfaces.

Practical trials involving the construction of a filter bed where Merry creeks draining into Melbourne's highly polluted Yarra River are now being planned.

Press and Local Politics

The Trentonian

One feels that a council has a mistaken outlook toward the role of the press. Its facilities are shoddy and it is forced to stay back away from where reporters can hear and see. Press papers are provided on matters under discussion Area school boards give the reporter a good place with a good table, and adequate room. Even film is documents under discussion. Then coverage can be intelligent.

Radio has very limited coverage. Not everybody can listen, or wants to. the press provides the, vital written coverage that informs the public informed. It can be done well only if council treats the press as a vital adjunct to its work.

Press facilities in Trenton are wholly inadequate. Councillors mutter instead of speak out, and can rarely be heard. We think a council ought to have headphones so that they can listen. And the press they should be near the council table and should have documents before them so that they know what is going on.

The council accurately report what he cannot hear. Nor can he give adequate coverage when he has nothing in front of him to show what councillors are intelligent.

Press coverage for years has been full, careful and accurate. The cavalier attitude toward the press is wrong and needs correction. Trenton is a small area in a new chamber council might get a new attitude. But we were wrong. Now is the time to do something about it. The press is the eyes and ears of Trenton, and needs better treatment.

Solzhenitsyn's Hero Tells Of Eight Years of Torture

WASHINGTON (AP) — "They tortured me night and day" during most of the first three years of the eight he spent in Soviet imprisonment, Americanborn Alexander D. Dolgun said Saturday.

It didn't stop until he signed a satisfactory "confession" of espionage after two "confessions" were found unacceptable, Dolgun, whose parents had lived in Russia, declared in an interview here Saturday. "I made up things to try to stop the torture; I couldn't take it any more."

Now, 25 years after it all began when he was a United States embassy employee in Moscow, Dolgun, 47, lives a thoroughly quiet life with his Russian-born wife and their eight-year-old son Andrew in nearby Rockville, Md. He is a geographic analyst for the department of health, education and welfare.

The nightmare of Dolgun's imprisonment is described in Soviet writer Alexander Solzhenitsyn in his latest published work, "The Gulag Archipelago, 1918-56. Dolgun said Solzhenitsyn interviewed him in the early 1970s in detail about his experiences.

The soft-spoken Dolgun recalled in the interview the years of torture in labor camps.

The ordeal began on busy Gorky Street, Moscow's main thoroughfare, in December, 1948, "when some guy starting calling out my name," Dolgun said. He was dressed in civilian clothes and had a big smile, he said. "Oh, buddy, how many years since we've seen each other," he greeted.

"I didn't know him and thought he was unbalanced. He was talking very loud trying to make all the people around us think we were old friends.

"I told him, 'Sorry, I don't know who you are.' He brought me close to the curb and started talking very quietly, 'You are Dolgun!' I said, 'Yes, I'm Dolgun!' And he said: The KGB (secret police) would like to talk with you for five minutes.

"It was then I became suspicious. I explained that I was an American citizen and showed my identification card.

He then said, 'There comes a car. I suspected something and decided to run. Two guys came up behind me and grabbed me by the elbows and pushed me. The quiet didn't make noise.'

"In the two men" shoved him into the car and "the other guy said, 'Don't worry—in five minutes,' Dolgun said. They took him to Lubyanka, the secret police headquarters in Moscow.

Neither the U.S. embassy nor his parents who lived in Russia were informed of his arrest, but the U.S. embassy soon learned he had been arrested and filed a protest with the Soviet foreign minister two days later, but got no response.

His father and mother were arrested shortly after he was. Dolgun said his mother died because under torture and died in hospital. His father survived and died in Moscow.

Dolgun said Soviet authorities wanted to stage an espionage case trial in which he was to have been the principal performer.

When he refused to "confess," Dolgun said, he was transferred to Lefortovo, where he spent two years in solitary confinement and was tortured regularly. He was sent to prison camps and six months later was brought back to Moscow by special convoy and again placed in solitary for another year before he "confessed."

In Sukhanovka, near Moscow, Dolgun said, he was beaten on the backs with a rubber truncheon until he was in such pain he agreed over and was struck in the abdomen with such force it caused internal injuries requiring an operation.

It was in Sukhanovka where he finally "confessed" and was sent to work camp, he said.

Dolgun had been sentenced to 25 years without trial before he was made to file false confession. Dolgun said, but...was released in 1956 in a general amnesty for political prisoners.

Although he was told he was to be sentenced to life imprisonment if he went back to the U.S. Embassy, he eventually made contact with his sister in Vienna, Austria. She began steps leading to an eventual return to the United States, with help from President Eisenhower.

After much petitioning, he was allowed to return quietly two years ago.

Laskin's Appointment Is Reported Resented

OTTAWA (CP) — Mr. Justice Ronald Martland had no comment Sunday night on reports that the appointment of Bora Laskin as chief justice of the Supreme Court of Canada may have caused some resentment among some of the court's seven judges.

In a surprise move Friday, Prime Minister Trudeau announced the appointment of Mr. Justice Laskin, a 59-year member of the court, while the traditional choice would have been the senior judge, 15-year veteran Mr. Justice Martland.

The CBC reported there is some resentment within the Supreme Court and the Trudeau cabinet over the appointment.

The CBC report said two of the seven judges have complained that they were not consulted on the appointment. The report also said Mr. Justice Martland received little notice that he was bypassed.

Mr. Justice Martland said Sunday he had been advised of the appointment but he declined to say when.

The CBC also said Finance Minister John Turner, a former justice minister, was furious over the break with tradition in picking a chief justice. It said Mr. Turner is worried that the move might open the way to future political appointments.

Mr. Turner was unavailable for comment.

Package Deal Brings Closure

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Chicago-area gasoline station which charged $18.03 for five gallons of gasoline, a rabbit's foot and a blank form for a last will and testament has been closed by federal court order, the United States justice department said Sunday.

A spokesman for the department said the temporary restraining order served on McBride's Shell Service by the outskirts of Chicago was the first such order to be in force at a dealer.

The spokesman said the station required motorists to purchase the rabbit's foot and the blank will form in order to buy gasoline.

The order shuts the station down until the court hears the station's owner is to appear in court, the spokesman said.

The spokesman said the price of gasoline at the station was not immediately determined because of the package deal being charged motorists.

He said that when the station was closed on the order of U.S. District Judge William Bauer, long lines of motorists were waiting to buy fuel.

Electric Vehicles Are Being Studied

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario government is investigating the possible use of electric vehicles for public transportation as a means of conserving fuel.

Kirk Foley, president of the Ontario Transportation Development Corp. (OTDC), a crown corporation, said Saturday his organization is "looking for an electric version of the present diesel-bus system."

Butane Car Derailed

PORT HURON, Mich. (AP) — At least 120 persons evacuated when a railway car carrying explosive butane fuel derailed near downtown Port Huron have been allowed to return home.

Railway officials said danger of explosion is all but gone. Eighteen cars derailed Friday, but only one caught fire. It burned in Sarnia, Ont., where the shipment had originated, and transferred to another car for transport later in the week.

Run on Sugar

VANCOUVER (CP) — Shoppers fearing a drastic increase in the price of sugar flocked to Vancouver-area supermarkets Saturday, buying all the sugar they can carry.

The rush to buy sugar preceded the termination today of the world-wide international sugar agreement that had governed world sugar trade.

Snowmobile Rules Coming

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario will introduce legislation in the next session of the provincial legislature to govern the use of snowmobiles, Gordon Carton, minister of transportation and communications, said Sunday night.

He said his ministry has gone through the recommendations given in an interim report last March by the select committee on motorized snow vehicles and all-terrain vehicles.

Work on the legislation will begin as soon as he has consulted with ministry officials, Mr. Carton said.

Alex Carruthers, (PC—Durham), chairman of the select committee, said the committee will begin sitting next week to hear several delegations and briefs.

Hughes Seen As Innocent

LOS ANGELES (Reuter) — A spokesman for billionaire Howard Hughes denied Sunday that the business tycoon was guilty or any wrongdoing concerning the indictment against him and four of business associates for allegedly rigging the price of a California airline stock.

"Mr. Hughes personally took no part in the alleged transactions or negotiations," a spokesman for Summar Corp.—formerly Hughes Tool Co.—said in a statement.

The indictment against Hughes also named Robert Maheu, who ran Hughes's Las Vegas operations; Chester Davis, the chief legal counsel for Summa; David Charnay, a Hughes business associate; and James Nall, who was in charge of land acquisition for Hughes in Nevada.

Hunt Gunman

LONDON (Reuter) — British police began a nationwide manhunt today for a masked gunman who shot and wounded a British Jewish leader in his home.

Joseph Sieff, president of one of the country's biggest clothing chains, Marks and Spencer, and his wife Edwina Zinaik, was shot in the head by an intruder who broke into his house at gunpoint Sunday night.

Airlines to Use Explosive Fuel

LONDON (AP) — Major United States and world airlines, hit by the fuel shortage, plan to go ahead with the ignition fuel most stopped using 16 years ago because it was considered too explosive. The Sunday Times newspaper says.

It says that in January the U.S. government plans to divert more than 1½ million tons of the fuel, known as JP4, from military reserves to commercial airlines using U.S. airports.

The stocks will be earmarked mainly for flights between the U.S. and Europe, it says adding this will mean many commercial airlines will have to use it.

The four major U.S. carriers—Pan American World Airlines, United and Eastern—have agreed to begin using JP4 on most of their flights instead of the normal aviation fuel, kerosene, the paper says.

JP4 was banned in Britain 12 years ago and other countries later also stopped using it. The fuel, two air disasters involving JP4. The Sunday Times says JP4 has a lower flashpoint than kerosene.

In Montreal, an Air Canada spokesman said Sunday the airline has continued to use JP4 for the last 19 years.

The spokesman said private studies indicated JP4 is "just as safe" as other fuels, and offers ignition and other advantages in cold weather.

He said JP4 is a kerosene-type fuel, while many large airlines have been using JP1—pure kerosene—for their own safety reasons. The two fuels cost about the same.

The spokesman said Air Canada uses JP1 when nothing else is available.

Kohoutek Develops Pattern of Colors

HOUSTON (AP) — The comet Kohoutek is developing a pattern of colors and a tail as it speeds away from the sun, the Skylab 3 astronauts reported Sunday.

Astronauts Gerald Carr, William Pogue and Edward Gibson concentrated on the streaking comet Sunday, the 65th day of their 84-day mission, and took scores of photos using a powerful array of telescope cameras.

Gibson reported he also caught sight of the comet with his eye and said it is developing deeper colors.

"The tail is larger," he said. "It's exceptionally bright. It's almost orange in appearance. A little bit yellow, but mostly orange."

Scientists, working with a sketch beamed to the ground by television from the spacecraft, also said the comet is developing faint streamers, or feather-thin streaks of dust, as it races away from the sun.

The faint streamers have a slight bluish color, officials said.

Just back of the comet's head is a bright area, and on the other side of the comet head is a spike-shaped streamer pointing at the sun.

"The spike is not nearly as prominent as the tail," said Gibson.

The feathering and the spike are thought to be particles boiled off the comet earlier during its near pass to the sun, and the bright tail, or plume, are more recent dust and gas particles.

Kohoutek's tail will actually precede the comet during the coming days, officials said. The tail is caused by the solar wind, a force of radiation and light from the sun. Then as the comet moves away from the sun, the tail will be blown ahead of it.

Kohoutek was more than 15 million miles from the sun at Sunday, two days after making its near solar pass at about 13 million miles. The comet is travelling at about 225,000 miles an hour and was about 190 million miles from earth.

The comet still cannot be seen plainly from the ground because sunlight washes out the view. But experts believe it will become visible about Jan. 2 and develop into a prominent twilight celestial display between Jan. 8 and 10.

Carr and Gibson conducted a three hour, 28-minute space walk Saturday to photograph the comet with special cameras as well as the smaller companies, apparently does not have high priority.

In one case, involving fire insurance rates in Nova Scotia, prices were said to have risen last March 23, 1973, against 74 insurance companies.

After listing the names of all the companies, the report charges: "The prohibited hearing had not been held at the end of the fiscal year."

The same applies to charges against three major electrical companies, four aluminum companies and eight cement and building supply companies as well as charges against a variety of others.

That was also months ago and department sources were unavailable for comment on what has happened to the cases in the meantime.

Combine Charges Hearings Delayed

OTTAWA (CP) — Most of the government's attempts to keep major companies from wiping out their competition through alleged conspiracy have been stalled in the courts, the consumer and corporate affairs department has been told by its combines investigation branch.

This was disclosed in a report made available by the department Friday, a year after it had been tabled in the Commons.

The report from the director of the investigation branch for the year ended March 31, 1973, shows that a dozen major cases were held up in court and the reason given was "priorities of the court."

A government spokesman says this kind of legal action, designed to protect the consumer as well as the smaller

Quinte Cuisine

Evelyn Wood, an active member of the Quinte Branch of the Women's Institute for 21 years, was recommended to Quinte Cuisine by a number of people. One of her favorite family recipes is this Oatmeal Spice Cake, which she recommends as a good evening dessert when company comes. It is especially tasty served warm with apple sauce, Mrs. Wood says.

Oatmeal Spice Cake

½ cup butter
1 cup rolled oats
1 cup boiling water
2 eggs
1½ cups brown sugar
1 tsp. soda
¼ tsp. cinnamon
¼ tsp. ground cloves
1 cup flour
1 cup raisins

Mix butter, rolled oats and boiling water and let stand for 20 minutes. Mix eggs, sugar, soda, flour, spices and raisins together and add to the first mixture when it is through standing.

Grease an oblong pan eight inches by ten inches, and pour the batter in. Bake in a 250 degree oven for about an hour. Frost with a butter icing.

An attractive egg codder is offered by George LaBrash of White's Hardware. It's one of many great Christmas stocking stuffers you can buy for around $2.00 at hardware stores.

A jar of real ginger is one of the more interesting things you can buy for stocking stuffers from Cooke's Gourmet World. Margaret Macey displays the exotic food.

Do you know any good cooks? The Intelligencer is looking for cooks in the area willing to share their recipes with our readers. If you're a good cook, or if you know one, write The Women's Department, The Intelligencer. Be sure to include his or her address and phone number.

Israeli Premier Holds Limelight

Golda Meir Passes Queen in Popularity

By CAROL KENNEDY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

An indomitable grandmother at the head of an embattled country and a newly-married princess of Europe's oldest ruling monarchy remain the foces of fascinated attention after holding much of the limelight during 1973.

Israel's 75-year-old Prime Minister Golda Meir, who doggedly guided her people through their fourth war with the Arab states, has been compared in the British press with Winston Churchill in the Second World War.

An opinion poll in Britain for the first time placed her ahead of the Queen in a list of most admired women.

At year's end, she faced a national election amid apparent apathy from war-weary voters. Worse than that uncertainty, however, was the fear she confided to British politician-writer Richard Crossman of another Arab attack—"the waiting when I know each night that (Egyptian President) Sadat may choose to press the button."

Princess Anne's November wedding to cavalry Capt. Mark Phillips, an Olympic equestrian and now an instructor at Sandhurst Military Academy, provided television viewers around the world with a feast of vicarious romance and Hurtarian pageantry. It also gave Britons a much-needed booster shot of gaiety amid mounting industrial and economic gloom.

Married life has made the Queen's independent-minded daughter more out of public circulation, but not more powerful.

GOLDA MEIR

but she probably will continue her sporting activities, competing with Mark in equestrian events unless impending motherhood should rule that out.

The couple meanwhile followed their Caribbean honeymoon in December with their first official tour through parts of Latin America.

On the whole, women's liberation had a slow year. Anne publicly declared her lack of sympathy for the movement in a television interview in a controversial book called The Female Principle, Greek author Ariana Stassinopoulos lambasted liberation attempts to change the status quo on the grounds women already had inherent supremacy. She attacked pioneers like Germaine Greer and Betty Friedan as "screaming harpies."

One unlikely liberationist in 1973 was Angela Hernandez Gomez, who ran into conflict with Spanish bullfighting authorities over their refusal to grant her a licence as a matador. She claimed their edict contravened a 1981 law granting "equal professional rights to both sexes and bullfight fans are hotly divided on the issue."

Generally, women in the limelight tended to fall into more traditional mould. Pat Nixon and her daughter, Julie Eisenhower, had a year's most unenviable talk: trying to put a brave face on the Watergate storm that threatened to engulf Richard Nixon's presidency.

Another political wife thrust into a hot seat was Betty Ford, a home-loving former dancer who said in an interview she does not want Vice-President Gerald Ford to become president, though the possibility clearly hovers around the White House.

As U.S. second lady, Mrs. Ford, 55, says she hopes to "do something for the arts."

Canada is set to inaugurate a new first lady in January with the succession of Ambassador Jules Leger as governor-general. Montreal-born Gaby Leger, a strikingly bilingual, seems certain to add fresh sparkle to Rideau Hall social gatherings.

In the world of entertainment, movie star Elizabeth Taylor made up with husband Richard Burton after a spell in hospital and the scrapping of divorce plans was celebrated with Burton giving her yet another gigantic diamond.

Instrumental in Britain's biggest political scandal in a decade was Irish-born call-girl Norma Levy, whose liaisons helped bring the resignation of two government ministers, Lords Lambton and Jellicoe.

PRINCESS ANNE

Ireland produced two other notorious women in 1973, the sisters Dolours and Marian Price, who with six men were sentenced to life imprisonment by a British court for the terrorist bombings in London last March.

Holiday Baskets Prepared For Marmora, Needy

Members of Branch 237, Royal Canadian Legion prepared Christmas baskets and gifts for the needy people of Marmora, sick and shut-ins in the community and in distant hospitals.

Twelve large family baskets contained a chicken and groceries, five smaller grocery baskets and eight individual food parcels were distributed.

Patients at the Smiths Falls Hospital for Retarded Children, The Ontario Hastings Manor in Belleville, Sherrett House and Centre Hastings Nursing Home in Deloro received gifts from the Legion.

Turkeys were sent to the two institutions in Deloro for the patients, and the clergy of Marmora received gifts at Christmas for their service through the year.

Donations towards the cost of the Christmas parcels were made by the Ladies Auxiliary, Members Chester I.O.D.E. and the Women's Institute.

Investors Learn $3,000 Worth

CLAREMONT, Calif. (AP) — Nine Scripps College co-eds given $30,000 to invest for their college have learned a lot in eight months. They've earned, too.

The girls figure the $62,000 they began with has grown to $63,000 under their guidance. The money was donated to the small, all-women liberal arts college last February by a Scripps alumnus, Mrs. J. Stanley Johnson, of Altadena, Calif.

"Women as well as men can benefit from direct financial experience and responsibility," Mrs. Johnson said, explaining her gift. "Many college graduates have little knowledge of what influences the marketplace and how it operates."

The nine co-eds elected to manage the fund handled the money gingerly at first.

"We spent the first three months just studying the stock market," said Ann Parker, president of the fund.

"We didn't have that much knowledge and we thought it would be better to be conservative," added Barbara Townsend, the fund's secretary.

It has been a bad year for the stock market, except for rallies in July, September and October. Most of those gains have been lost since once analysts say the market is at the bottom of a dismal year.

Despite tips from friends, brokers and their own guesses, the girls started out scientifically. They split the Standard and Poor's manual into 90-page sections with each responsible for researching the companies in her section.

The requirement that six of the nine girls agree on any purchase makes for spirited meetings, they said.

"We usually have a big fight," laughed Miss Parker.

"Oh, let's just buy it!" someone blurted out after a heated give-and-take at the last meeting.

"We did," said Miss Parker. "And when it was all over, we thought Ohlsh, we just spent $30,000!"

Their best buy has been Schlumberger Ltd. They bought 65 shares in May for 80%. It closed the other day at 328%. "I asked our brokers why it went up so fast and they said they didn't have any idea," Miss Farner said.

They took a look at Walt Disney, but avoided a bigger loss. They bought 10 shares at 89¼ and sold at 69 and the stock continued to fall.

Last month they bought 175 shares of Singer at 30.

"We all love their sewing machines," Miss Farner remarked.

She went on to explain that Singer's price-earnings ratio of 9-1 is very favorable and that the year's high was 72, compared to a low of 44. And Singer stands to gain from sale of-sale registers for Sears and Montgomery Ward, she added.

Miss Farmer said they expected Singer to go as high as 73.

The girls say they are gaining confidence and are looking around for more speculative stocks. So far they have only invested in well-known firms.

Ground rules set down by Mrs. Johnson provide that the girls can't buy on margin, sell short or invest more than 20 per cent of their fund in any one stock. And 20 per cent of the fund is drained off annually for student grant and loan programs.

Face Lift for Famous English Store

LONDON (CP) — A trip back to the 1930s can be taken by shoppers on weekends at Derry's in Kensington High Street, where a famous old department store has had a multi-million-dollar facelift.

It is the biggest exercise to modernize a Britain's current fascination with the age of swing and Hyde Park-boogie-ing fashion—but this time it is aimed chiefly at the blue-jeans set.

When Derry and Toms, noted for its spacious salons, ballroom-sized restaurant and rooftop gardens, was sold four years ago to a chain of trendy boutiques named Biba, a shudder ran through the mansions of Kensington. Afternoon tea in the Rainbow Room and a waltz in the model gowns department would never be the same.

They were right about the model gowns part. But looks in clothes are designed for the vicar's wife and undergwent some in colors like purple and plum. But the setting is a temple to Miss Biba style, authentic in every detail.

The interior has been stripped of its partitions and the shopper has a dim-lit vision of acres of beige marble and mirrors, potted palms, peach velvet sofas and two-tone wood panelling.

The 720-seat Rainbow Room with its ceiling of multicolored light shimmers like the ballroom of a Cunard liner of the 1930s. A woman at a white grand piano tinkles away at tunes like A Nightingale Sang in Berkeley Square and there are even tea dances.

As for the roof garden, they are to reopen next spring, complete with lake and flamingoes.

The illusion of stepping into an Astaire and Rogers film set is so vivid that one is taken aback by the rock music blaring out of every corner on the ground floor.

Astaire and Rogers would look out of place among Biba's customers, who on the first Saturday of the store's opening were chiefly of the tee-shirted, freaky-haired variety, doing more looking than buying.

But if successful—and some older customers seemed to find it fascinating as well—Biba may be a model for a new generation of department stores.

The old lofty emporia like Gamages, Debenham and Freebody, Maples and the Army and Navy Stores have either disappeared or are in danger of being replaced by space-saving modern structures.

Biba's has retained the imposing stone shell of Derry's and kept the indoor spaciousness and style while mixing up various types of merchandise on one big floor. Individual salons are replaced by dramatically arranged displays like miniature stage sets.

On the ground floor there is a 1930s bookshop in two-tone wood, selling mainly books on the theatre and other arts; an international news stand, shoes, flowers, lights and a myriad of other goods.

Amid the men's department on the third floor—"Mistress Room"—a Mae West boudoir with a red plush bed where girl-friends and wives can relax or buy something seductive.

Darts and bowling are provided for male shoppers, while children get a

Ann Landers

Wants Pierced Nose

Dear Ann Landers: My husband and I recently returned from a trip to India and Ceylon. We took fascinating photographs along the way. An Englishwoman in India wore a tiny gold stud in her nose with a diamond in it. I just fell in love with the way it looked.

I asked my husband if he would mind if I had my nose pierced. He said it was all right with him. The hole would be small (the flesh heals quickly) and it wouldn't show when I wasn't wearing the stud.

Wouldn't it be a great conversation piece? —A.T.

Dear A. T.: Go ahead if you feel like it. Another hole in your head won't matter. But don't be surprised if nobody notices. What with exposed navels, see-through blouses, and high-high slits in skirts—few people are looking at noses anymore.

Dear Ann Landers: I would like to respond to the woman who was critical of social workers for placing children with foster parents when they should have been in mental institutions, special boarding schools or homes of correction.

The vast majority of foster children are neither teen-age prostitutes, drug addicts nor retarded. They are children who have been deprived of love in a normal setting. They are the victims of circumstance. They could not control, parents who didn't want them, or orphans whose aunts and uncles and grandparents refused to take them. They are outcasts. Unless they are fortunate enough to be placed in a foster home that offers love and security, they will react against society.

It takes a special person to be a foster parent—one who can give without already getting back, one who can love unconditionally, one who is secure and infinitely patient.

I agree that in rare instances, some foster children do belong in institutions, but most of them just need love. They need someone who will cure the anguish of a bad beginning. I know, because I was a foster child.—Bridgewater, N.S.

Dear N.S.: Thank you for an autobiographical account. They are always the best.

Dear Ann Landers: The letter signed Average Slob was a complaint against a "crew-clean mat" in the office who never does her share of the work because she is too busy "housekeeping." You called the complainer a "compulsive neurotic."

I have a hunch I'm the "nut." May I have equal time? I work for a detective agency. Our office is open 24 hours a day. We all use the same equipment. When I arrived at work this morning I found six coffee cups on my desk, sticky spills of soda pop, potato chips, half-eaten sandwiches, ashtrays full of butts, and candy wrappers on the floor.

Am I neurotic for wanting to clean up the debris? I find it impossible to work in such filth.

I resent your answer.—Sally Lake Seaport

Dear Sally: Your situation and the one that triggered the complaint are 180 degrees apart. "Crazy-Clean Nut" went around disinfecting telephone mouthpieces and wiping fingerprints off the filing cabinet. You clean up the place to make it livable.

Get to work a half-hour early tomorrow morning and have a heart-to-heart talk with those pigs who work the shift ahead of you. And if you don't get results, form a committee and go to the boss.

Successful Living

A Brand New Year

By DORIS CLARK

A year that's filled with dice
A year that's filled with dice
fresh days.
A year to earn your fellow's praise;
Twelve months of happiness and peace.
If you so wish, you have a lease
On every minute, every hour.
To make or mar — that is your power
Three hundred days and more, when all
The joys of life are at your call.
Days for work and days for play. . .
But none to waste or throw away.
I bring to you with this small rhyme
Life's greatest gift — a year of time.

—CCB Outlooks.

Dear Doris: Your ideas always give me a special lift, even though I shouldn't be looking for lifts since life has always been good to me and my job should be to give a lift.

What do you think of this, Doris: "Aging is a matter of mind. If you don't mind, it doesn't matter". . .

Or this: "All people smile in the same language".

Or, "Mum's the word because chrysanthemum is harder to spell".

We more nonsense from me today.

Irene.

Dear Irene: Your nonsense has a good deal of sense in it. All of life is a matter of the way we take it, isn't it?

And I have myself experienced things that prove you can communicate right across the world with a smile. When I have been in a far-off country like Italy, unable to pronounce more than a few words, I have managed a good deal of communication with sign language and a couple of laughs with a helpful Italian.

The more you believe in people the more they will respond to your trust, no matter where you are.

Besides, it rests your face and smile!

Dear Doris: I drew up these resolutions for losing weight for the diet club I attend. Perhaps if overweight readers read these before their unscheduled trips to the fridge, they might not complete the trips.

Ann Onymous.

Dear Ann: Your 17 points are well made — relating to feeling better, hunger, saving money and time; besides some other good thoughts.

I particularly like this one: "It is not the years of sickness and decline that will be extended, but the good years: less chance of heart attacks, strokes, diabetes, fallen arches!"

Good for you: and thank you. Any reader wanting the entire list may write to her "Why I Want To Lose Weight", enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope and 25 cents for handling and reproduction.

(Make a resolution to do something about your personal hang-up. Write to Doris, in care of this newspaper, for help in getting started.)

People and Events

Carol singing was a prelude to the Christmas readings and thoughts presented by Nellie Campbell.

Lois Wishart introduced the program by stating that there is a basic need within everyone to create things with his hands to express the creative spirit.

With the amount of leisure time increasing today, more and more people are reverting to creative crafts of all kinds. After Mrs. Wishart listed the many choices that are available to craftsmen, she invited the women to the recreation room where the members of the Study Guild had set up displays of their own work.

These included all kinds of sewing, knitting, crocheting, smocking and fine quilts, dolls, puppets, hooked pictures and rugs, jewelry, woodcarving, braiding and many samples of weaving.

Special refreshments were served by Olive Smith, Marjorie Tosh and Winn Wilkins.

The monthly meeting of Marmora Chapter IODE was held at the home of Mrs. Helen Meikle John last week.

A potluck supper preceded the business portion of the meeting.

A letter of appreciation was received from the Marmora Library Board for a recent donation.

Vi Parks thanked everyone who had helped make the tea, bake sale and boutique table so successful.

A donation was made to Branch 237, Canadian Legion, to assist with Christmas baskets.

A record album will be purchased for the Bridgewater School re Actinolite mineral money collected from members, in place of a gift exchange.

Bertha Bingham, was inducted as a new member by Regent Alice Ayler.

At the close of business a number of games, arranged by Alice Ayler and Eileen Demorest, were played.

Coates Stirs Things Up

Belleville Bobcat, Mark Coates, rushed up the ice and forced Markham goalie, Jim Baxter, to shank almost to the blue line to clear the puck out of his end. Coates was in one of his many hustling attacks in the Markham zone. Mark would have beaten Markham's Doug Todd (19) to the puck had Baxter not been so alert. Mark led a strong Bobcat team effort last night as the Belleville team sent the Royals home on the short end of a 4-0 score in Metro Junior B League action.

Mark Gallupe Most Valuable Player

Quinte Saints Prove Point At Annual Basketball Event

QUINTE Secondary School lost its first game in the classic Western Ontario High School Basketball Tournament in London on Friday night, but came back to win the Consolation Championship in fine form.

In an exciting battle Friday, Quinte dropped a 56-53 decision to Tillsonburg in overtime.

The Tournament itself consists of only eight teams. Six of which are chosen from throughout Ontario on the basis of their showing in provincial football while the other two invited are the top teams from the London area.

This year the teams included Quinte Saints because of their All-Ontario Championship last year, Tillsonburg, St. Mike's from Toronto, Sarnia and Windsor.

Quinte with the honor of winning the Consolation Championship the Belleville High School team also had one of their players capture the individual trophy for the Most Valuable Player in the Tournament.

Mark Gallupe, Quinte's versatile guard, was voted by the Tournament Committee the MVP despite the fact that his team did not reach the Grand Championship finals. This in itself says much for Gallupe's ability.

"Mark only scored 12 points in the game against Tillsonburg," said Quinte coach Jim Murray, "but they had him double-teamed all the way through the game."

"I felt we did very well in our first game despite the fact that we lost. Tillsonburg came at us with a seven foot centre so we had to double team him," added Murray. And unfortunately, one of their forwards got a hot hand from outside.

In Quinte's second game of the event they took on Sarnia St. Pats. It was no contest though, as Gallupe had the entire team taken off him as they easily hooped 28 points in the 86-38 Belleville victory. The Saints second highest scorer in that game was Terry Collins with 16.

Gallupe didn't stop his scoring sores after the Sarnia game as he led his team to a 58-50 win over Toronto St. Michael's, one of the top rated teams in Ontario. Mark scored 27 points in that game with Don McTaggart getting 12. The victory made Quinte the Consolation Champs.

Gallupe was also voted to the Tournament's All-Star team which was comprised of the top five players of the competition in their respective positions.

Complements were abundant for Mark," said coach Murray, "Bob Gage, a reporter for the London Free Press, told me he felt that Mark could quite possibly be the top high school basketball player in the province."

While Quinte won the second highest honors of the tourney, Brennan Secondary, of London, took the Grand Championship beating Tillsonburg 55-52 in the final game before 4,600 fans.

"A lot of people were very impressed with our team," said Murray, "one thing is for sure, we showed the people in Western Ontario that high schools in the East can play basketball too."

Kinsmen Bantams Record Two Wins in Overtime

TRENTON — Kinsmen Bantam Majors became the third Belleville team to make the finals in the Silver Puck Tournament, twice pulling out wins in overtime Saturday afternoon against loss to Trenton Kiwanis.

Kinsmen joined Belleville peewee squads, Rollins Construction majors and Dixie Lee minors who had qualified for Sunday championship play, in tournament action Friday.

Faced with a win or elimination in their third match of the day Saturday, Kinsmen made it to the finals by dropping Kingston Township 4-3 after 6 seconds of sudden death overtime.

Andy Lupenette's wrist shot from the circle to the Kingston goalie Don Mastrianni's right broke up the game, and ended the hopes of Lupenette's gamie winner came with Kingston's Joel Girling serving a holding penalty assessed with only two seconds remaining in regulation time. Rick Sprague drew an assist on the play.

It was a similar finish for the Kingston squad and forward Joel Girling in particular.

Venturi scored all three of his team's goals with the final pair coming in the last six minutes of regulation time to erase a 3-1 Belleville lead. But on the flick of Lupenette's wrist, Luigi's heroics were wasted.

Kinsmen opened the scoring with the only goal of the first period. Diminutive centre Dave Jones, parked on Mastrianni's doorstep, made no mistake from point blank range. Gary Gow and Doug Shaw were in on the three-way move.

Gow was in the penalty box when Venturi scored the equalizer in the second period. He finished off a play engineered by Kevin Sands and Paul Bastien and the teams headed for the third on even terms.

With fewer than three minutes played in the third period,

Boosters Meet

The Belleville Bobcats Booster Club has scheduled its first meeting of 1974.

A spokesmen for the Club reports the members will get together at Memorial Arena, Wednesday, January 2, at 8 p.m.

Kinsmen moved in front, thanks to Howie Cogos who turned a rebound chick he received behind the Kingston net into a scoring play.

On a rush into the Kingston zone, Cogos was crashed beside the boards by Dan Mastrianni he tartly stunned, he appeared to have difficulty regaining his feet and retrieving his stick which was jarred loose in the collision.

Fixed and foe alike seemed to forget Lupenette's goal at the time it took the Belleville forward to get his bearings.

Meanwhile, the puck stayed in the Kingston zone.

Goalie Mastrianni must have figured Coons materialized from the air, according to Peter. When the puck turned up at the goalie's feet, there was Coons peering out to wrap it home before the startled Mastrianni could cover up.

Shaw's accuracy with a slapshot got Belleville two ups.

Out on penalty killing duty with Lupenette mate Eric Howe served a minor sentence, Shaw cut loose after moving in on the left side. Mastrianni didn't have a chance. John Taylor set the play up.

Then Venturi went to work. He made it 3-2 on a powerplay thrust with Ron Polk and Sands while Gary Goegan was in the penalty box. And with time running out, Luigi again combined with Polk and Sands when Belleville goalie Terry Thomnson, after making one of several excellent saves, was unable to smother the rebound.

That set the stage for the overtime and Lupenette's tally.

Kinsmen got a rude welcome to tournament play when they were edged 5-4 by Trenton Saturday morning. But with Bruce Hamilton supplying a flawless effort in goal, the Belleville squad got back in the hunt for the championship by nipping Peterborough 1-0 on Jeff Gow's overtime goal. Gow converted a pass from Shaw in front of the close, well-played match.

Crawford, Jones, Sprague and Shaw were the Kinsmen marksmen in the loss to Trenton. Scorins for the winners were Chris Brule, Gary Hackett, Paul Coveny, Jamy Kennedy and Ron Nicholas.

While Kinsmen were making their determined march to the major finals, Belleville Mckinsey-Maines rumors finished out of the running. A 3-0 decision over Trenton in their first tourney start was the last the m.mors could manage.

Drew Saunders closed the door on the Trenton skaters while Nelson Fredericks, Steve Pearce and Andy Plane scored the Belleville goals.

Losses to Peterborough (4-3) and Kingston (8-2) put Mc-Inroy-Maines out of contention.

Plane and Vence were the only Belleville shooters to find the mark in the Seven Up action. David Tierney and Darrell Tousgeard each had a pair for the winners with assists for Steve Cherry, Neil Murdoch, Jim Landry and Mark Martin.

Peterborough earned the right to face Kinmen in Sunday's major final, duplicating the Belleville team's 5-1 win last record.

Kingston swept to the minor f.nal on the strength of three wins in as many starts. Peterborough qualified with two wins and a loss.

Finns Get Even

Apparently, hockey officials in Finland don't take kindly to a visiting Canadian team administering a convincing defeat to one of their teams.

Trenton Rit's Hawks Senior Juveniles, on a seven-game exhibition tour of Finland, are reported to have taken an 11-2 drubbing from a Jokin team after they had hammered a juvenile squad 7-2 in their first game late last week.

Gary Birt, sponsor-manager of the Trenton team, objected strenuously over the fact his team was matched against a junior club.

Bobcats Blank Markham 4-0 With Impressive Team Effort

By MIKE BRADSHAW
Sports Staff

It took the Belleville Bobcats exactly 42 seconds to defeat the Markham Royals last night as the Cats streched their unbeaten record to five in the Metro Junior B League, with a 4-0 win at the Memorial Arena.

Bruce Clarke was in the locale' net to record the shutout, which also marked the fifth consecutive period that the Cats have kept their opposition off the scoreboard. Peterborough tallied all three of their goals in the first period Friday night and were shutout for the remainder of the game, a 6-3 victory for Belleville.

Clarke came away with several key saves in the victory, including robbing the Markham Royals of goal tallies in the opening 20 minutes of play. Bruce showed to a total of 27 Markham shots over the distance of the game and was selected as the first star of the game.

The Belleville goalie wasn't the only Cat in the limelight however, Mark Coates received honors as the game's third star, firing a pair of goals and adding one assist.

In stature, Coates is probably the smallest player on the Belleville team, but in ability he has proven to be one of the biggest. Coates had an all-out effort by the Bobcats with persistant backchecking and outstanding forechecking.

The Royals didn't have much of a chance to get together any kind of attack with Mark on the ice because as soon as they touched the puck he was there to check them.

Coates was outstanding in his right, but it was an all round Bobcat effort that won the game.

The Cats appear to have changed their style from the type that they had at the beginning of the season. Instead of pulverizing the opposition and skating over top of them they have simply taken to the ice and play an excellent brand of hockey.

"Markham played a good game," said Belleville coach Mel Pearson, "but we played a little bit better."

To say that his team played 'a little bit better' is putting the Cats' effort mildly. Belleville actually outclassed the Royals.

Don't let the low score fool you! Markham is the top defensive team in the league. Hockey is the name of the game, and Belleville just skated on to the ice and outclassed the visitors at a game of hockey. It was a far cry from the back brand of hockey that has not only penetrated the junior leagues, but also worked its way into the NHL and other professional leagues.

Over 1500 fans watched the game and if they enjoyed hockey then they must have really enjoyed what they saw last night.

The Bobcats have turned into a well disciplined unit. They work together for the same success. Their style of play suits one in mind of the Montreal Canadiens of past years, a group of good skaters bounded by a forthright desire to win.

Last night, Markham had 20 shots on the locale net, but that might have been stretching things.

Belleville controlled the game from the opening faceoff. They skated fast and fast, kept the Royals bemmed in their own end with strong forechecking, kept them from good scoring opportunities with excellent backchecking and above all else, the Cats controlled the game with superb passing.

Each of the four Bobcat goals had two assists tagged on the end of them, proving it was a team effort.

Out of the 12 scoring points; (four goals and eight assists) that were accumulated only Coates had more than one scoring that the locals' had a well balanced effort.

Andy Ricketts scored the first Bobcat goal just 42 seconds after the opening faceoff.

Brian Cousins made it 2-0 on a shot from the blue line while the Cats were on a first period power play.

Coates got the next two Belleville markers, one in each of the remaining periods.

A total of 12 penalties were assessed, six to each team including five minute fighting penalties to the locals' Tim Yeo and Markham's Glenn Wagner.

THIRD PERIOD SCORING
1. Belleville — Coates (Cousins, Plaskett) 8:31
2. Belleville — Coates (Yeo, Cousins) 14:31

Major Title for Rollins Peewees

TRENTON— Belleville teams had a shot at three titles here Sunday as the first annual Silver Puck Tournament wound up with six championship games. Rollins Construction of Belleville took the peewee major title but in peewee minor and bantam minor Dixie Lee and Ike Kinamen were not so fortunate. Both teams lost out by one-goal margins.

Kingston Township was the big winner in the well-run four day tournament, capturing top honors in four divisions. Kingston teams took home trophies for supremacy in both minor and major atom section, peewee minor and bantam minor.

Joining Kingston and Belleville in the winners' circle was Peterborough's champion of bantam major division.

The first of the Belleville teams to see action Sunday, Rollins was slow to get rolling in its game with Kingsuon but once the roued got untracked, it was on its way to a 7-3 win and a trophy.

While the Belleville skaters were getting straightened away in the early going, goalie Bobby Bridge cooled out the fast starting Kingston youngsters with a pair of sharp saves.

Hedge's mates repaid him after that. They began to split the pressure to the Kingston team near the halfway mark of the opening period and never let up.

Clarence Brokema's three goals spearheaded the Rollins' attack. Bruce McBrien fired a pair with singles by Dave Mellus and Tgn Suole. Brad Miller, Kevin Hegher and Shawn McIntyre got the dr.i assists.

Kingston's Derryk Furber spoiled Hedge's bid for a shutout late in the second period. The Rollins' goalie appeared to be screened on the long drive from the blueline.

In the peewee minor final, Belleville Dixie Lee simply couldn't find a way to stopping a 1-0 sucmaker to Kingston in the Kingston that had the fans on the edge of their seats.

Just back from an Ontario Minor Hockey Association battle in Oshawa, the Dixie Lee Skaters appeared short on pep and vim but almost pulled it off with a display of stubborn defence.

Buoyed by Hughie Norbert's sharp goaltending, the Belleville club held Kingston off until late in the third period. Young Northey was forced to a loser's role as great goalkeeper's battle with his Kingston counterpart when Bobby Dancey combined with Tracey Drinka for the only goal of the game at 7:06 in the third period.

Dixie Lee had been turning on the heat in the Kingston end when Stacey and Drinka moved out with the puck.

Just before the Kingston score, Dixie Lee came very close to breaking the scoreless deadlock but as often happens, centre Ron Hall missed the puck in the Belleville net.

Late in the game, Louis Crawford, Tony Parks and Danny Lawson swarmed around the Kingston goal but couldn't knot the score. Belleville game it its big partial shot, lifting Northey in favor of an extra attacker with 20 seconds left. The strategy did not pay off.

Peterborough's Dale Wilson sank Belleville Kinsmen in the major bantam final, connecting for the winning goal with just 27 seconds remaining in regulation time. The score in that cliff-hanger was 2-1.

A rash of penalties, most of them the type that give coaches ulcers, marred the one from being the entertaining sheet it should have been.

Rival goalies Jay O'Connor of Peterborough and Belleville's Terry Thompson stood up to goal marks for solid efforts. Thompson was particularly alert.

Keith Harris opened the scoring in the game. The Peterborough defenceman cruised in close to accept a pass from Dave Hyde and whacked the puck home at 9:25. of the first period.

Late in the game Louis Crawford tied the score at 11:43 with Peterborough's Harris in the penalty box. Randy Hutchinson and Bobby Crawford were in on the play.

Kinsmen were two men short when Dave Jones connected with a wrist shot from about 18 feet out. Jeff Gow was the assist man.

Doug Shaw very nearly tipped the score in Kinsmen's favor but missed the mark just before Wilson's game winner.

In the other tournament championship games, it was Kingston blanking Aut 9-0 in atom minor; Kingston edging Peterborough 4-3 in atom major; Kingston 6, Peterborough 4 in bantam minor.

Midgets from Sweden At Trenton, Tuesday

TRENTON— There is no question the Swedish Ice Hockey Federation has sent a top notch midget hockey team to Canada for the start of exhibition games. And Quinte area fans get a chance to see a couple of the stars from Sweden at Trenton Civic Memorial Arena, Tuesday, January 1.

Four of the players with the touring Hammerhill Midgets are given on excellent chance to make the Swedish Olympic Team, when they come of age. They will no doubt be looking for the chance when the visitors hook up with Trenton Quinte for a pr.duct Midgets, Tuesday.

Game time for this international contest is 7:30 p.m. Opening ceremonies, including an exchange of gifts by opposing players, takes place at 7 o'clock.

All seats are reserved and reports indicate the tickets are selling well. They are on sale at the Canada 200, Bike.

The Swedish team, accompanied by club officials and parents of the players, is scheduled to arrive in Trenton Tuesday from Kingston, at approximately 11 a.m.

They'll be welcomed at a civic luncheon in the auditorium of the Community Centre. The adults with the group have accomodations at the Prince Motel, North of Trenton on Highway 33. Players will be billeted with members of the Trenton team.

Wednesday, the visitors have a day off from their busy schedule and at night, they'll be the guests of honor at a banquet and dance at the Royal Canadian Legion, Branch 118.

Lions Midgets Grand Champs

The Belleville Lions Midgets are certainly doing their share of winning, in hockey tournaments this season.

The Lions captured the B Championship in the Cobourg Tournament during the Thursday, Friday and Saturday of last week; played four games in all, to win the A Championship, but the Grand Championship of the Orillia Midget Tournament.

Belleville had some stiff competition along the way, as they never won a game by more than two goals.

Thursday night, the locals upset Port Huron, 6-4, Friday night they beat Lake Simcoe Bay by a score of 5-3.

The coaches of the Belleville team, Robb Burrowes and Jerry Murphy, both commented that this was a solid team effort that won the Championship honors for them.

The team had to be sharp in this their next two games as both times they scored goals in their opponents open nets in the final seconds of the contests before victories were assured.

Bowmanville was the team that fell prey to the Lions for the A Championship, by score of 5-2.

In the Grand Championship game it was Owen Sound that lost out to the Belleville team, 4-2.

Mike Crawford led the Lions Midgets on the scoreboard with six goals and four assists in the four games played.

Spoils of Victory

Belleville Rollins' Construction major peewees team captain Shawn Murloney accepts Trenton Minor Hockey Association trophy from Ron Koppman. Rollins captured the championship in the Trenton Silver Puck Tournament's peewee major section with a convincing 7-1 win over Kingston Township in Sunday's final.

Dillon Steals The Spotlight

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Wayne Dillon, an 18-year-old high school student, stole the spotlight from the World Hockey Association's biggest star Sunday night.

Dillon scored his second game-winning goal in as many nights to lead Toronto Toros in a 5-3 win over Bobby Hull and his Winnipeg Jets.

Hull, playing coach of the Jets, managed assists on two goals by centre Pren Hoek, but Dillon also earned two assists in the Toros' win.

Saturday, Dillon scored twice, including the game-winner and had one assist in Toronto's 5-4 win over the Fighting Saints at Minnesota.

In other games Sunday, Vancouver Blazers edged New England Whalers 6-5, Chicago Cougars beat Minnesota 5-3, New Jersey Knights defeated Cleveland Crusaders 4-3 and Houston Aeros beat Los Angeles Sharks 6-4.

Saturday, Edmonton Oilers beat New England 6-2, Houston blanked Chicago 3-0, Winnipeg edged Quebec Nordiques 4-3, Cleveland shut out New Jersey 3-0.

Hull lamented his team's inability to win more than one road game per trip.

"I don't know what it is. Last year, we were a good road team. We can't do the road until the final three games of the season."

Hull, who will be 35 Thursday, admitted there were times he felt tired.

"The older you get, the more tired you get. The schedule is hard sometimes. In some areas we play third-or fourth-night in the NHL and basketball. But eventually they'll get the schedule straightened out somehow. We will have fewer back-to-back games, and if they fit it right, the same two teams both nights so they'll be involved in an equal amount of travelling."

The Toros' two weekend wins, combined with New England's two losses, pushed Toronto to within four points of the leading Whalers in the East Division.

Houston 6 Los Angeles 4

The Aeros win put them in second position in the East place in the West, two points in front of Edmonton.

Murray Hall scored twice to help Gerry Meehan station attack and Mark Howe get his 20th goal of the season, on a pass from his brother Gordie.

Gary Veneruso scored twice for the Sharks who remain last in the West Division.

Vancouver 6 New England 5

Lawson scored the winner at the 8:46 mark of overtime, tipping in a goal-mouth pass from Mike Chernoff for his 25th goal of the season.

Ron Sedlbauer, with two goals, led the Whalers to a 5-4 lead after two periods but Lawson's double scored the overtime with a Vancouver goal at 9:23 of the third period.

Chicago 5 Minnesota 3

Bob Liddington scored twice for the Cougars and Reggie Leach got the first goal of the season to break a 3-3 tie to give Chicago its 18th win in 34 starts.

Fleming's goal midway in the third period was the result of a rebound of a shot by playing captain Pat Stapleton.

The win pushed Chicago within four points of fourth-place Quebec in the East.

New Jersey 4 Cleveland 3

Steve Prowse, with his first of two goals in the game, and Wayne Rivers and Andre Lacroix provided a second-period scoring outburst that led the Knights over Cleveland.

It was the Knights' seventh win against two losses at home since moving to New Jersey from New York.

Canadians Move Out of Cellar

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Canadians, a new entry moved out of last place in the Ontario Hockey Association Major Junior A League Sunday, edging Hamilton Red Wings 4-3.

The Canadians, a new entry to the Ontario Hockey Association last place since Nov. 26, Hamilton's dropped Red Wings into the last spot vacated by the Canadians.

Kingston built up a 3-0 lead after the first 50 minutes of play then held on for its first victory in 37 games, with five ties.

Eric Brubacher, Roger Dorey, Greg Holst and Brad Rhicard scored for the winners, their second straight victory.

Rick Szabo stopped 31 shots in goal for Hamilton. Kingston's Mike Freeman made 37 saves.

Hamilton's Mike Fedorko was stopped on a penalty shot in the second period. Hickey converted the penalty shot when Freeman threw his goalstick at a loose puck.

In other league games Sunday, Kitchener Rangers beat Sault Ste. Marie Greyhounds 5-3, Toronto Marlboros downed Ottawa 67s 5-3, Peterborough Petes defeated Oshawa Generals and Sudbury Wolves played to a 2-2 tie.

Rangers 5 Greyhounds 4

A goal by Glen Richardson with 63 seconds remaining in the second period proved to be the winner for Kitchener, its second victory in three visits to Sault Ste. Marie.

Trailing 3-2 in the third period, the Greyhounds made a valiant effort to tie the game. Jack Valiquette scored a pair of quick goals, his 39th and 40th of the season. Sault Ste. Marie also pulled goalie Lou Moore with less than a minute to play but couldn't tie the score.

Rick Bourbannais scored two goals for Kitchener.

Paul Woods and Charlie Simmer added to Valiquette's two-goal night.

The Greyhounds outshot Kitchener 34-24 before 2,975 fans.

Marlboros 8 67s 3

Dave Flatley scored two goals to lead Toronto to victory before 2,000 fans at Maple Leaf Gardens.

Flatley, recently acquired from Hamilton, scored his goals early in the third period to break a 2-2 tie.

Dave Staffin of Ottawa gave the 67s the short-lived lead before Kevin Devine tied it for Toronto.

Ottawa's Tim Young and Bruce Boudreau of the Marlboros drew matching minor penalties.

Derek Smith closed the gap to one goal midway through the final period, but John Tonelli's power play game less than a minute remaining clinched the victory for Toronto.

Wolves 2 Generals 2

Vic Stasiuk scored the score for Oshawa, just past the midway point of the first period. Sudbury goalie Bill Nyrop made a roughing penalty at 11.49, and Oshawa came less than a minute later.

Ron Zuchead scored Oshawa's other goal.

Geoff Green and Richie Hanson scored for the Wolves.

Sudbury outshot Oshawa 50-28 before 3,500 hometown fans.

The league is idle over Tuesday, with Kitchener travelling to Sudbury, St. Catharines playing host to London and Hamilton playing in a matinee game at Oshawa.

Russia Whips Czechoslovakia

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (AP) — Russia scored three straight third-period goals to defeat Czechoslovakia 5-2 Sunday night in an international hockey tournament.

The Russians, who now have won both their starts, had mounted 7-6 and 2-1 leads, only to see the Czechs bounce back for 1-3 and 2-2 ties.

The win closed out the Czechs' competition in the annual tourney with a 2-1 record. They beat the United States 7-1 in a Saturday game.

Valeriy Kharlamov scored two goals and Aleksander Bodunov, Vitascheslav Anisin and Aleksandr Gusev one each for the Russians. Milan Novy and Jiri Holik scored for the Czechs.

Play concludes in the tournament with two games in Colorado Springs, Colo. The U.S. faces the Czechs Tuesday and Canada, represented by Flin Flon Bombers of the Western Canada Hockey League.

Peter McDuffe was the star of a New York Rangers victory Sunday night but he still wants to get drafted in next year's National Hockey League expansion.

McDuffe, pressed into duty after injuries to the Rangers' top two goalies, stopped 37 shots to help New York to a 4-3 victory over Minnesota North Stars.

"I know I'm the odd man here," said the third-string goalie, "but I'll be honing to land with an expansion team next year."

McDuffe could get his chance next year when Washington, D.C., and Kansas City enter the league, but in the meantime he's a valuable replacement for veterans Ed Giacomin and Gilles Villemure.

Villemure is nursing a knee injury and Giacomin suffered a pulled hamstring muscle. Rangers' 7-1 loss to the Canadiens in Montreal Saturday.

In other NHL games Sunday, Toronto Maple Leafs beat the Black Hawks 4-1 in Chicago, Detroit Red Wings defeated Atlanta Flames 4-2, Philadelphia Flyers edged Buffalo Sabres 5-4 and Boston Bruins whipped California Golden Seals 8-3 with Chris Oddleifson scoring four goals.

In other Saturday act on, Toronto beat the Leafs 4-1 while Los Angeles Kings beat Boston 6-1, Chicago defeated Pittsburgh Penguins 4-2, Philadelphia edged St. Louis Blues 4-1 and New York Islanders edged Vancouver Canucks 4-3.

Jim Neilson's goal nine minutes into the third period gave Ullman's goal early in the second period. It was Ullman's 18th goal of the season and 479th of his 18-season career.

The win kept the Leafs two points behind the third-place Rangers in the East while the Black Hawks made up ground back of the leading Flyers in the West.

Philadelphia 3 Buffalo 4

Rick Martin scored his 50th and 51st goals of the season and Rhemale Gil Perreault scored his fifth for the Sabres in a session battle at Buffalo.

Tom Bladen's goal midway in the third period broke a 4-4 tie and gave the Flyers their 21st win in 33 games.

The Sabres lose left them five points back of the Leafs in the battle for fourth spot in the East while the Red Wings moved to within four points of Buffalo.

Detroit 4 Atlanta 2

Atlanta goalie Dan Bouchard stopped 33 shots in holding Toronto to the lone Saturday night but he wasn't so effective Sunday.

Hornets Brought Back to Earth

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Brantford Foresters pulled a surprise in the Ontario intermediate hockey tournament Sunday night and brought Cambridge Hornets back to earth.

Terry McKnight scored three goals to lead the Foresters to a 9-4 triumph which knocked the Hornets their first defeat in three starts in the six-team round-robin tournament.

In Saturday's games, Cambridge edged Czechoslovakia Borros of the Ontario Hockey Association Major Junior A team 4-2 and the Soviet Union won its first start with a 6-3 triumph over Sweden.

Cambridge, member of the OHA Senior A team along with Brantford, leads the tournament with four points. The Soviet, Finnish, Russian Czechoslovakia, Toronto and Toronto each have two points, and the Swedes are winless after two games.

In exhibition games Sunday, London Knights of the OHA Junior league surprised the Russians, called the Wings of the Soviet, 5-3 and Czechoslovakia, represented by the Trnala Hockey Club, defeated Welland Merchants of the Senior A league 8-4.

Brantford 9 Cambridge 4

Peterborough Falls to Finns

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

LENINGRAD (CP) — Finland defeated Canada 4-3 Sunday in a six-country hockey tournament.

Peterborough Petes of the Ontario Hockey Association Major Junior A series staged a gallant effort to get the equalizer after coach Roger Neilson pulled his goalie for an extra forward with two minutes still to play, but Finnish goalie Tapio Virkimo beat off every wave of attackers.

The crowd of 6,000 in the Lenin grad hockey stadium was in an uproar as the Canadians swarmed around the Finnish net attempting to take advantage of a Finnish penalty.

Finland took a 3-1 first-period lead, with Gord Duncan scoring for Canada. Canada went ahead in the second period on unassisted goals by Tom Gastle and Rod Leonard, but in the final period Tuomo Makkela tied it up and Mikko Leinonen scored the winner at 8:14.

Leinonen had two for Finland, as did Tuomo Makkela.

Petes had won their previous game Friday, defeating the Soviet Union 7-6.

In another Sunday game, Sweden defeated the U.S. 11-1 to earn a tie for the tournament lead with the Soviet Union. The leaders meet New Year's Day.

Sweden scored six goals in the first period, were held to a 1-1 tie in the second and added four more in the third.

Russia scored five goals in the second period Saturday to defeat Czechoslovakia 7-5. They led 1-0 after the first period and 5-2 at the end of the second.

Quebec Remparts Come to Life

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Quebec Remparts snapped out of the doldrums that dropped them from first place in the Quebec Major Junior Hockey League's East Division with a 13-3 win over Shawinigan Dunodes in one of five games Sunday night.

In other action, Montreal Juniors defeated Hull Festivals 5-3, Sorel Black Hawks clipped Laval Nationals 14-4, Sherbrooke Beavers drubbed Trois-Rivieres Draveurs 8-4 and Shawinigan Dynamos dumped Chicoutimi Sagueneens 7-4.

An estimated 2,000 saw Corn wall Royals, leaders in the league's West Division, make six goals in the first period en route to a 10-5 win over Typhoons.

Real Cloutier scored six goals, including four in the third period, to pace the Remparts to their win in five-da mesons. Jacques Locas and Charles Constantin added two goals each with Dan Thibodeau and Alain Samson adding six ches.

Claude Larose and Marc Tessier scored for the Rangers.

Allan Price's hat trick goal of the game at 11:17 of the third period broke a 3-3 tie and Montreal went on to its win over Hull. Jean-Luc Phaneuf scored the other two goals for the Juniors, who won their sixth straight.

Dave Boyd, Rick Garcia and Luc Prud'Homme replied for Hull.

Jacques Cossette scored five goals and Jean Lupien added three to pace Sorel to their win over Laval, a club they defeated 18-4 in Laval Thursday. Lucien deBlois, Rick Lapointe, Pierre Royer, Larry Lowsai, Michel Deziel and Robert Bilchko scored the other Sorel goals.

Yvon Vanlour, Marcel Rousseau, Bernard Nadeau and Jacques Trottier were the Laval marksmen.

Richard Dubreuil scored three goals, two of them in a shorthanded tally in the third period that carried Sherbrooke to its win over the Draveurs.

Dave Langevin with Marlett's at 9:36 the winning effort.

Alain Daigle with two. Claude Perland and Jean Beaulieu scored for the Draveurs, who held a 4-1 lead after two periods.

Two goals by Richard Poisson and singles by Normand Bergeron, Jean-Guy Thibodeau, Brian Hart, Daniel Lessard and Jean Mercier provided Shawinigan's offensive output at Chicoutimi.

Yves Preston withwo, Pierre Quintal and Marc d'Amico scored for the Sagueneens.

In Montreal, Dan Lupenette with three goals and John Nastasi with two paced the Royals to their win over the Yugoslavian club.

Sandy Hawley Makes It 514

LAUREL, Md. (CP) — Sandy Sandy Hawley increased his 1973 win total to 514 with victories in the first and fifth races at Laurel race track Saturday.

He opened the day with a victory aboard Charge Right, which paid $7.60, $4 and $3.20. then won the fifth on Ramsin Romeo, $5.40, $2.80 and $2.20.

The 26-year-old Whitby, Ont., native, who broke Bill Shoemaker's record of 485 wins in a season Dec. 6 at Laurel, also finished second with Hurdato in the ninth. Hurtado returned $2.60 and $2.20.

Terriers Lose To Soviet Team

GOTENBORG, Sweden (CP) — The Clarkson team from the Soviet Union collected five goals in the second period to defeat Ottilia Terriers of the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A series 5-1 in a Star Cup hockey tournament game Sunday.

The Terriers took a 1-0 lead in the first period on a goal by Gary Milroy.

In another game between Swedish teams, Frolunda defeated Brynas 6-1

OPEN NEW YEAR'S DAY

Dolphins Get Chance To Match Packers' Feat

MIAMI (AP) — "We'd like to be talked about in terms of the Green Bay Packers," says coach Don Shula, who has led Miami Dolphins on the threshhold of a second consecutive Super Bowl championship.

And that is something that's been done only twice in the previous National Football League title games—by the Packers of the legendary Vince Lombardi in 1967 and 1968.

The Dolphins, who won 17 straight games to take the championship a year ago, who captured their third straight American Conference crown Sunday before 75,000 hometown fans with Larry Csonka running for 117 yards and three touchdowns in a 27-10 victory over Oakland Raiders.

The trip to the Super Bowl will be Miami's third straight, and that, in itself, is a record.

Miami was immediately established as a 6½-point favorite by oddsmaker Jimmy (The Greek) Snyder to beat Minnesota Vikings in the Super Bowl at Rice Stadium in Houston, Jan. 13.

Someone asked Shula if he was thinking of becoming a legend like the late Lombardi.

"No," he said, "I'd just like to get to 200. I'm one and two right now and all I want to do is get even."

It will be the fourth time Shula has led a team to the NFL title game. His Baltimore Colts lost to New York Jets in the 1969 Super Bowl game and the Dolphins fell to the Cowboys two years ago before downing Washington last season. No other coach has been to three Super Bowls in a row.

The Dolphins, only a five-point favorite over Oakland, left little doubt from the start when they surged 84 yards to score on the first possession.

Quarterback Bob Griese, directing a precision ground attack throughout the game, scrambled for 27 yards on the first play, reached Paul Warfield 11 from where Csonka ripped through a huge hole on the next play for the touchdown.

Miami used almost eight minutes to establish a 6-0 lead early in the first half, with Csonka hammering over from the two to give the Dolphins a 14-0 lead at the midway mark.

Oakland made a bid starting the third period, moving 61 yards to the Miami 16 before setting for George Blanda's 21-yard field goal.

The Dolphins got that back four plays after Charlie Leigh's 39-yard punt was fielded by the Raider 43 when Garo Yepremian kicked a 42-yard field goal.

The Raiders then embarked on a 57-yard touchdown drive, keyed by the passing of Ken Stabler, who hooked Mike Siani with a wet-yard scoring strike.

Yepremian scored a 26-yard field goal and the Dolphins clinched it when Oakland's fourth-down gamble at the 45 failed, setting up Csonka's third touchdown—a two-yard run with only 1:54 left in the game.

"Everything that has been said about this Miami team is true," said Raider coach John Madden. "They have a lot of poise and class.

"I don't often compliment a team, but this team is a great team," said Raider linebacker O'Phil Villapiano. "They played their best game of the year. They had to because no one wants to miss the chair."

Csonka set an AFC championship record scoring record with his three touchdowns.

Calvin Hill—Cowboys Missed Him

Fran Tarkenton Sheds The Tag of a Loser

DALLAS (AP) — "It's been scramblers can't win . . . that's a bunch of garbage," said Fran Tarkenton, with just a touch of bitterness in his voice.

Tarkenton shed his loser's tag when Minnesota Vikings celebrated their 27-10 National Football Conference title victory Sunday over Dallas Cowboys.

The 6-foot, 190-pounder quarterback, who has had "much-maligned" in front of his name for most of his career, propelled the Vikings to a Super Bowl meeting with Miami Dolphins on a single stroke of brilliance when the pressure was the greatest.

The Super Bowl is set for Houston Jan. 13.

But Tarkenton, in the playoffs for the first time in his 13 years in the National Football League, said: "It's always a keen effort that wins football games."

Dallas, a punchless team most of the day, trailed only 10-7 in the third quarter after rookie Golden Richards returned a punt 63 yards for a touchdown.

The usually-blase Texas Stadium fans rallied thunderously cheers onto the field.

Tarkenton stepped calmly behind the centre and arched a ball as far as he could threw it. Receiver John Gilliam eluded two Dallas defenders at the Cowboy four-yard line, caught the ball and stepped into the end zone. The emotion went out of Texas Stadium like a pricked balloon.

"I didn't see him catch it, but when he took off I knew he had it and when he got to the 5, I knew," Tarkenton said. "However, far that pass was . . . that's as far as Fran Tarkenton can throw . . . not one inch more."

The play covered 54 yards.

Viking cornerback Bob Bryant later intercepted a Roger Staubach pass and holed 63 yards for a touchdown in the fourth quarter to put the Cowboys out of it.

Dallas Coach Tom Landry said: "We may have taken advantage of later opportunities if Gilliam and Tarkenton hadn't taken the starch out of us . . . that was the biggest play by far."

The Cowboys, who surrendered the ball six times on miscues, couldn't take advantage of four Viking turnovers in the second half.

Minnesota built up a 10-0 halftime lead on Fred Cox's 44-yard field goal and rookie Chuck Foreman's five-yard scoring sweep.

Rangers Get Share Of Runnerup Spot

By The Canadian Press

Two Favorites Come Through

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

A pair of favorites, one owned by Toronto industrialist E. P. Taylor and the Windfields Farm, dominated thoroughbred racing Sunday at the Woodbine Race Track.

Shake A Leg, purchased by Windfields for $50,000 as a yearling, took a half-length victory over Work For Peace in the $27,275 First Leg Handicap at Laurel, Md., race course.

At New York, Cannonade—the 9-to-5 favorite—got the lead on the final turn and then held off fast-closing Roger's Dandy to win the $56,800 Aqueduct Handicap for two year olds during the final program of the New York Racing Association's (NYRA) 258-day 1973 season.

The three-year-old daughter of Raise A Native raced in Ireland until brought to the U.S. earlier this year. She covered six furlongs in one minute, 14.1 seconds over a slow course and returned $4.80, $2.60 and $2.80.

Cannonade, 4-to-5 favorite, with Jockey Pete Anderson, the race. Shake A Leg has earned $62,864, while recording six victories and a second in seven starts.

Trivial, winner of four consecutive stakes races, was conceded three Saturday's race because of the track conditions.

Top-weighted at 126 pounds with Jockey Pete Anderson, Cannonade took a 5¼-length victory in the Laurel event and $2.40. Flip Sal paid $3.80 to show.

BIRTHS

BROWN — BIG and Linda (nee Cowan), of Trenton, are pleased to announce the birth of their son Christopher Lee, on Thursday, December 27, 1973 at Belleville General Hospital. Thanks to Dr. Hall and all the staff on 5th floor.

IN MEMORIAM

ARMSTRONG — In loving memory of our dear mother, Mrs. Ethel Armstrong, who passed away December 31st, 1972. Loving and kind in life and wept, Untold sad pain to us she kept. Memories are true, in her heart and mind we find, Sweetest memories she left behind, Memories we cherish, memories we hold dearest and dearly.

ARMSTRONG — In loving memory of our dear mother and grandmother, Ethel Armstrong, who passed away on January 1, 1968. Memories are sweet, but beautiful memories remain with us.

CARD OF THANKS

I WOULD like to express my sincere thanks to all the kind relatives, friends and neighbours who sent cards, food, phone calls, flowers, donations and visits during my recent stroke in the Belleville General Hospital on Dec. 1st, and since my return home. Special thanks to Dr. Hall, Dr. Hunt, Dr. Chalk, the Nurses, the Doctors, the Physiotherapist, the Dietitian, the Social Worker, the Pastor of Foster Memorial, the Rev. Ken Hunter, the Rev. Ken Hall, the Rev. Ken Bowen, the Rev. Ken Bowen, the Rev. Ken Bowen

NOT DEAD!

THINK BEFORE YOU DRIVE AND DRINK

NOBODY'S PUTTING DOWN MERRIMENT. It's part of the holidays: happy hearts . . . high spirits . . . good cheer belong to the Christmas season. So do big festive parties. But drunken driving? That's something else. And there's nothing jolly about it!

ALCOHOL AND DRIVING DON'T MIX . . . what makes you feel like the life of the party can make for death on the road. Even one drink can delay reactions . . . impair coordination . . . affect your judgment just enough to cause an accident. Why chance it?

THINK BEFORE YOU DRINK. Consider all you have to lose. Christmas time is for family rejoicing. Don't let it turn into a tragedy.

REMEMBER - - - 1974 is the first year of the rest of your life. Please try to be here to enjoy it. Life is too precious to gamble with!

The Haunted Shrine

Is there in England a shrine which has a direct link with Jesus Christ?

The question arises from my recent visit to the ruined abbey at Glastonbury, England, where tradition says Jesus visited as a boy and where Joseph of Arimathea, the uncle of Jesus who provided the tomb for his body after the crucifixion, founded the first Christian church in Western Europe in 37 A.D.

This tradition is shrugged off by modern scholars as a pious fiction, a relic of the credulous Middle Ages. However, there are defenders of the Glastonbury tradition who argue that its claims are supported by evidence.

Well, is it possible that the young Jesus visited England, and that later his uncle, Joseph of Arimathea, planted there a church - - and a thorn tree?

The "holy thorn," which has grown in the grounds of Glastonbury Abbey for as long as records have been kept, is a descendant of one said to have sprung up on that spot from Joseph of Arimathea's staff. It is of a type known as the "Levantine thorn," apparently common in the Middle East, and has the charming habit of flowering at Christmas.

The Glastonbury tradition says that when he was a boy Jesus visited there with his Uncle Joseph, who was a metal merchant and made frequent trips to the tin mines of Cornwall.

After Christ's death and resurrection, this same Joseph and a band of disciples travelled from the Holy Land to Glastonbury and there built a "wattle" church (one made of twigs and sticks) which was 60 ft. long and 26 ft. wide.

Following Joseph's death, this wattle church was encased in boards covered with lead to protect it. Later, in 540 A.D., a large stone church was built around it.

From this point, the tradition becomes firm history.

In 1184 a fire destroyed the ancient church at Glastonbury and it was rebuilt as a huge abbey housing many monks.

In 1539 Henry VII, after his quarrel with the pope, closed the monasteries in England. It was in the next century that the Puritans burned Glastonbury Abbey. Today all that remains are magnificent ruins, which have a stark, stillness beauty of their own.

Most of the "evidence" for the Glastonbury tradition is indirect and serves merely to show that the claims are at least plausible. However, a late vicar of Glastonbury, the Rev. Lionel Lewis, had such confidence in the evidence that he stated flatly: "The site of St. Mary's Church, Glastonbury, is the site of the earliest above-ground church in the world."

By comparison, he said, the first above-ground church in Rome, after the Christians got out of the catacombs, wasn't built until around 150A.D. - - a full half century after the traditional founding of the Glastonbury church.

Historians generally hold that Christianity wasn't introduced into Britain until the sixth century. Not so, counter defenders of the Glastonbury tradition. They cite the writings of such early church fathers as Tertullian and Origen, who lived in the second century and spoke of Britain as having already received the faith in their day.

Moreover, the tradition that the British church was founded by Nobles a personage than Joseph of Arimathea was no mere folk belief. It was solemnly upheld by such august church assemblies as the Councils of Pisa, Constance, and Sienna, where precedence was accorded the English bishops on the ground that Joseph of Arimathea carried the faith to Britain "immediately after the Passion of Christ."

Even English ambassadors claimed precedence on the basis of this Glastonbury tradition, as late as the time of Elizabeth I.

None of this proves anything, of course, except that the Glastonbury tradition is a venerable one, rooted in Britain's far past. But there are some further bits of evidence which make the tradition even more plausible.

Among Corinth tin miners is an ancient belief that Joseph of Arimathea was in the tin trade. That such a trade existed between Britain and the Middle East in the time of Jesus is well established. Herodotus, as early as 445 B.C., spoke of the British Isles as the Tin Islands.

Pytheas, a British geologist, Professor Russell Forbes, had a piece of ancient Rhodian pottery dug up at Ostia. It was analyzed, and the verdict was that the metal came from the mines of Cornwall.

Mr. Lewis, the Glastonbury vicar, claimed personal knowledge of a tradition among the villagers that the ties of Galilee that "as a youth Jesus came to England aboard a trading vessel of Tyre."

There is another, even more curious, chapter in the Glastonbury story - - a

B. C. Labor Strife Comes in 'Cold' Year

VANCOUVER (CP) — In British Columbia's hot and cold system of labor negotiations, 1973 was the cold year for organized labor, with few major new contracts being negotiated.

But one would never guess it by the amount of labor strife which found its way into the headlines.

Major news for the B.C. union member was the NDP government's new labor legislation, something the union leaders looked forward to as marking an end to the former Social Credit government's tight rein on labor.

But when the legislation was handed down, the unions, or at least those in the powerful B.C. Federation of Labor, protested the law.

...The federation's biggest complaint was that the new laws didn't give the unions picketing.

But the government stood fast, and said there would be no change in the new code, at least until it has a chance to see how the new system was working out.

Labor Minister Bill King, a former locomotive engineer from the interior town of Revelstoke, was blunt in his refusal even to consider allowing the unions the unfettered right to picket.

Mr. King said free picketing would lead to "bloody chaos" and Premier Barrett backed him up, even while admitting there was a split in his party over the labor legislation.

But the federation itself wasn't without its shake-ups during the year.

The big change was the resignation of pudgy Ray Haynes, secretary-treasurer, who came as close to anyone to being the spokesman for labor's main man in B.C.

Mr. Haynes, a tough-talking leader with a no-nonsense attitude toward both the governments and the province's employers, was succeeded by Len Guy, leading to speculation about where the federation will head in 1974.

Mr. Guy is another hard-line unionist and observers felt he would not change the federation's fiery, publicity-conscious stance.

But the big test for Mr. Guy, Mr. King, and the new labor code will come this year, when many of the province's big unions bargain for new contracts.

The new code removes all laws governing the unions and has handed them over to a new labor board, which the unions have already condemned as having too much power.

The first major test for the board will come in the new year, when the Construction Labor Relations Association, representing more than 800 companies, goes to the bargaining table with unions representing more than 50,000 workers.

It's a potentially-volatile situation and in 1972, the last time the contracts were negotiated, the province was crippled by a lengthy strike which halted virtually all construction.

There are more than 400 contracts involving more than 200,000 workers to be settled in 1974, with another major test coming in the summer, when the forest products Woodworkers of America bargains.

The IWA has long been one of the hardest-bargaining unions and the rank and file is seen more determined than leaders to win a rich contract.

The IWA also is worried about competition from the Canadian Paperworkers Union, Pulp and Woodworkers of Canada.

Also being closely watched is the bargaining for civil servants, the first negotiations in which the government employees have won the right to strike if they don't like what they're offered.

Now the 30,000 government employees will head to the bargaining table and there isn't much doubt that the civil servants, generally earning less money than workers in similar jobs in industry, will be making some tough demands.

Employers will be watching to see how the government handles the bargaining with its workers, especially in view of last summer's settlement with the ferry workers, who walked out and almost halted traffic between the mainland and Vancouver Island.

The ferry workers won a generous settlement which some employers complained about from the interim nature. They feared that other unions, seeing the settlement, would want equal or better terms for themselves.

Immunology Interest Is Growing

VANCOUVER (CP) — Researchers say new interest is the working immunology — the natural defence mechanisms of the body — in the fight against cancer has resulted in useful knowledge about the processes.

Immunology and cancer were major themes of the western meeting of the Royal College of Physicians and Surgeons of Canada here.

Dr. J. P. W. Thomas of the British Columbia Cancer Institute said in an interview immunological treatment today is at the same stage as drug therapy was 20 years ago.

Dr. Rudolph Nisbet, professor of surgery a Toronto General Hospital, said a researcher is going on in, various parts of Canada, but the time has come for wider studies on high-risk sections of the population, such as smokers.

Dr. Falk postulates that the body's natural defence mechanisms against cancer is something that has evolved. The difference between a person who has cancer and one who does not may be a difference in immunity.

"We have to ask, why does a tumor grow at all? That is the most crucial problem facing us in the whole of the immune-response system."

He said anything that represses the immune-response system results in more tumors. This tendency has been found in patients undergoing organ transplants when their immunological mechanism has to be suppressed for long periods.

Cyst Is Really Form of Bursitis

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: About seven months ago I had a very painful knee, bending and walking resulted in excruciating pain. After the anaesthetic (in about two weeks) I noticed a hard lump in back of the knee and the leg is straightened.

My doctor says this is a Baker's cyst and that I will have to "learn to live with it." I am 68.

Does the cyst become largerr? Does the cyst become largerr? Is inoperable? As it is, I cannot walk quickly without the knee swelling and becoming painful—Mrs. C.D.

A Baker's cyst is related to bursitis—in fact might well be called 'a form of it. There are numerous bursae in the back of the knee, a bursa being (hope I'm not boring you) a fluid-filled sac which nature provides so tendons can ride easily over it.

This swelling back of the knee is in one of the bursae.

When your doctor tells you to "live with it," he is really saying it isn't serious enough to warrant drastic measures.

Then two weeks of severe pain could well have been the result of some injury or strain, but fortunately you are past the acute period.

A Baker's cyst may or may not become larger, but as I try to read your doctor's mind, I suspect he feels that yours is likely to remain of reasonable size and under reasonable control. The pain when you walk fast "is a protest by the bursa that you are subjecting it to more strain than it is prepared to take.

In some cases hydrocortisone is injected if the discomfort is severe enough to demand it; in other cases just avoiding too much strain on the knee is sufficient.

If the cyst becomes too large or painful, it can be removed surgically. But to answer what may be your most important question, no, a Baker's cyst does not ordinarily become painful enough to prevent walking. If it does, that's time enough to consider surgery. But I am rather of the feeling you'll find it better just to favor the knee a bit and not need surgery.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Is it possible for an 8-year-old boy to get a girl pregnant? There is a rumor going around that a girl, 9-16, is pregnant by a boy that age. If there is no truth to this rumor, how old must the father really be?—F.P.

It is not possible at age eight. Sperm in a primitive form may be present at about age 10 but its fertilizing potential is remote. The sperm potential increases as puberty progresses.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I would like to know where test tube conception procedure is being done. I had my tubes tied when my third baby but want to try for a girl if possible.—Mrs. G.S.

The idea of "test-tube babies" is fascinating speculation and research is being done on it, but we doubters are many years off from being able to attempt it in women who have been sterilized. Give up thought of it until or unless there is some indication that it can be made practical.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Recently I have noticed my lower lip on the inside turning black. There is no pain, only when I eat fruit it gets a slight burning.

My doctor has never seen anything like it and told me to see a dermatologist. Before I start making the rounds of doctors: can you offer any advice?—Mrs. J.L.

My advice is exactly the same as your doctor's—see a dermatologist. Such a condition has to be seen before it can be evaluated.

TORONTO (CP) — A Scarborough resident reports that a woman knocked on his door recently and asked him to help her as she had just suffered a heart attack. He helped her inside and offered to make a cup of tea. "I'd prefer a rye and ginger ale," the ailing woman replied. After the woman, in her early 50s, downed the drink, she thanked the man and left.
